Louis Kayoed By Schmeling In 12th Round Of Ring Upset

Brown Bomber Is Felled in 4th, Paving Way for Knockout.

By Bill McCormick
A Staff Correspondent.

The knockout did not come as the result of a single lucky punch, was not happenstance, but occurred after Der Schlager had completely dismantled Joe, battering the 22-year-old youth, who had entered the ring a fresh, strong athlete, into a grotesque Stepin Fetchit type of a tired Negro.

The final wallop, which proved conclusively that the "Brown Bomber had a wet fuse, was a right-hand rocketed at Louis' chin as he wobbled on the ropes, weak, weary and just too tired to stand straight from an explosion of right-hand punches which had just landed on his chops.

That final right to the head, which probably will go down in the record books as one of the most important single punches ever landed, went sizzling to Joe's chin. He collapsed in much the same manner that Primo Carnera had collapsed before him. His arms outstretched, he hung draped on the middle ropes.

Louis Sags to Floor.

He had strength to hang on the ropes only for a few seconds and sagged to the floor even before Referee Arthur Donovan had shooed Schmeling to a corner and returned to the prostrate form to take up the count. It was a pitiful figure he was forced to toil over.

The stricken fighter's left jaw was swollen to twice its normal size as the result of those right-hand smashes which spelled his doom. Both his eyes, even normally narrow slits, were almost completely closed. His left arm was bent under his body as he lay on his side and made brave but futile attempts to rise.

Sometime during the count, Louis got the left arm that had contributed to the destruction of so many fine fighting machines from under him. Sometime during the count he shook his head—first in an effort to clear his bewildered mind and then as an apparent indication that he could not summon the strength to pull himself from his groveling position.

40,000 See Fight.

As early as the fourth round, when Louis was dropped for a count of four by the first of those terrific rights to land cleanly on the chin, the doom of the Negro was written plainly for nearly every one of the 40,000 people who poured approximately $547,000 into the tills for the privilege of attending the Roman holiday.

Even before that the answer was written by those wiser in the ways of the ring, who saw that Schmeling's backing-away mode of fighting was completely nullifying Joe's shuffling attack. Those same wise observers saw also that Der Schlager was refusing to create openings for Louis to ram either of his two powerful fists through—and that the eventual winner was setting up the eventual loser for the right-hand punches which were to decide the issue.

Max gave warning as early as the third round, when he connected with two vicious right to the head, then missed a third which might have ended matters even earlier than the twelfth round. In the fourth, Schmeling landed two hard rights early, then waited, backing away and fiddling around cautiously as Louis continued to shuffle in as relentlessly as he ever had against any foe.

With but a few seconds remaining of the fourth, Schmeling staggered Louis with a right to the

Sanity Hearing For Zioncheck Set Next Week

Trial Ordered as District Officials Charge He Is Dangerous Lunatic.

As a weary Congress headed for adjournment yesterday, one of its members, Representative Marion A. Zioncheck (Democrat), of Washington, was ordered to stand trial in lunacy court Friday at 10 a. m.

The trial to pass on Zioncheck's soundness of mind was set by Justice Oscar R. Luhring, of the District Supreme Court, after the District Commissioners, through Assistant Corporation Counsel Thomas Gillespie Walsh, filed a petition giving it as their opinion that Zioncheck "was an insane person with homicidal and otherwise dangerous tendencies."

If Zioncheck is found to be of unsound mind, he will be transferred from Gallinger Hospital, to St. Elizabeth's Hospital for the Insane. Later he probably would be transferred to Washington State.

He was placed in Gallinger Hospital for mental observation after a series of escapades lasting over several weeks. He became known as the "clown of Capitol Hill." But many of the 35-year-old statesman's colleagues on the Hill last night had a kind word to say for him.

Was Hard Worker.

They recalled that the late Speaker Byrns regarded him as an energetic and promising young legislator, and they pointed out that Byrns had selected him as one of the official objectors to bills on the private and consent calendars. This is an arduous job, requiring the reading of hundreds, even thousands, of bills.

The grueling work Zioncheck did in the Seventy-third and Seventy-fourth Congresses, they suggested, may have contributed to his present plight.

If Zioncheck is found by a jury to be of unsound mind he will be transferred from Gallinger Hospital to St. Elizabeths Hospital for the Insane.

The District Commissioners yesterday decided to hale Zioncheck into lunacy court after receiving a report from psychiatrists who have been studying the Washington statesman.

In their petition to the court, they said:

"One Marion A. Zioncheck, who is believed to be insane or of unsound mind, has been apprehended and is now detained at the Gallinger Municipal Hospital, pending a formal inquiry into his mental condition.

"The said Marion A. Zioncheck is represented to your petitioner and by them believed to be an insane person with homicidal or otherwise dangerous tendencies, without suffi-

Snake-Bite Murder Figure Pleads Guilty

Los Angeles, June 19 (AP).—Charles Hope, on whose story Robert S. James is accused of the rattlesnake-bathtub killing of his last wife, Mary, pleaded guilty today to first degree murder charges.

Sentencing was set for July 10.

Deputy Public Defender E. E. Cuff said Hope would be a prosecution witness when trial of the six times married James starts Monday.

Hope, claiming he was hypnotized by James, has told district attorney's office investigators that he aided James in obtaining rattlesnakes used to bite Mrs. James. When these failed to kill her, said Hope, she was drowned.

Bush, Terminal Head, Reveals Offer of 'Bribe' in Bond Case

Bondholders' Committee of Firm Sought to Clear Path for Changes He Opposed, He Tells House Unit; 'Trickery' in D. C. Cases Assailed.

Irving T. Bush, president of the gigantic Bush Terminal Co., of Brooklyn, yesterday told the Sabath investigation committee of the House that he had been offered $25,000 a year for life to "stop protecting bondholders" and step out of the way of a proposed reorganization plan.

"They told me I could live anywhere I wanted, for instance, Florida," Bush told the committee. "I told them to go farther South.

The company president told the investigators that the offer came from a protective committee for stockholders of the Bush Terminal Buildings Co., a subsidiary whose securities had been backed by the Bush Terminal Co.

Yesterday the committee, which is headed by Representative Sabath (Democrat), of Illinois, recommended to the House legislation for Government supervision of "so-called bondholder's protective committees." A bill by Sabath has been approved to by the House Judiciary Committee. It would make the Comptroller of the Currency a "conservator" to act as friend of bondholders.

Committee Accused.

In the Bush Terminal investigation Milton Gladstone had accused a protective committe headed by Charles E. Bedford of preventing reorganization and of jeopardizing the rights of security holders in an attempt to get hold of the parent company.

Referring to the $25,000 a year, Gladstone asked Bush, "Did you consider that offer a bribe?"

"I don't like to use ugly words," said Bush, "but it certainly was an attempt to get me out of the way."

In its report to the House the committee had stated:

"The committee finds many investment and mortgage bankers are responsible for unloading dishonest securities on the public, and it is they who are now the chief factors in this racket by which most of these 5,000,000 people are being defrauded of their investments by so-called reorganizations which they foist upon their victimized investors.

"Bonholders' rights dominated by usurped powers of protective committees are bartered away for a few cents on the dollar."

In the remainder of Bush's testimony he said:

"It was understood that I was to agree to their plan of reorganization. I said I was in the fight for the protection of stockholders and that as soon as the company was put back on its feet I wanted to get out."

Bedford Defended.

In defense of the Bedford committee, Joseph A. Bennett, its counsel, said Bedford was retired and his only reason for heading the committee was that his family had a $2,000,000 investment in the building's company.

Bush said he was interested primarily in safeguarding the holdings of persons who invested in his firm because of confidence in him. He said he believes that under "any kind of intelligent management" the Terminal Co. can be rebuilt and that he would "work for nothing to bring this about."

The committee decided that it would question Bedford about Bush's charges.

Charges that many abuses have occurred in the attempted reorganizations of Washington realty properties were made in the report of the Sabath committee.

Declaring the committee found conditions in Washington similar to those in other cities, the report added:

"The appointment of three trustees and three receivers, in addition to the creation of many bondholders' protective committees, and

Four Others and Operator of Craft Saved; Parents Unable to Aid.

By the Associated Press.

Marion, Me., June 19.—Twelve carefree children, happy as they celebrated the last day of school, drowned in Lake Gardner here today when a sudden gust of wind capsized the outboard motorboat in which they were riding.

Four of their companions and Calvin London, operator of the boat, were saved. All came from nearby Lubec.

The drowned children, whose ages ranged from 9 to 14 years, were: Daniel McCurdy, Evelyn and Aaron Mahar, Ramah Knowles, Frank Reynolds, Roland Eaton, Doris Small, Glen Morey, Christine Sleight, Merle Lewis, jr., Jerome Kinney and Verne Dinsmore.

Swims 100 Yards to Shore.

The Wilcox and Kelley girls kept themselves afloat by thrashing about furiously until rescuers arrived. The Tyler girl swam 100 yards, to shore.

The children were members of a picnic party from the West Lubec section.

Beverley McCarthy, 12, whose mother told her not to go out in a boat, was among those who witnessed the tragedy.

She said that as the craft moved outside of a peninsula protecting the picnic beach it was struck broadside by a gust of wind. Simultaneously, she said, two of the boys were playing in the stern, unmindful of danger. As other boys moved to the back of the boat, apparently to separate the scuffling couple, the stern went under water.

Thrown Into Lake.

Then, the child related, the wind seemed to heave the bow up from the water and the children and London were thrown into the lake.

Consternation swept over the children wading on the shore, who with teachers and parents were helpless to assist.

There were more than 100 in the picnic party. The teachers were Loraine Ramsdell, Ruth Small, Stella Burhoe and Eileen Mulholland.

Miss Burhoe, stripping herself of her outer clothing, plunged into the water and saved the Kelley girl. Not a boat could be found

4 Dead, 9 Missing As Building Falls

New York, June 19 (AP).—Police reported four dead and nine unaccounted for tonight after the collapse of part of an eight-story apartment house under construction in the Bronx.

Only one body was recovered from the tangled wreckage after several hours of effort, but three other bodies were seen by a doctor who pronounced the men dead.

Eleven other workers were injured, several critically and a tentative check of the number engaged on the job at the time of the accident indicated that nine were missing.

Gaetano Lanzafand, 65, was the workman whose body was first removed.

Joseph Vansagion, of Pleasantville, N. Y., and Vincent di Stefano, 24, of the Bronx, were released from situations so precarious that the last rites of the Catholic Church were administered to them while they still were in the wreckage.

Hypodermic injections had been given to ease their pain while their screams spurred on the scores of police, firemen and ambulance surgeans on the scene.

France Told Cash Supply Is Exhausted

Deputies Learn Nation's Treasury Is Empty; Bonds Planned.

Finance Minister Says Power Now Lacking to Seek Loans.

By the United Press.

Paris, June 19.—Finance Minister Vincent Auriol told the Chamber of Deputies today that the French treasury is empty, that this year's authorized borrowing has been exhausted and that 14,000,000,000 francs ($292,600,000) in disguised inflation already has been carried out.

Auriol revealed that "baby bonds" will be issued shortly, similar to the current United States issue. Meantime the government will be forced to make an overdraft on the Bank of France for current expenses, he said.

Government requirements alone between now and December will total $527,200,000. Continuing to paint a dark picture for national French finances, Auriol said France must repay a $197,700,000 British loan. This is in addition to government requirements for the last six months of this year.

Bill Passed.

The Chamber of Deputies, by 340 to 208, passed a bill authorizing the treasury to increase its present account with the Bank of France from 3,000,000,000 francs to 13,000,000,000 francs, giving the government a 10,000,000,000-franc "safety margin" pending big short term loans which will be floated. The bill now goes to the Senate.

The treasury in 1936 was authorized to borrow $1,501,000,000 of which all but $55,356,000 has been borrowed, he said. Of this amount, $922,500,000 was advanced by the Bank of France.

"I am not afraid to say that the assumption of these bonds by banks and rediscounts constitutes fiction," Auriol said, meaning that this is tantamount to disguised inflation.

In addition to the government's own difficulties, the treasury may have to advance railroads between $263,600,000 and $329,500,000, bringin gthe total needs to $988,500,000 at a time when the present borrowing power is exhausted.

Outlines Program.

Devaluation of the franc will not solve the nation's economic problems and France must be on her guard against such a campaign, Auriol said. He outlined the following five-point program as a possible solution:

1. Legislation calling for declarations on all holdings abroad by July 15, under severe penalty, including confiscation of property and loss of civil rights in extreme cases.
2. Issuance of "baby bonds" with an overdraft on the Bank of France to carry the treasury until the bonds are taken up.
3. Reorganization of the Bank of France to place it under direct control of the state, and reorganization of all banking generally to rationalize the credit system.
4. Lowering of interest rates.
5. Revision and simplification of the tax system.

Auriol's statement was the first clear cut declaration of what the Popular Front government will do to solve the economic problems which have resulted in gold stocks of the Bank of France falling to the lowest level since 1931.

Paul Reynaud, proponent of devaluation, warned Auriol that "you cannot carry out your program of heavy expenses and maintain the franc."

Hammer Fractures District Boy's Skull; Stepfather, 70, Held

A 70-year-old man was held by police and charged with assault with a deadly weapon late last night after he had struck his stepson on the head with a hammer. The blow fractured the boy's skull.

Donald Wilson, 8, of the 1600-block of D street northeast, the victim, wanted to see his mother, Mrs. Harry Z. Hayes, police said.

He started upstairs, and Hayes asked him where he was going, according to the police report.

"Don't go up there. It isn't necessary," police quoted Hayes, an electrician at the District Courthouse, as saying.

"I'm tired, and I guess I'll go up anyhow. I'm sleepy," the police quoted the boy.

As he started upstairs Hayes struck the child. Physicians at Casualty Hospital said his condition was serious.

Sprinkling Truck Kills Boy at Play

Robert Scott, 9, was killed late yesterday when struck by an Arlington County road truck within sight of his home in Mulhall, an Arlington residential subdivision.

The son of Robert D. Scott, 905 North Greenbrier street, Mulhall, Robert fell under the rear wheels of the heavy truck, which was sprinkling North Jefferson street. Witnesses said the driver, Walter Davis, had warned the boy and his playmates away only a few seconds before the accident occurred.

Dr. W. C. Welburn, coroner, issued a certificate of accidental death absolving Davis, who lives in Ballston. John Davis, a helper, also was aboard the truck at the time.

House Passes Tax Bill; Senate in Night Drive To Reach Vote Accord

Black in Filibuster as Revised Subsidy Bill Loses in House.

Merit Postmaster System Defeated

Lower Chamber Votes Pure Foods, Federal Contract Measures.

By Sidney Olson.

Caught in a merry-go-round whirl of confusion, filibusters and last-minute hysteria, the Congress of the United States wearily and frantically stumbled over one high hurdle after another all day yesterday and far into the night in the hectic obstacle race toward adjournment by tonight.

At an early hour today the situation was this:

The House had adjourned after passing the report of the House-Senate conferees on the tax bill. It had refused, during an uproarious session, when at times members couldn't hear each other for the general din, to suspend the rules in order to pass the Senate-rewritten ship subsidy bill, despite personal word from President Roosevelt in favor of the bill. With a two-thirds vote required, the motion obtained only 118 votes against 83.

The Senate, after a day that reminded reporters of Alice's Adventures in Wonderland, took one step toward adjournment and two steps back all day to find itself eventually struggling with the maimed and bruised tax bill this morning. The day had seen a threatened filibuster by Senator Borah if the Guffey-Vinson coal bill were considered; an actual filibuster for several hours by Senators Black, King, Lewis, Bilbo, Schwellenbach and Clark against the vital Treasury-Post Office appropriations bill, and a sharp series of parliamentary moves by the Administration in an effort to force action.

These actions were recorded in the eventful day:

1. The Senate passed the new ship subsidy bill, which carries stern regulatory measures, and sent it to conference with the House.
2. The House passed the much-amended food and drug bill, placing food, drug and cosmetic advertising under Federal Trade Commission control, and sent it to conference.
3. After a bitter battle, the House defeated a bill to put first, second and third class postmasters under civil service.
4. The House passed the Walsh-Healey Government contract bill, imposing minimum wage, maximum hour codes on industries selling to the Government. The bill went to conference.
5. The House adopted a conference report on a bill to increase the Army Air Force by 2,300 planes, and the measure went to the White House.
6. The House passed and sent to the White House a bill making it a felony to transport professional strikebreakers across State lines to interfere with peaceful picketing.
7. President Roosevelt abandoned week-end criuse plans to stay for adjournment bill-signing.
8. The House passed a Senate bill authorizing development of a naval air station at Alameda in San Francisco Bay by a 171-123 vote, with cost limited to $15,000,000, and sent to conference.

Despite bitter floor fights in both Houses, each chamber mysteriously emptied at one point during the night. Representative Pehr Holmes (Republican), Mass., called for a quorum when he found his audience had dwindled to a half dozen, but before the call was completed the doors surged open and 200 members poured back into the chamber shouting "Schmeling won the fight!"

The long filibuster of Black and his colleagues ended when word came that the House had adjourned, refusing to pass the ship subsidy bill. Then as gray hairs literally seemed to sprout on the head of the majority leader, Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, his efforts to jam the tax bill through swiftly failed; chances of passage of the Guffey substitute act faded, and the Treasury-Postoffice appropriation bill was pushed back.

The situation was this:

Black, Bilbo and other Senators interested in the ship subsidy bill which passed without a record vote during the morning, objected to the

Coughlin Backs Lemke in Race For Presidency

'Union Party' to Be Name of New Group; 'Slavery' Declared Issue.

By the Associated Press.

Formation of a new political party with Representative William Lemke, North Dakota Republican, as it Presidential candidate was followed closely last night by announcement of support from Father Charles E. Coughlin, head of the National Union for Social Justice.

Lemke, making his announcement in a formal statement, said the new organization had been designated the "Union Party of the United States."

Thomas Charles O'Brien, former district attorney in Boston, was designated Lemke's running mate.

Standing on a 15-point platform, described as intended to "save democracy and put a permanent end to the so-called depression," the North Dakotan announced his drive was against the "reactionary elements of both the old parties."

"The issue is slavery—economic slavery," Lemke said.

Father Coughlin, in a prepared radio address at New York, predicted the new party would receive support from "agriculture, labor, disappointed Republicans and outraged Democrats, independent merchants and industrialists."

In Chicago, Dr. Francis E. Townsend said the Townsend convention in July at Cleveland would consider and decide whether his old-age pension movement would support Lemke.

The chairmen of both the Democratic and Republican National Committees had little to say.

John D. M. Hamilton, the new Republican chieftain, was resting up for a speech-making whirl, and declined immediate comment.

At Madison, Wis., Gov. Philip La Follette, Progressive Party leader in Wisconsin, told newsmen he would not have anything to say until after the conference of Progressives announced this week by his brother, Senator Robert La Follette, jr., for some still undetermined date after next week's Democratic National Convention.

Capitol Hill authorities said they knew of no reason why the new party could not file in every State since its was not interested in primary elections and would simply have to comply with State laws regarding petitions and similar requirements.

Major points in Lemke's platform included the retirement of all Federal interest-bearing obligations and the refinancing of all farm and home mortgages by the use of the Government's "money and credit," a limitation on the size of individual incomes and inheritances, and the control and decentralization of monopolies.

Lemke made his announcement in a statement saying:

"I have accepted the challenge of the reactionary element of both of

Guffey, Byrd Fight Plans of Leaders

$785,000,000 Measure Adopted in Hour by Representatives.

By Robert C. Albright.

A weary Senate early this morning headed into what looked like an all-night session on the bufeted tax bill after repeated failures to get an agreement to vote today.

Three Senate blocs and one determined filibuster figured in the eleventh-hour Senate snag, after a noisy House in less than an hour had rushed the tax bill to passage by a 221-to-98 vote.

The Senate, in desperation, had laid aside all legislation but the highly controverted tax bill. There, as the hour approached midnight, it ran into a new jam.

Bedraggled and exhausted, Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson made a futile effort to recess the Senate and vote on the tax bill at 3 p. m. today. Senator Joseph Guffey, of Pennsylvania, who feared such an understanding might destroy the chances of his coal bill, objected.

A half hour later, Robinson tried again. This time he proposed an agreement to vote on the tax bill at 2 p. m. today, and assured friends of the Guffey bill this understanding would in no way impair their opportunities to call up the coal measure.

Byrd Objects.

Here Senator Harry T. F. Byrd, of Virginia, who is vehemently opposed to the tax conference compromise, and said he was determined it should not be "railroaded" to passage, objected.

"Is it an all-night session?" he was asked.

"It looks like it," he said.

Late in the evening Senator Bennett C. Clark, of Missouri, who is fighting ocean mail subsidies in the Treasury-Postoffice bill, had served notice he would "speak to the limit of my endurance" until the House passed, under a special rule, the ship subsidy legislation it had turned down flatly last night. Clark suspended his filibuster to allow the tax bill to come up, but said he will resume today.

As the hour passed midnight, Senator David I Walsh, of Massachusetts, was reading a minority report submitted against the tax compromise by himself and Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia. It was one of half dozen outbursts against the tax compromise delivered yesterday by Senate Democratic conservatives, House Republicans and the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Treadway Objects.

Leading the minority opposition, Representative Allen T. Treadway (Republican), of Massachusetts, made much of this point. Shouted his denunciation over the loud remonstrances of Chairman Robert L. Doughton, of the House Ways and Means Committee, Treadway charged the Democrats "have more anxiety to get to Philadelphia than they do to write an equitable tax bill."

"Only two men know what's in this tax bill, Mr. Parker and Mr. Beaman (committee tax advisers)," Treadway cried. "You gave a blank check to your experts to write a bill for you."

So turbulent became the debate

Transit Lines Ask Higher Fare And Abolition of Weekly Pass

Approval of an increase in street car fares was sought from the Public Utilities Commission yesterday by the Capital Transit Co.

Aware of this move, People's Counsel William A. Roberts last night called a mass meeting of organized citizens of Washington for 8 p. m., June 27, in the board room of the District Building, to battle the proposed hike in fares and take up matters involving other utilities.

Application of the transit company brought forth immediate criticism from Roberts, who said that increased fares would work hardships on bus riders, car riders, and the company.

The P. U. C. was asked to approve a 10 cent cash fare; a token rate of three for 25 cents, instead of the present four for 30 cents; abolition of the $1 weekly pass; removal of all transfer charges and substitution of free transfers between all bus and car lines.

Present 5-cent fares on the loop lines serving the Bureau of Standards and the Chevy Chase and the Bureau of Engraving neighborhoods would be excepted. Neither would the Chevy Chase coach nor the Hains Point lines be affected. A public hearing on the proposal probably will not be held before

D. C. Scientists Study New Star Discovered by Ohio Draftsman

Telescopes at the Naval and Georgetown College observatories and the leading observatories of the world, last night were trained on a new star, Nova Delta Cephei, discovered only a scant 24 hours before, far off in the outer rim of space.

The new Nova is one of the rarest shows Mother Earth has witnessed since time began. It is in reality the product of a star explosion that happened when the pyramids were new, long before the Three Wise Men and the shepherds saw the Star of Bethlehem.

Credit for the discovery of the stellar phenomenon goes to a free lance astronomer, of Delphos, Ohio, draftsman by day and scientific star gazer by night, according to Associated Press dispatches.

He is Leslie C. Peltier, who found the bright star in the Milky Way, and sent giant lenses everywhere swinging into interstellar space.

To the naked eye, the star can be seen in the early morning directly overhead. Peltier, the Associated Press said, was first to report the discovery to Harvard University.

The finding of the 38-year-old former farmer and one-time garage mechanic immediately was confirmed.

Millions Paid Firms by AAA, Report Shows

Banks, Surety Companies, Even Prisons Revealed as Beneficiaries.

Millions of dollars of benefit payments handed out by the Government under the AAA went to great corporations, life insurance companies, banks, large-scale planters, and even to four State penitentiaries, a study of the report sent by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace to the Senate yesterday revealed.

The report was made in answer to a Senate request, inspired by a resolution introduced by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan. Vandenberg began hammering at the Department of Agriculture early in the session for the names of farmers receiving more than $10,000 in benefit payments.

The present report, released in detail to the Senate, and in part to the press, is the result of more than three months' work in the Department of Agriculture files.

As Senator Vandenberg charged it would, the report shows that vast sums of money went to corporations and banks, while the average payments to farmers in general were quite small.

$38,460,000 Paid.

In the three-year period $38,460,000 was paid to a shifting group of slightly less than 300 producers, each of whom received more than $10,000 a year under the old AAA. In some cases the amounts paid single producers to cut down production in the adjustment program reached enormous totals, as for instance, the Hawaiian Commercial & Sugar Co., which was paid $1,022,037 in two years.

The total in all benefits paid out by the AAA reached $1,171,069,967, the figures showed.

On this continent the largest recipient of AAA checks, as revealed in The Post in April, was the United States Sugar Corporation of Florida, which headed the list with total payments of $785,038.

The largest cotton benefit checks, as outlined in The Post during March, went to the R. E. Lee Wilson plantation in Crittenden County, Ark., which received $392,702, and to the Delta and Pine Land Co., of Mississippi, which received $318,287.

Oscar W. Johnston, manager of this company, which is British-owned, is also manager of the AAA cotton pool.

Attacked by Union.

The Lee Wilson company is the one charged with unfair practices by the Southern Tenant Farmers Union, which has repeatedly alleged that the Wilson plantation changed in 1934 from the share-cropping system to a day-labor basis, throwing hundreds of families on relief, and then rehiring workers from relief rolls at 75 per day averaging 14 hours of work.

The four State penal institutions receiving benefits were:

The Arkansas Board of Penal Institutions, which received $33,520 in 1933 in cotton benefits; the Louisiana State Penitentiary, which took in $146,124 for 1934 in cutting down sugar cane production; the Mississippi State Pentitentiary, which drew $155,056 for three years of cotton benefits, and the Texas Prison System, which garnered $57,924 in 1933 cotton payments.

Large cotton payments included $80,000 in 1933 to Banks & Danner, Crittenden County, Ark.; $99,137 to the Tillar Mercantile Co., of Drew County, Ark., and the Chapman Ranch, in Texas, $189,985.

The largest corn-hog payment went not to Iowa, but to California, to the Fontana Farms, of San Bernardino County, a check of $155,575. Other large corn-hog payments included $48,752 to the Jersey Feed Farms, of New Jersey, and the Riddle Contracting Co., Inc., of New Jersey, received $14,720.

Wheat Payments.

Large wheat payments included the checks for a total of $51,066 to the Campbell Farming Corporation of Montana. This is the farm which Thomas D. Campbell, famous wheat producer, leases from an Indian reservation in that State. The Sutter Basin Corporation, Ltd., and the Sutter Improvement Co. of California received a total of $134,834 in wheat checks.

The Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association in California, receiving $47,537, and James Irvine of Fresno County, Calif., were other large wheat benefit recipients, the latter getting $47,049.

Second on the sugar list was the Oahu Sugar Corporation of Hawaii, with $904,562, and other large checks in a long list of enormous payments to Hawaii, included those of $815,409 to the Lihue Plantation Co., Ewa Plantation Co., $751,843, and the Wailua Agricultural Co., Ltd., $740,095.

Puerto Rican Payments.

For Puerto Rican sugar reductions, the National City Bank of New York received $705,481; the Eastern Sugar Associates, $278,810, and the Bank of Nova Scotia, $478,925.

Vast amounts of money apparently flowing to Puerto Rican sugar producers actually went to New York banks and life insurance companies, studies of the directorates of the companies showed. However, there are so many conflicting set-ups and crossing lines of influence that only the detailed report sent to the Senate could reveal the extent of this accurately. Many of the ownerships are masked through all sorts of dummy methods, according to veteran observers in this field.

An appendix to the report, however, revealed some of the extent of the agricultural holdings of organizations generally considered urban corporations. For instance, the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co., of Newark, N. J., received much more than $10,000 in payments from over 4,000 farms it owns. The Metropolitan Life, John Hancock, Prudential, Northwestern Mutual, Travelers, Equitable Life and Aetna were other large recipients.

Spotty G. O. P. Platform Gives Landon an 'Out' If He Refuses to Abide by It.

By Franklyn Waltman

DURING the political lull between the Republican and Democratic National conventions the Republican platform has been rather generally analyzed and dissected by political writers and commentators who find nothing exciting in the forthcoming Democratic meeting to demand their attention.

WALTMAN.

The view is rather generally held in this group that the Republican platform is a spotty document. Parts of it are good, very good. But other planks are weasel-worded and meaningless. There is no doubt that, due to the compromises which the Landon forces made in order to avoid a floor fight, the Republican platform is marked by contradictions and inconsistencies.

The contention has been made that, if elected, it would be impossible for Gov. Alf M. Landon to carry out that platform 100 per cent. That contention undoubtedly is true. But it is likewise clear that Gov. Landon will project his own platform in the speeches he makes from now until November—and few will bother about the document perfunctorily adopted at Cleveland.

Gov. Landon courageously gave notice to the convention before it nominated him that he would place his own interpretation on the planks of its platform and he proceeded forthwith to state his views on three planks. This he can do without repudiating the Cleveland document, because, except in a few cases, the planks lend themselves to various interpretations.

The most challenging statement made during this week of platform discussion, however, is that by adopting, on the whole, a wishy-washy platform and forcing Gov. Landon to make his own interpretations of that document, the Republicans have thrown overboard all right to criticize President Roosevelt for his failure to keep the platform promises his party made in 1932 and to which he pledged 100 per cent adherence.

This is not logical reasoning, and, of course, the Republican orators are not going to be deterred for one minute from castigating on all occasions President Roosevelt as a breaker of promises and as one who flouted his party's pledges.

And they are justified in doing so. Mr. Roosevelt accepted the Democratic platform as it was adopted by the convention—and it was a good platform, too. He gave no notice that it was subject to his personal interpretation, either before or after his nomination, as Gov. Landon did.

But Mr. Roosevelt did more than that. He reiterated the promises of that platform during his campaign even more strongly than did the document adopted by the convention. At no time did he intimate, much less say, that his views differed from those in the platform.

If he had mental reservations regarding any of those planks, he kept them secret to himself. Until the day he was elected and even until the day he was inaugurated, as far as the public knew, Mr. Roosevelt gloried in the platform promises of his party's national convention.

Just as an example: President Roosevelt, in his Pittsburgh speech on October 19, 1932, more emphatically committed himself to a reduction of Federal expenses and a balancing of the budget than did his platform.

"I regard reduction in Federal spending as one of the most important issues of this campaign," said Mr. Roosevelt on that occasion. "In my opinion, it is the most direct and effective contribution that government can make to business."

He assailed the increase in Federal expenditures, exclusive of debt service, from $2,187,000,000 in 1927 to $3,168,000,000 in 1931 as "the most reckless and extravagant pace I have been able to discover in the statistical record of any peace-time government, anywhere, any time."

Certainly the country had the right to expect that a man who used language as strong as that would not propose expenditures double the sum which he so strongly condemned.

When President Roosevelt several weeks later—on the eve of the election—publicly eulogized Senator Carter Glass for the withering attack he made on the fiscal and monetary policies of the Hoover administration—when Mr. Roosevelt termed the Virginian's address as one of the finest campaign addresses he had ever read—the country certainly was led to believe that the Democratic nominee was in full accord with the Glass ideas as to what constituted a "sound currency."

Certainly it was given no hint that within another 18 months Mr. Roosevelt would assume the leadership of a currency inflationary bloc intent on monetary tinkering filled with dangerous aspects. The country was not given a hint of what was to come until Senator Glass, unable to obtain assurances of monetary soundness out of Mr. Roosevelt in February, 1933, refused to accept the Treasury portfolio. But Mr. Roosevelt had been elected four months previously.

The difference between the Democratic situation in 1932 and that of the Republicans in 1936 is this: Mr. Roosevelt gave no indication that he differed with his party platform until after his election. Gov. Landon, however, already has made modifications in his party's platform and before the votes are cast in November no doubt will take the opportunity that he has created for himself further to interpret and modify that platform as he sees fit.

Higher Transit Fares Asked

the middle of September, Riley E. Elgen, P. U. C. chairman, said.

Demand for the increase was based on two grounds, first that the company is not earning a fair return on its rate base valuation; second, that the present varied fares and transfer privileges are confusing and disagreeable to the public.

See $431,000 More.

E. D. Merrill, vice president and general manager, who signed the formal petition, estimated the additional revenue would be $431,00 a year. This, he said, was "about 4 per cent of the present revenues and it will, therefore, readily be seen that the increase will be practically negligible to the riding public."

The proposed increase, Roberts said in a memorandum filed with the commission, would "result in a reduction of both gross and net revenue and in the increased use of competitive forms of transportation. He added:

"Any such increase under present economic conditions, when large numbers of persons are unemployed and are supported by relief agencies, will result in unreasonable hardship to the traveling public."

Attacks Proposed.

"The Public Utilities Commission of the District of Columbia has repeatedly found and held that the only salvation of the mass transportation system in the District of Columbia was through the increase in riding to be attracted by low rates of fare and that increases in the rates of fare have not been in the economic interest of the mass transportation companies or of the public."

Since present fares were fixed, Merrill told the commission, "wages have increased and general costs of operation have greatly increased, important changes in routing have taken place—large sums of money have been required and expended for track changes and investment in street cars and buses, etc.

"This increase means about $1,881,000 per year in operating expenses and taves for a 12 months' period ending April 30, 1936.

"One important purpose of the company in asking for this increase to equalize the fares paid by passengers of the company's lines."

The fare increase proposal was criticized by two members of the House.

Mrs. Mary T. Norton, chairman of the House District Committee, who was active in pushing legislation which resulted in merger of the transit companies, said:

"I should regret very much ever having anything to do with the merger legislation if the Capital Transit Co. tries to take advantage of the absence of Congress to force higher rates.

"The company would do better to devote its efforts to improving its service rather than in seeking higher fares. The District Committee in the next Congress will certainly determine whether the petition of the transit company offered in the closing days of the Seventy-fourth Congress was premeditated."

"Unwise," Says Hull.

Said Representative Hull (Progressive), of Wisconsin:

"The company would be unwise to attempt to increase fares before offering the public better service. It seems to me if the company would speed up service and install better equipment it would attract so many additional passengers that higher fares would not be necessary."

2 Houses Rush Work in Drive To End Session

Black Leads Filibuster on Ship Fund After Subsidy Passage.

provision in the Treasury-Postoffice bill carrying a $26,500,000 appropriation for the ocean mail contracts.

They contended this would carry on the "old system" of subsidy without regulation. While the Senate-approved bill was before the House, therefore, they stalled for time by making long speeches on other matters, securing help of Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, who made a speech on foreign affairs, and of Senator J. Hamilton Lewis (Democrat), Illinois, who made a long speech on the noncollection of the war debts. The fear of the filibusters was that if the House heard that the Senate had passed the Treasury postoffice appropriation bill it would drop efforts to agree and would let the matter stand "to the utter satisfaction of the hordes of lobbyists here," said Senator Black.

Thus the Senate session droned on, subsiding after considerable early excitement, when Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, indirectly promised a filibuster if the Guffey-Vinson coal bill, substitute for the outlawed Guffey act, was brought up.

Borah avowed intense opposition to the measure, asserting that it would "establish machinery for the fixing of prices" and that therefore it was more important than any measure brought up in the Senate over a long period.

He warned that if Congress fixed the price of coal it must prepare to fix the price of oil, gas and other substitutes. He said:

"Unless you do, it will work to the detriment of coal and not to its benefit, and to the detriment of coal labor, and not to its benefit."

(The substitute Guffey bill, already passed by the House, would re-enact into law the price-fixing provisions of the original Guffey law which the Supreme Court invalidated on the basis of its labor provisions. A 15 per cent tax would be levied, with 13½ per cent returned to producers complying with the marketing provisions of the bill.)

Adjournment Due Tonight.

This mild threat of a filibuster, backed up with the tax bill tangle and the ship subsidy bill situation, snarled the entire legislative process, but leaders still saw no reason to doubt adjournment tonight. The problem rested in the determination of leaders to force through as much legislation as possible before the quitting whistle blows, which probably will not be until very late tonight, from the present outlook.

After the speeches by Senators Bilbo and King yesterday afternoon, pink-haired, white-whiskered Senator J. "Ham" Lewis took the floor for a long scholarly discussion, lightened with mild sarcasm, of the lack of war debt payments. He drove hard at the Hoover moratorium, suggesting that foreign governments were at the time assured they would not be really pressed for payment.

Tydings Agrees.

In this discussion he was aided by Senator Millard Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, who broke in at intervals to laud the reciprocal trade agreements negotiated by the Administration, and who remarked of the war debts situation:

"We now have international acrimony instead of international alimony."

Lewis swiftly added:

"Indeed, the marriage was a most unfortunate one."

Hope for Vote On Housing Bill Seems Doomed

House Unit Declines Report on Plan for Low-Cost Federal Projects.

Chances for enactment of the Wagner-Ellenbogen low-cost housing bill during the present session of Congress faded yesterday when the House Banking and Currency Committee declined to report the bill out for consideration. The committee met for its last regularly scheduled meeting yesterday, and unless Chairman Steagall (Democrat), of Alabama, is prevailed upon to call a special sitting, the bill is doomed.

Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), of New York, and Representative Henry Ellenbogen (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, authors of the bill, refused to give up hope, however.

"There is still a bare chance that the Housing bill will be considered by the House before adjournment," Senator Wagner said. "I refuse to believe it will be killed in committee."

Representative Ellenbogen spent most of the day conferring with members of the Banking and Currency Committee in an effort to obtain committee action. "The situation seems hopeless," he said, "but you never can tell what may happen just before adjournment."

The Senate has already passed the bill. It would set up an organization to be known as the United States Housing Authority to construct low-cost houses and apartments in slum areas. An appropriation of $10,000,000 would be authorized for the first year, and the authority would have the power to issue bonds backed by the credit of the United States to the extent of $150,000,000 during 1936. Similar issues could be brought out in 1937 and 1938. Before passing the bill, the Senate deleted sections authorizing appropriations of $75,000,000 for 1936, and appropriations of $100,000,000 for the two ensuing years. It confined the appropriation from the Treasury to $10,000,000.

President Roosevelt is said to be actively supporting the measure, but Representative Ellenbogen declared he would not be asked to intervene in the committee deadlock for fear the President would be accused of "dictating" to Congress.

Pleasure Craft, Sinking at Pier, Brings Inquiry

U. S. Investigates; Boat Hit Rock, Sped to Shore as 1,400 Danced.

By The Associated Press.

Detroit, June 19.—Two Federal agencies began investigations today into the sinking of the 35-year-old excursion steamer Tashmoo at a Canadian dock after 1,400 passengers and a crew of 120 were put off safely in an emergency landing last night.

The three-deck Tashmoo, one of the best-known excursion boats on the Great Lakes, raced death and disaster to a dock near Amherstburg, Ontario, when water gushed through a gaping hole in her bottrock in a 14-foot Detroit River channel.

Passengers, many of them unaware of the accident, danced to the tunes of a colored string band as the engine room's "black gang" worked grimly in waist-deep water to stoke the boilers of the steam pumps.

The boat, on a moonlight cruise, was about 18 miles down river when the accident occurred.

Inquiries and inspections of the 306-foot vessel, now resting half submerged in 18 foot of water, were begun by the United States Army district engineer's office and the United States Bureau of Navigation.

The boat docked at 11:45 p. m., ten minutes after the impact, but the crowd—without fear of the danger—refused to start leaving the boat for 45 minutes, and the band continued to play for the dancers. A half-hour after the crew left, the vessel foundered.

Lorne Heipel, a cabin watchman, commented:

"I never saw passengers like them. They didn't seem to care whether the boat sank or not, so long as there was music."

Capt. Donald McAlpine, a veteran of 30 years on the Lakes, blamed a dredging crew for the mishap.

Merit System For Postal Jobs Loses in House

Civil Service Proposal for Postmasters Beaten by Two-Party Bloc.

By James D. Secrest.

Southern Democrats from sections where a postmaster appointment is big patronage joined with a majority of Republicans yesterday to block passage in the House of a bill to place first, second and third-class postmasters under civil service.

Although denied a special rule, Representative Ramspeck, chairman of the Civil Service Committee, called up the measure, introduced by himself and reported favorably by the committee, under suspension of rules, which requires two-thirds of votes cast for adoption.

The vote on a roll call was 204 for to 112 against, just a few short of the necessary two-thirds. A previous division vote of 132 to 63 had been favorable, and Speaker Bankhead had overruled a point of no quorum.

Then Minority Leader Snell asked for a roll call vote, and sponsors of the measure readily agreed, believing that it would be favorable. Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, author of similar legislation in the Senate, joined Ramspeck on the floor to await the outcome.

Second Defeat.

It was the second time within a week that Ramspeck had been turned down by his colleagues in a move to extend the civil service as an answer to critics of the Administration that it had wrecked the merit system.

Representative Lehlbach (Republican), of New Jersey, had objected to a bill on the consent calendar, to extend the civil service to all executive branches of the Federal Government.

Ramspeck challenged the Republicans to support the postmaster bill, reminding them of the merit-system plank in the Republican platform.

"If you don't vote for this bill," he said, "don't talk to us any more about broken platform pledges."

About 25 Republicans joined him in voting for the bill, but fifty-odd voted no.

The chief objection voiced by the Republicans to the measure was that it would freeze present postmasters into their jobs and would extend the hold of Postmaster General James A. Farley over them because of the noncompetitive examination provision.

Ramspeck insisted that a bill with a competitive test proviso wouldn't have a chance and that his measure was the best obtainable under the circumstances.

"It will rid the Postoffice Department of the spoils system," he said, "and that's what all decent people want."

Rogers Objects.

Representative Rogers (Republican), of Massachusetts, said she had been working for years to have adopted a similar bill with a requirement for competitive examinations and that the Ramspeck measure was not acceptable.

Farley was referred to as "Three-in-One Political Oil Farley" by Representative Treadway (Republican), of Massachusetts, in an attack on the bill.

"Patronage is the curse of legislators," observed Representative Disney (Democrat), of Oklahoma, who had just been appointed a member of the Board of Tax Appeals. "We are unable to devote the time we should to legislative matters because we have become glorified messengers for job hunters."

The measure was praised as "the best civil service bill in 40 years" by Representative Mead, chairman of the Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads.

Representative Cox (Democrat), of Georgia, refused to accept the legislation as an Administration measure, despite the President's approval, and urged Republicans not to make it a party issue.

Defense Plan Given Filipinos By MacArthur

By the Associated Press.

Manila, Philippines Commonwealth, June 19.—Maj. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, former United States Chief of Staff, gave this young commonwealth a defense plan today "to give pause to the most ruthless and powerful."

Gen. MacArthur, principal military adviser to the Prilippine govtary adviser to the Philippine govcal set-up for "an active and carefully planned defense of every foot of shore line in the inhabited islands of the Archipelago."

It envisages an expenditure of $80,000,000 during the first ten years of its operation, to be appropriated in yearly installments of $8,000,000. The Philippines will obtain complete independence within that period.

Principally, the plan embraces a fleet of small and fast torpedo boats for coastal defense, an air corps based mainly on fast bombers, and a regular army and reserve corps.

6,500 Army Men.

Ultimate strength of the regular army will be about 930 officers and 6,500 men, the general said. The reserve corps is to be trained under "universal military service," in schools and out, at the rate of 40,000 a year.

After his report had been transmitted to the National Assembly, President Manuel Quezon appointed Gen. MacArthur field marshal of the Philippine army.

The general, in his report, asserted the plan "completely negatives any possibility of employing the army in aggressive action and makes no attempt to attain a more militaristic objective than the development of each island in the Archipelago as a citadel of defensive strength."

Sufficient Strength.

Speaking of the advantageous geographical isolation of the Philippines, the general said that each island, under the developed plan, would have "a garrison of sufficient strength to insure an effective concentration of force against troops landing and will be so organized, equipped and supplied, that any partial penetration will encounter a bitter and continuous resistance from the moment it quits its transports."

Of Luzon, site of Manila and containing almost half the Commonwealth's population, he stated the use of torpedo boats and planes would make invasion almost impossible.

Chances of defeat by naval blockade also were slim, Gen. MacArthur added. The defense plan, he said, provides for gradual accumulation of reserve stocks of those munitions and war materials which must be obtained from abroad.

Observers Discover Eruption, Gases on Sun During Eclipse

Geographic-Standards Bureau Expedition Has Excellent Weather, Other Local Party in Siberia Encounters Difficulty.

Hot gases on the surface of the sun and signs of eruption were evident during the total eclipse which cut a 50-mile-wide pathway from the Mediterranean, across Asia, Russia, northern Japan, and out upon the Pacific Ocean, scientists reported yesterday.

Sufficiently clear weather at Akbulak, Siberia, where the National Geographic-Bureau of Standards and Harvard University-Massachusetts Institute of Technology expeditions were stationed, enabled them to carry out their whole program of observation, the Associated Press reported last night.

Only partial success in observing the great drama of sun and moon and darkened sky was achieved by the Geographic-Georgetown University Expedition, stationed at Kustanai, Siberia, however.

Four Others in Party.

Members of this expedition, in addition to Dr. McNally, included Emeran J. Kolkmeyer, chairman of the physics department at Georgetown; Thomas J. Smith, assistant at the Georgetown Observatory; W. Robert Moore, of the National Geographic Society, and Carl H. Spriegel, of Georgetown University.

At Akbulak, about 400 miles from Kustanai, in southern Siberia, observers, according to the Associated Press, reported the horizon remained pink during the 117 seconds of totality and stars were clearly visible. The corona was pearl-colored, observers said.

At Akbulak both American and Soviet scientists expressed themselves as highly satisfied with their observations, and said they believed valuable scientific results are to be expected.

Leader of the Geographic-Bureau of Standards Expedition was Dr. Irvine Gardner, whose group concentrated on photographing the eclipse both in black and white and in color. He used a huge 14-foot camera, equipped with a newly designed lens, manufactured at the Bureau of Standards. Mrs. Gardner, also a scientist, assisted him in his work.

Peasants Watch.

As the eclipse spread its dark shadow over the Siberian steppes, thousands of peasants gathered on ancient burial mounds, site of the observation work, to witness the "miracle" and see the scientists at work. Many of them brought their domestic beasts along, making sure that they would not run wild during the eclipse.

The penetration of solar secrets is expected to help solve problems connected with long-range weather predictions and explain much of the mystery surrounding behavior of radio waves.

Capricious clouds, swirling around the peaks of Kamishari, Hokkaido, Japan, foiled a brilliant group of British astronomers and physicists, who met failure in their work when dark skies hid the sun from 60 minutes before the eclipse until a minute after.

Both the Geographic-Georgetown and the Geographic-Bureau of Standards expeditions will begin their long journeys home as soon as they can dismantle and pack their equipment.

4-H Delegates Tour City, Visit At White House

Conservation of Wild Life Theme of Talks as Dr. Oberholser Speaks.

Visits to the White House, the Natural History Building, the Smithsonian Institution and the Library of Congress yesterday featured the third day of the annual National 4-H Club Encampment.

The day, largely given over to sightseeing, closed with all the delegates sitting around two radios in the encampment on the Washington Monument Grounds listening to the Schmeling-Louis fight.

The boys and girls had their pictures taken o nthe White House grounds, but did not meet the President.

Soon after their trip to the White House, four of the delegates described over the radio their activities that led to their selection as delegates to Washington.

Dr. H. C. Oberholser, authority on migratory birds, talked to the group yesterday. Dr. Oberholser is connected with the Department of Agriculture's Biological Survey.

Katharine F. Lenroot, chief of the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor, will address the delegates this morning.

The first group discussion of the encampment was held yesterday on "4-H Activities in Conservation of Wildlife." Leaders of the discussion were Tom McGuire, Greenbrier County, W. Va.; Cora Mae Briggs, Seward County, Nebr.; Fred Elliott, Pembina County, N. Dak.; Harold Garrison, Mecklenburg County, N. C., and Carolyn Hubatch, Langlade County, Wis.

Envoy of Italy Breaks Silence, Lauds Britain

Grandi Cites Friendship; Critics Continue Attack on Sanctions Stand.

By the Associated Press.

London, June 19.—A quick Italian gesture of friendship for Great Britain today followed this country's sanctions surrender.

Dino Grandi, the Italian ambassador, whose lips have been sealed in public since the Ethiopian war began, broke his silence in opening an exhibition of photographs of modern Italy. He said:

"I consider friendship with Great Britain and the great British people as sentimentally and politically an essential part of my personal feelings and of our national life."

Critics of the government's announcement that it would move for a lifting of League sanctions from Italy, went on the warpath today.

Lord Cecil, presiding at the opening session of the general council of the League of Nations Union at Scarborough, said: "I can only attribute this astonishing proceeding to sheer panic."

He introduced a resolution to be acted upon tomorrow urging members of the union to "use all constitutional means" to obtain a reversal of the sanctions decision.

Urges Speed.

"We must not lose even a minute," he said.

A Liberal Party conference adopted a resolution calling the government's declaration a "political disaster of the first magnitude."

Eight government supporters in the House of Commons entered an amendment to a Socialist motion of censure urging the government to make clear at Geneva that Great Britain "will not be a party to any condonation of Italian aggression against Ethiopia and is opposed to permitting Italy to raise credits in this country as a price of obtaining Italian co-operation in Europe.

The London Mirror, commenting on the about face on sanctions by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, said "Hoare had the decency to resign. Yet Eden does not resign. He gets up and talks pious platitudes."

(Sir Samuel Hoare resigned as foreign secretary because of widespread opposition to a peace proposal he drew up with former Premier Laval, of France, to end the Africa war.

Joins Parade.

Paris, June 19 (AP).—The new French Socialist government swung into line today in the parade headed by Great Britain to remove sanctions from conquering Italy.

An official communique disclosed the cabinet had agreed to "accept" the lifting of sanctions. It said:

"The government, faithful to the principle of collective action, will associate itself with any decision adopted by the League of Nations.

"Informed of the present situation of the sanctions question, it felt consideration of facts led it to accept their lifting."

Whether the economic penalties will be lifted immediately was not discolsed. Although they will not end officially until the League acts, it was felt sanctions are ended now so far as France is concerned.

The government, it was indicated, might now turn to negotiation of mutual assistance agreements to insure her security.

It was announced the cabinet voted to "pursue actively the putting to work" of "proper means" for collective security.

Southern Chinese Push Into North

Hankow, June 19 (AP).—Kwangsi provincial armies began a new march northward today into Southwest Hunan Province toward Yungchow.

Chinese and foreign circles drew the conclusion that hostilities were imminent between the Kwangsi forces, from one of the provinces of the Canton (South) government, and troops from Nanking, seat of the Central government.

Nanking troops were reported moving southward and increasing mobilization at Hengchow in Hunan.

Some reports said several skirmishes had already occurred, but officials here could not confirm them.

Merchants Organize.

Luray, Va., June 19.—The Luray Merchants' Retail Association was organized here last night with the following officers: R. L. Printz, president; H. E. Bowman, vice president; L. J. Shandelson, secretary and treasurer. Executive committee, A. A. Grove, H. H. Hudson and C. P. Harrell.

Eastern High Pupil Wins Scholarship

Robert Steven Clements, 1228 Morse street northeast, a graduate of Eastern High School, yesterday was named winner of the alumni regional scholarship at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The award is made by the local scholarship committee of the Washington Society of the institute, and is valued at $500. It is made each year in recognition of outstanding ability, personality and character to candidates from the District of Columbia and nearby Maryland and Virginia regions.

Proctor L. Dougherty is chairman of the committee, and other members are Kenneth B. Armstrong, Alfred E. Hanson and J. Y. Houghton.

President Nominates Two for Tax Board

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt yesterday sent to the Senate the nominations of Richard L. Disney, of Oklahoma, and Marian J. Harron, of California, to be members of the United States Board of Tax Appeals.

Disney, a former member of the House and a lawyer of Ardmore, Okla., and Oklahoma City, will succeed Herbert F. Seawell, whose term has expired.

Miss Harron, only 33, is now property custodian in the office of the Resettlement Administration in Berkeley, Calif. Formerly employed in the legal division of NRA, she will succeed Annabel Matthews, whose term also has expired.

Man Held in Plot On Rogers' Widow

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, June 19.—Charged with attempting to extort $1,000 from Mrs. Will Rogers, widow of the actor-humorist, a 76-year-old man was arrested at the Federal Building today.

He was seized by Lowell Lyons, postoffice detective, and Detective Lieut. C. H. Anderson, of the Beverly Hills police, who identified him as Joseph Snyder.

The officers said Mrs. Rogers reported she received a long letter from a man named Snyder in which he related a strange story of Rogers' early days in Oklahoma, and threatened to publish a book uncomplimentary to Rogers.

Land Suits Ordered In Street Projects

Condemnation proceedings to acquire land for four street improvement projects were ordered instituted yesterday.

Acting Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West was instructed by the Commissioners to acquire land for widening and extension of Minnesota avenue, from Twenty-eighth and N streets to Randle Circle, from D to Croffut street, and from B street southeast to Benning road.

Proceedings also are to be begun to acquire necessary land for extension of South Dakota avenue, from the intersection of Eighteenth and Shepherd streets northeast to Michigan avenue, and for widening of Michigan avenue, between Nineteenth street and South Dakota avenue.

Improvements Planned.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Luray, Va., June 19.—Plans are being made by the trustees of Page Memorial Hospital to hard surface the road leading into the hospital. In addition to hard surfacing, repairs will include the widening of the entrance to the grounds, reducing the grade and replacing wooden culverts. H. R. McKay and Marvil Roller are on the committee.

New Star

so remote that by comparison the earth and sun are next-door neighbors, the star "blew up" some 2,000 or 3,000 years ago.

Its brilliant light leaped at a rate of 186,400 miles a second across the abyss where the stars and planets swing. But it was not until Thursday night that the world could learn of the new Nova, and what had happened before the time of Christ in the mysterious blackness of suns and nebulae.

Dr. Paul A. McNally, director, and several members of his staff at the Georgetown Observatory were in Russia collecting data on the eclipse.

But astronomers and astronomical students were busy, nevertheless, watching a drama of time and space that occurred when Athens was a rising city and the armor of the Pharaohs clinked in vast cities along the Nile.

Park Services Arranged.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., June 19.—Ten churches of Frederick will transfer their Sunday evening services to Baker Park, beginning Sunday. The service this week will be in charge of Rev. DeWitt P. Zuse, of the Centennial Memorial United Brethren Church. The services will be held each Sunday evening until September 13.

D.A.R. to Begin Program for Youth

Lack of personal interest on the part of communities and societies in the downtrodden and destitute is causing many persons to drift into communism, Mrs. William A. Becker, president general of the D. A. R., said yesterday as she announced a summer program by all chapters of the organization to aid youth.

"We must realize," she said in a message to D. A. R. members, "that youth is the battlefield sought by the forces of revolution."

The program planned by Mrs. Becker "embraces the community, the schools, the organized groups of young people, and the individual boy and girl to whom we may give hope and courage."

"Relief," the president general continued, "has undoubtedly been administered with due regard for the emergency, but the understanding and concern which were part of the neighborliness of former days have been replaced by a chasm of growing distrust and hate."

Blackfriars Rehearse For Sylvan Production

Final rehearsals for "Smiling Thru," the production to be given Tuesday night at the Sylvan Theater by the Blackfriars, will be held this week-end.

The event will be the Blackfriars' first appearance at the Sylvan Theater. The play is directed by Mary Crowley, and in the cast are Nell Orton, Marguerite Nordstrom, Dorothy Davidson, Peggy Myers, Arthur Van, Stephen Trodden, J. Edgar Kloten and Gordon Potter.

Sutton Abandons Plea For Wilson Case Retrial

James H. Pugh, State's attorney for Montgomery County, received word from Cumberland yesterday that Albert S. Sutton had abandoned his appeal for a new trial.

Sutton recently was sentenced to life imprisonment after his conviction for the "mistaken identity" murder of Allen S. Wilson in Takoma Park, Md., in October, 1934.

Squad Saves Man From Gas Death

Kemp Royer, 46, a carpenter, was found unconscious in the gas-filled kitchen of his home, 4215 Leland street, Chevy Chase, Md., yesterday afternoon.

Royer, lying on the floor with gas steaming from all jets of the stove and with all windows closed, was discovered by Mr. and Mrs. Roy W. Davis, of 4403 Leland street. Mrs. Davis visited the Royer home to use an electric washing machine.

The Bethesda Rescue Squad and Dr. Benjamin C. Perry were called. Royer was revived and taken to Georgetown University Hospital. His wife is visiting relatives in Virginia. A son was at work.

Drowned Student's Parents Are Sought

Police yesterday were attempting to locate the parents of Leonard Fox, 22-year-old Corcoran Art School student, who was drowned Thursday afternoon while canoeing in the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal near Chain bridge.

Fox, who had been living at 1414 Twentieth street northwest, came here from his home in Winston-Salem, N. C., two months ago to study art.

Thursday he went out on the canal in a canoe built by his landlord, Gordon F. Noah. The craft capsized and Fox sank. Two hours later his body was recovered by Harbor police.

Farley Belittles 3d Party Race As Vote Threat

Lemke Can't Make Inroad on Democratic Ballot, Leader Asserts.

By the United Press.

Philadelphia, June 19.—Democrats are so well organized for the November election that a third party—headed by Representative William Lemke or anyone else—will make little inroad into their voting strength, Postmaster General James A. Farley said tonight as he arrived to take charge of the New Deal's interests at the national convention next week.

"We are not disturbed about the third party movement," Farley said as he sat on a desk in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel and outlined the procedure for President Roosevelt's renomination.

"Which third party are you talking about?" he was asked.

"Any of them," Farley replied.

New Dealers are so thoroughly in control of the convention that Farley said Administration leaders even would stand aloof from the fight over whether to abolish the two-thirds rule. He expects President Roosevelt to be renominated without a dissenting vote among the 1,500 delegates who will cast the convention's 1,100 votes.

Delegate Votes Split.

Democrats have split their votes up into fourths and even into fifths to give everybody possible a train ride to Philadelphia.

An interested listener—present in the capacity of a newspaper man—was William Allen White, the Emporia, Kans., editor who is a member of the board of strategy that won the Republican Presidential nomination for Alf M. Landon at the Cleveland convention.

White did not even blink his eyes as Farley claimed that Mr. Roosevelt would carry every State, even Pennsylvania, which always was regarded as a Republican State until the New Deal wooed away enough voters to install a Democratic Governor.

"Is it true that Senator Joseph Guffey told you that the Democrats would carry Pennsylvania"? Farley was asked.

"Yes, and Senator Guffey is right," he replied. "Pennsylvania will go Democratic, but we consider New York an even stronger Democratic State."

"Do you think you will win New York regardless of whether Gov. Lehman runs for re-election?"

Predicts New York Sweep.

Farley thought about that one for a minute.

"The President will win New York," he finally said, "and the Democratic nominee for Governor will be elected."

"Are you going to run for Governor of New York?"

"Not a chance."

"Are you going to resign as Postmaster General?"

"I'll decide that after the convention is over."

"What do think of Frank Knox as a Republican Vice Presidential nomination?"

"I think he is a nice fellow."

Farley said the fight over whether to abolish the rule requiring a two-thirds vote of the delegates to nominate a Presidential candidate would reach the floor of the convention Thursday morning. Sentiment is strong among the delegates to change the rule to make nomination possible by a simple majority, he added.

Blames Congress.

"What are you going to do about that plank in the 1932 platform calling for a 25 per cent reduction in the cost of Government?" Farley was asked.

"Well, the President made good on it so far as he was concerned," he replied, "but Congress overrode him."

The platform is under charge of Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, and Farley said the Senator was expected to arrive Sunday with a tentative draft of it. Planks then will be submitted to the convention's resolutions committee, which has not even been filled yet.

Democratic plans are under full steam tonight after a week of inactivity. Farley said there was enough business here to keep him away from the Joe Louis-Max Schmeling fight in New York—quite a sacrifice for the man who formerly was New York State boxing commissioner.

Herring Tells of Support.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 19 (AP).—Clyde I. Herring, Iowa's New Deal Governor, said today he again was being urged to seek the Democratic nomination for Vice President.

A delegate-at-large to the Democratic National Convention, the Governor said he had not had time to give telegrams, letters and other expressions of support he has received recently "much consideration."

A personal friend of President Roosevelt, the two-term Iowa executive less than a year ago received suggestions from friends and party leaders in several States that he permit his name to be submitted to the next party convention for second place on the ticket.

Gov. Herring also is a friend of Vice President Garner, who is expected to seek re-nomination with Roosevelt at the Philadelphia convention next week.

Nonpartisan Plank on Tariff Urged by Democratic Leaders

Views of Secretary Hull Expected to Guide Platform Makers, Senator Pope Says; Other Proposals Under Consideration.

By the Associated Press.

Democratic platform planners were recorded last night as insistent that the party pledge itself to a "non-partisan reciprocal trade program" to make the United States a "moral force among the nations of the world."

After viewing the Republican platform calling for repeal of the reciprocal trade treaties, Senator Pope (Democrat), Idaho, a champion of the farm interests in reciprocal trade pacts, said Secretary Hull's views were expected to be a controlling factor in shaping the tariff plank.

Political Machinations.

"It is well known that the Secretary wants to keep the reciprocal trade program nonpartisan," he said, "and if the resolutions committee follows his counsel, it will emphasize that the present pacts have been of tremendous benefit.

"Committeemen with whom I have talked want to keep the tariff out of politics. It is unthinkable, they say, that we ever should return to the log-rolling tactics of the Smoot-Hawley tariff act. They feel that the whole country is too vitally affected by tariff policies to abandon economic questions to political machinations."

On international affairs, Pope said there has been considerable closed-door talk of recommending that the United States command an active part among nations for maintenance of peace and economic understanding.

Senator Lewis, of Illinois, Democratic whip, said he understood no mention by name would be made of a minimum wage law for women and children, but that the platform likely would favor a "proper balancing of wages and hours of labor."

Managed Currency.

Senator McAdoo, of California, wartime Secretary of the Treasury, said he did not expect any fight over the money issue, believing the convention would declare for a managed currency as conducted by the present Administration.

A currency plank submitted by Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, who unsuccessfully has advocated issuance of $3,000,000,000 of new currency, was interpreted by him as opening the way for future legislation by the "new money" bloc in Congress.

"Currency must be adequate, available and properly balanced," Thomas said, "and if it is, it becomes 'sound money' regardless of whether it is expressed in definite terms of gold and silver."

Thomas, a member of the resolutions committee, said he did not believe the platform would mention gold or silver, or use the word "stabilization."

Pope said he believed it was planned to use the term "stable currency in the sense of its commodity purchasing power and debt-paying value."

Stability of Dollar.

"We are not concerned at present," he said, "with a gold dollar or a silver dollar, but with a stable dollar which will have the same purchasing power from year to year."

Chairman Jones (Democrat), of Texas, of the House Agriculture Committee, said he understood nothing definite other than continuation of the soil conservation program, with its crop control features, had been decided upon by farm plank planners.

A program reported to have the approval of Secretary Wallace embraces the present AAA soil conservation program with subsidy payments to farmers, production control with constitutional limits, reciprocal trade agreements, and commodity loans to farmers.

Jones would not discuss a plank he submitted to the committee, or disclose whether it contained crop insurance proposals by some Western Democrats and demands by Iowa Congressmen that farm tenants be permitted to negotiate "farm-home" loans from the Rural Credit Administration.

Socialist State On Democratic Basis Is Urged

Dr. Conklin, Princeton U., Favors 'Safety,' Scores Extremes.

By the Associated Press.

Ithaca, N. Y., June 19.—Dr. Edwin G. Conklin, Princeton University biologist and president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, today advocated "democratic socialism as the safest and sanest social order."

He spoke at the semicentennial at Cornell University of Sigma Xi, science honorary society, celebrated jointly by Sigma Xi and the American Association, which moved its meeting here from Rochester for the ceremonies.

Dr. Conklin pointed out that the American Association for the Advancement of Science represents more than 500,000 personnel in affiliated scientific societies.

"Democratic socialism," he said, "seems to me the safest and sanest social order. It avoids the extremes of communism, fascism and individualism, and yet contains the elements of all these, and conforms to that inexorable biological principle of the necessity of preserving balance between contrasting principles or opposing forces.

"Fanatical extremes of individual freedom or of social regimentation have no successful prototypes in biological or human history. Democratic socialism best preserves this balance in the social order. It best preserves freedom of experimentation. The scientific method of learning is by experiment, trial and error and finally trial and success. There is no other path of progress. This is the great advantage of free government."

Dr. Conklin gave a scientific viewpoint on several political problems.

"Superabundance of farm products," he said, "is said to be one of the greatest social problems, and so, on the one hand, we find governments destroying or limiting the production of coffee, sugar, cotton, corn, hogs, calves, milk, and potatoes, while on the other hand agricultural departments, colleges and institutes strive to increase them.

"It is easy to point out this absurdity, but not so easy to prescribe a remedy. However, it is certain that scientific progress in agriculture and industry will continue and the remedy must be found in a wider distribution of the products of scientific research.

"In similar manner scientific progress in medicine and sanitation is far in advance of its social utilization, but not in advance of its urgent need.

"The profit motive is probably inevitable and not wholly undesirable, but in any stable society it cannot be the chief or only motive.

"All 'share the wealth' programs would be ineffective to change effectively the present status. Rugged individualism in the sense of every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost is no remedy for the present ills of society. We have had too much of this in the past to be content to go back to it now. It served well in a pioneer stage of society, but will not work in a crowded state."

Senate Group Approves Black Legion Inquiry

By the Associated Press.

The Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday approved a concurrent resolution calling for a Congressional investigation of the Black Legion and kindred organizations.

The measure, which would have a committee of four Senators and four Representatives conduct the probe, now goes to the Audit Committee for consideration of a proposal to set aside $100,000 for expenses.

It then would have to go to the House.

47 Million Paid In AAA Taxes Asked in Suits

Big Packers Seek Recovery on Funds Given Prior to Court Ruling.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 19.—Legal actions seeking approximately $47,000,000 and the answer from two different directions to a question left open by the Supreme Court's invalidation of the AAA last January were started today by two of the "big four" packers.

The question the court did not rule on in its historic decree involved the billion or more dollars collected from packers and other processors before the several hundred suits attacking the AAA's constitutionality brought widespread impounding of their contributions.

The Cudahy Packing Co. brought action in Federal Court to recover $11,908,983.83 which it paid into the Federal coffers before its later taxes were impounded.

Swift & Co. filed with the office of internal revenue collector a claim for $35,000,000, also paid before any taxes were impounded.

Officials of Armour & Co. indicated they were considering action similar to Swift's, but stated they had taken no steps yet.

Counsel for Cudahy explained that while the Supreme Court had ordered that $200,000,000 or more, collected under the AAA and impounded last year while decision on its constitutionality was pending, should be returned to the processors the court had not raised the issue of disposition of the much larger sum—approximately $1,000,000,000—which had been paid previously under the act later held illegal.

A provision of the old AAA had declared that taxes might be recovered only on a showing by the processors that they had been unable to pass the tax on to the consumer. This provision was not specifically ruled on.

Senators Urge Nationalization Of Arms Plants

Cite High Profits in War, Assert Regulation Is Easily Evaded.

By the Associated Press.

A majority of the Senate Munitions Committee yesterday recommended the nationalization of naval shipbuilding and manufacture of certain arms used by the Army and Navy.

This view was contained in a report presented to the Senate by Chairman Nye (Republican), North Dakota. Nye, with Senators Clark (Democrat), Missouri; Pope (Democrat), Idaho, and Bone (Democrat), Washington, comprised the majority.

The chairman said the minority—Senators George (Democrat), Georgia; Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, and Barbour (Republican), New Jersey—believed "rigid and conclusive munitions control" would be more effective than nationalization in promoting peace, defense and economy.

Alluding to evidence accumulated by the committee in its two years of hearings, the majority said regulation of arms and manufacture "is easily evaded."

Management Control.

The majority made its recommendation, the report said, "because any control over the foreign affairs of companies, which is essential to the stopping of present practices, will, in effect, amount to control of management, and cannot be effected successfully under the private ownership of these companies.

"It does so also because of its findings that during the World War the munitions companies insisted throughout on their pound of flesh in the form of high profits for their production and did not let their patriotism stand in the way of their 'duty as trustees' to the stockholders."

The group stated that "the War and Navy departments can produce from their own ranks or employ sufficiently able technicians to operate these plants successfully."

Pressure for Orders.

It noted the "pressure" on the service departments by the munitions and shipbuilding companies for orders and for help in foreign sales and for help in opposition to embargoes and other disarmament measures.

Specifically the majority advocated Government manufacture of powder, projectiles, rifles, pistols, machine guns, armor plate, gun forgings and naval vessels.

The minority felt that "if large Government plants are erected to provide these commodities, there will be inevitable local, political pressure to maintain these plants at full capacity production regardless of defense needs and the result will be to encourage armament rather than disarmament."

Morrison, Roosevelt Confer on Resignaton

By the Associated Press.

Ralph W. Morrison, of Texas, conferred with President Roosevelt yesterday over his resignation, submitted a month ago, from the Federal Reserve Board.

No announcement was made afterward and Morrison declined to discuss the conference. The President had held up action on the resignation pending a meeting with the Texan.

Parade Will Mark Opening of Avenue

The opening of the new Kenilworth avenue tonight will be celebrated by the Kenilworth Citizens Association with a parade, led by a 64-piece band of the Boys' Club of the Metropolitan Police at Kenilworth and Ord streets northeast.

Cochairen of the affair are Inspectors James F. Beckett and William H. Webb, with Lieut. Walter H. Thomas, head of the Police School, as master of ceremonies. It will begin at 7:30 p. m.

500 'Nominators' Hear $1,000,000 Prediction

Meeting in the Willard Hotel yesterday noon, 500 members of the Roosevelt Nominators heard Malcolm McConihe, District Democratic national committeeman, predict that a $1,000,000 in $1 memberships would be raised throughout the United States for the Democratic national campaign fund before the President makes his acceptance speech in Philadelphia the night of June 27.

A Roosevelt torchlight parade and rally will be held in Griffith Stadium the night of the acceptance as a part of a Nation-wide chain of Roosevelt meetings.

Watergate Concert Decision Delayed

C. Marshall Finnan, National Capital Parks superintendent, yesterday asked officials of the Washington Summer Concerts Association for more time to consider their request for permission to use the watergate site.

A decision by Finnan had been expected yesterday morning. His request for further delay brought protests from members of the new association.

It is expected that Finnan will hold a conference on the matter today with Thomas Mullikin, chairman of the association.

$10,000 Bond Is Set In Alleged Extortion

Baltimore, June 18 (AP).—U. S. Commissioner James K. Cullen today set bond of $10,000 for Jesse J. Miller, of Thurmont, Md., charged with sending an extortion letter to Mrs. Mariedna Ferrand, of Washington.

Cullen ordered Miller removed to Washington for trial in the U. S. District Court. Mrs. Ferrand, wife of an attorney in the Solicitor General's office, said Miller wrote her demanding $5,000 on threat of harming her young son, Peter.

Trotsky Is Permitted To Remain in Norway

Oslo, Norway, June 19 (AP).—Leon Trotsky, exiled Communist leader, received permission today from the Norwegian government to remain in the country for another two months.

Trotsky, who split with Joseph Stalin over party problems in Russia after the death of Lenin, was reported in excellent health. Assisted by two Russian secretaries he has continued his literary activities.

Suicide, Murder Theories Clash In Death of Trio

Coroner's Police Inquirers Differ in Mysterious Pittsburgh Case.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, June 19.—Mystery blocked progress by the police today in their effort to solve the weird deaths of Mrs. Eleanor Feely, 30-year-old wife of University of Pittsburgh instructor, and their two small children.

Martin Feely, 34, a physical education teacher, told detectives he believed his wife and the babies, Bobby, 5, and Janice, 3, had been murdered. He returned by train today from New Jersey where he attended a boys' summer camp.

An autopsy showed all three had been strangled, but investigators for the coroner's office and city detectives offered different theories on what had happened.

The detectives said Mrs. Feely killed the children and committed suicide. Coroner's investigators termed it a fiendish triple murder.

Thumbprint Found.

Discovery of a man's thumbprint on a clawhammer found near Mrs. Feely's body gave officers their first clew to support the murder theory.

The bodies were found by Charles Young, 48, owner of the seven-room first-floor apartment in the colonial-style home where the family lived.

Young, who lives upstairs with his family, told police he couldn't sleep because he had not seen the mother and children for 24 hours and knew the husband to be away. He said he took a flashlight last night and threw the light through the rear bedroom window. He saw the body of Bobby, lying on a cot, and promptly called the police.

Skull Fractured.

A bathrobe cord was tied taut around the boy's neck and coroner's physicians said his skull had been fractured by a blow, apparently from a hammer. Janice lay in her crib. Around her neck was drawn a length of hemp rope.

Mrs. Feely lay face down on the floor. A rope was looped around her neck and tied to a radiator pipe. Her body rested on the clawhammer, the handle of which had been thrust through the rope. The hammer had been turned until the rope was twisted tight like a tourniquet.

An ice pick had been driven into the temples of all three. The mother also had been stabbed with it in the heart.

No Sign of Struggle.

Detectives who clung to the murder and suicide theories said there was no indication of a struggle, nor reports of screaming, that the doors and windows remained locked and there were no fingerprints on window sills or the doors.

The coroner's agents said the thumb-print on the hammer indicated murder and contended the three wounds in three left temples could not have been inflicted if the mother stabbed herself.

Mrs. Feely once studied law in Springfield, Mass., coming here five years ago with Feely. Neighbors described them an ideal family.

Nazi Paper Attacks Capt. Eden's Speech

Berlin, June 19 (AP).—The Diplomatische Korrespondenz, mouthpiece of the German Foreign Office, took Great Britain's foreign secretary to task tonight.

The newspaper criticized Capt. Anthony Eden for what it said was his action in applying a different standard to Germany than that which he reserved for his own country.

"It does not seem fair to demand of some one that he be perfectly clear about solutions demanded for the future if the other side intends to reserve freedom of judgment and action for itself," the organ added.

(Eden, in his speech to the House of Commons yesterday, urged a "frank and reassuring response" to Britain's Locarno questionnaire, which in effect asked Germany to signify if she recognized and intended to respect the existing territorial and political status of Europe.)

However, general satisfaction was expressed in the Wilhelmstrasse over Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's statement that Germany, France and Great Britain should "work for peace throughout all Europe side by side."

50 Railroads Sued By Lumber Firms

Fifty railroads engaged in the transportation of lumber from Virginia to New York State and New England, were sued for a total of $157,000 in the District Supreme Court yesterday because of allegedly excessive freight rates charged nine lumber companies.

The lumber companies charged the Interstate Commerce Commission had held a hearing and had determined they were due a rebate. Nevertheless, the complaint stated, the carriers had refused to refund the excessive charges.

The companies bringing the suit were the Phillips Lumber Co., Tide Water Oil Co., Farmers Bank, of Boydtown, Va.; Kentucky Flooring Co., Jeffrey, Spaulding Manufacturing Co., A. L. Shepherd Lumber Co., Barnes Lumber Corporation, Lipscomb Lumber Co. and the Roper Bros. Lumber Co. Attorneys John T. and T. Money acted as their representatives.

"The said Marion A. Zioncheck has been insane or of unsound mind since to wit the first day of June, 1935, the cause of his insanity being to petitioners unknown, but if certain representations made to them be true he is an unfit person to be at large, and is a fit subject for detention and treatment on account of his mental condition.

"Your petitioners further believe that if he be permitted to go at large within the said District, the rights of persons and property therein will be jeopardized and the preservation of public peace imperiled, and the commission of crime rendered probable."

A person charged with being of unsound mind is tried in the District Supreme Court much in the maner of one charged with a criminal offense. A jury of laymen hears the case.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Walsh, who specializes in lunacy cases for the District, will act as prosecutor. He will call psychiatrists as witnesses.

Zioncheck will have the right of cross-examining his accusers and otherwise conducting his defense. He will be entitled to have his own attorneys.

similar groups, for one proceeding seems to predominate in Washington more so than elsewhere.

"Why it is necessary to have three receivers on a property and in some instances to employ attorneys for the receivers, although all three are attorneys themselves, is beyond all reason.

"The creation of a voting trust upon the reorganization of a property is a common practice throughout the country. In Washington these voting trusts, usually comprised of former members of bondholders' protective committees, or their associates, perpetuate themselves indefinitely. Their fees and expenses continue and the properties never are under direct control of bondholders."

Realty reorganizations discussed in particular were those of the Wardman properties, the Mayflower Hotel, the Shoreham Hotel, and the La Salle Apartment Building.

"In the reorganization of the Wardman properties," the report stated, "may be found practically every abuse prevalent in reorganizations. It may be cited as a 'model' of all prevalent trickery in the real estate bond racket.

"Testimony before your committee shows that the bankers, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and Hambleton & Co., Inc., used the insolvent Wardman Construction Co. for issuance of approximately $23,620,000 in bonds, debentures and notes."

Dealings Detailed.

The report then described in detail the transactions which followed.

"The Mayflower Hotel was completed in 1927 at a total cost of approximately $5,250,000 for land, buildings and furnishings," the report continued. "First-mortgage bonds of $7,500,000 were sold by the American Bond & Mortgage Co. and Halsey, Stuart & Co. Second-mortgage bonds of $2,400,000 were sold by the American Bond & Mortgage Co. Seven per cent preferred stock amounting to $1,100,000, and 80,000 shares of common stock without par value were also sold."

When the reorganization came, the report added, fees aggregating $750,000 were requested. A special master of the District Supreme Court recommended payments of $75,000 for the prior receivership and approximately $172,000 for the bankrupt proceedings. The court has not yet acted.

The contractor and builder of the Shoreham Hotel, the committee reported, became sole owner of the corporation for a mechanic's lien of $122,000, which he had offered to settle for $61,000, "through some mysterious move," after the banking house of Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey, which underwrote the issue, went into bankruptcy.

The contractor still holds the equity and can use the income of the hotel to retire bonds or refinance, the report states, while paying himself an annual salary of $10,000 a year.

"In the case of the La Salle Apartments," the committee said, "there either was 'extreme friendliness' or collusion between the bondholders' committee and the lessee, Dulin, Martin & Co., who was supposed to pay the firm from $50,000 to $70,000 yearly rental for a part of the building. Instead, they were $104,000 in arrears.

"Notwithstanding their net worth was $228,000, the bondholders' committee settled for $8,500 upon statement to the court that $26,000 per annum was the maximum rental obtainable for this space, although it was then negotiating a lease with the NRA for $70,000, later consummated."

Note Received From Missing Arlington Man

Wife Will Not Press for Return; $2 Donated by Post Reader.

The search which Washington and Virginia police have been conducting for Wyatt Andrew Smith, impoverished carpenter who left his wife and baby destitute in their river shanty near Rosslyn several days ago, was relaxed yesterday when a letter revealed he is safe.

In a note addressed to his 19-month-old daughter, Amy, Smith inclosed a $1 bill and said he is sleeping in a lumber yard. The letter had been mailed in East Falls Church, Va.

His wife, according to Arlington County authorities, declared she will not attempt to force his return to support the family.

Meanwhile, an anonymous donor yesterday sent The Post $2 to be forwarded to the deserted wife and baby.

Andrew Jensen, county building inspector, yesterday ordered all work stopped on cottages being erected along the Virginia shore of the Potomac River above Rosslyn until building permits are obtained.

The inspector, with Dr. P. M. Chichester county health officer, and George M. Yeatman, chairman of the county board, made a tour of inspection along the river shore yesterday morning.

Jensen, after inspecting many of the shacks, declared that while permits will be demanded by all builders there are some of them that will have to be torn down as unfit for occupancy.

With no evidence of proper sanitation, Dr. Chichester stated that he will order a complete survey all along the river.

Where it is found that proper provisions have been made, nothing will be done, but in all other cases residents will be ordered to provide proper sanitation forthwith.

As part of the property is claimed to be within the District of Columbia, Dr. Chichester said that he will confer with the District Health Department and ask its co-operation.

Montgomery Road Overdraft Issue Will Be Taken to Court

Commissioners Decide to Test State's Claim of Lateral Gasoline Tax Funds; Tax Levy Will Remain Same.

The courts will be asked to determine the status of the alleged Montgomery County overdraft of lateral gasoline tax road funds with the Maryland State Roads Commission, it was accounced by County Commissioner Paul M. Coughlan yesterday.

Coughlan said that a friendly suit would be filed by the county to require an accounting of the county's account with the State commission, which has been held by the latter body to represent an overdraft of $181,000, dating back for several years. A statement of the account now is being prepared by William A. Codd, auditor for the roads commission, Coughlan said, and as soon as the report is completed the suit will be filed.

County authorities have maintained that much, if not all, of the work for which the $181,000 bill is held by the State commission was done in Montgomery County without authorization from the county government. Should the courts hold the work unauthorized, the county will be released from the debt, Coughlan holds. On the other hand, if the court rules in favor of the State the account will be liquidated by the issuance of $161,000 in five-year bonds, and $20,000 secondary road work authorized previously will be canceled to take care of the $181,000 item.

Whether the new decision to settle the case at once will affect the drive launched this week by the Kensington Chamber of Commerce to compel the State roads commission to allocate more funds to Montgomery County will not be known until the July meeting of the chamber.

Washington I. Cleveland, president of the chamber, in announcing the drive, declared that the overdraft of the lateral gas tax funds affects only one of a number of sources of revenue of the State roads commission. This, he said, does not justify the State limiting the county to a meager $35,000 this year out of an $11,000,000 State-wide fund.

The Montgomery County tax rate for the fiscal year starting July 1 will be continued at the present $1.50 per $100 assessed valuation levy, the board of county commissioners reported yesterday. The old rate is made possible by reduction of $20,000 in the budget of the board of education, which has been revised by Dr. Edwin W. Broome, superintendent of schools, to assist the commissioners in their efforts to avert a tax increase.

The levy will be formally announced at the board's meeting Tuesday. Reductions of $11,900 in the police department appropriation and $12,850 in the welfare board appropriation, added to the $20,000 saving in the school board's budget, complete the pruning process necessary to provide the $1.50 rate, barring unforseen circumstances, the board said.

The revised school board budget calls for expenditures of $669,210. The $20,000 reduction over the original budget of $689,210 is made possible by eliminating an additional clerk the commissioners previously had agreed to employ and by deferring a number of school repair items.

The reduction in the school board budget was made voluntarily by Dr. Broome and the board of education. State law prevents the county commissioners from reducing the budget prepared by the school board.

Sergt. Roy Bodmer was elected president of the Montgomery County Policemen's Association, when it was revived this week after being inactive for the past two years. Sergts. Earl Burdine and LeRoy Rodgers and Privates Jack Berry and Ernest Thompson were elected vice presidents; Sergt. Theodore Vollten, recording secretary; Clerk James C. Nichols, corresponding secretary, and Sergt. D. L. Snyder, treasurer.

Trustees named were Corporal Oscar T. Gaither and Privates Marion Dayhoff, James E. Shoemaker, Ira K. Hover and William S. Crawford, while James C. Christopher, deputy clerk to the County Commissioners, was named counsel. Privates Wilson Payne, Joseph W. Ward and Alton Harding were appointed as a visiting relief committee.

The association voted to form its own trial board, composed of seven officers. The board will sit in judgment in all cases in which a member of the local force is cited by the State Employment Commission. If the association board holds him innocent he will be provided counsel and vigorously defended before the State. If he is held guilty, no action will be taken in his behalf.

Dues paid in by members will be converted into a relief fund. The association has for its aim the "advancement of the moral, social and material standing of the police department by honorable and legitimate means and the aiding and assistance of worthy and needy members, their wives and orphans."

The return of Dr. Ralph D. Smith to the pastorate of the Woodside Methodist Episcopal Church for the fifteenth consecutive year was announced at the Baltimore conference of the Methodist Church at Westminster. Dr. Smith holds the record among approximately 250 ministers in the conference for holding the longest pastorate.

The Abigal Hartman Rice Chapter, D. A. R., will hold a supper dance tonight at the home of Capt. and Mrs. Bullis in Silver Spring. Mrs. Edgar E. Good is chairman of the committee in charge of the dance and Miss Frances Mixell is in charge of reservations.

Ground was broken yesterday for the new $65,000 postoffice for Silver Spring. The building is being constructed by the Harwood-Nebel Construction Co., Inc. The contract requires that the work be completed in 210 calendar days.

Judge H. C. Heffner presided yesterday for the first time as the new police judge for Takoma Park. A dozen cases, all minor in character, were tried in the court which was established by an act of the last session of the Legislature.

Death Held Suicide.

A certificate of suicide was issued yesterday by Dr. W. S. Murphy, of Rockville, in the case of Adam Robertson, 88, who was found dead Wednesday in his home in Travilah road, near Rockville. The aged man's head had been blasted by a shotgun, which lay near him on a bed.

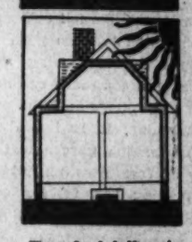
Your Home Is More Valuable With Johns-Manville Insulation



Installed in Your Home by Our Manufacturing Division

If you had to sell your home right now—you would get more for it if it were insulated with J-M Rock Wool Insulation. Why? Because J-M Rock Wool Insulation would make it a more comfortable, more livable home—and people are willing to pay more for comfort.

Are you not willing to pay for increased year-around comfort and Winter fuel savings? No doubt you are, or would be if you knew how inexpensive it was to install this modern insulation and how little its installation disturbs your routine of orderly living. The installation can be made in a very short time by a special pneumatic blowing method.

Keep fuel dollars in; Summer heat out.

Be sure to investigate the insulation before you buy. Just "any" insulation is not equal to J-M Rock Wool for complete protection. It keeps rooms degrees cooler in Summer and cuts fuel bills noticeably in Winter.

Telephone DIstrict 5300 for further information or an estimate. You will not be obligated in any way.

Baldwin Gropes In The Fog.

Not in many years has British statesmanship, once the envy and admiration of the world, reached such pitiful depths as those revealed in Prime Minister Baldwin's House of Commons speech of last Thursday.

On that occasion Mr. Baldwin, following Foreign Secretary Eden, sought to defend his government's about-face on the sanctions issue and to point a way out of the dilemma arising out of that humiliating retreat. Now it is not difficult to understand why the British cabinet has come to the conclusion that no good purpose could be served by continuing sanctions. On practical grounds much can be said for this cutting of the Gordian knot. As we pointed out yesterday, it is indeed commendable that the London government has shown a degree of frankness unusual in statecraft by admitting the failure of its foreign policy in this respect.

But when Mr. Baldwin sought to indicate what the next step should be, in an emergency not less but more acute as the result of the abandonment of the League's first attempt to enforce peace, he stumbled and fumbled like a man groping in one of London's pea-soup fogs.

The situation calls for courageous, realistic and resourceful leadership. Mr. Baldwin's proposed solution of Europe's desperate dilemma is a well-meant but jejeune plea to Hitler to be good. His incurable optimism in the good faith of humanity in general and dictators in particular has obviously suffered a rude shock through the cavalier manner in which Mussolini set aside solemn pledges to observe the peace. He admits that the idea of force dominates the totalitarian states. Yet he continues to hug to his bosom the phantom of hope. "Chancellor Hitler," he said, "has told us he wishes peace; and if a man tells me that, as I have said before, I wish to try it out."

So, despite the fact that the Berlin government has thus far responded to Britain's timid questionnaire concerning his intentions only with disdainful silence, he continues to woo Der Fuehrer. He is hopeful that if a conference between Germany, France and Great Britain can be brought about "better security for the peace of Europe" can be obtained. In other words, the German lion and the French lamb are to lie down together at the behest of the benign British shepherd. It is a romantic idea, but as statesmanship it is pathetically inadequate.

Maxim Gorky.

His early years of want and vagabondage were spent at a time when Russian literature was reaching out to the greatest heights it had ever attained. Lermontov and Gogol were dead. But Dostoievsky, Turgenieff and Tolstoi were in the floodtide of their creative powers. From them came a succession of incomparable works which helped to reveal the brooding shadows hovering over the vast spaces of Czarist Russia, with the barbaric glitter of its court life; its emancipated but embittered peasants; its intelligentsia shot through with mysticism and revolutionary ardor; and its medieval political structure already then beginning to show those wide fissures that were, before many decades had passed, to bring about the collapse of the whole monstrous edifice.

As a writer Gorky owed little directly to these giants of Russian literature. And he belongs to the royal line only in the sense that a minor peak can be part of a great mountain chain. His writings were largely a reflection of his own desperate struggle with hunger and want and neglect and the intense Russian cold. He was above and beyond all a voice from the lower depths, a proletarian writer in the real sense, which helps explain why he has been the darling of those who since 1917 have been in power in Mocow.

The cry of anguish that found expression in Gorky's writings was the profound echo of the feelings of the Russian people themselves, and they took him to their bosoms. But his reputation transcended even the wide borders of his native land. The turn of the century, when Gorky was at the height of his creative powers, was a period of stark realism in European literature—the heyday of Zola and his school.

In the sunset of his life Gorky was honored by the Soviet regime and its leaders as the doyen of Russian literature and a living link with a great past which, more and more, they are eager to preserve. Aside from his memoirs, which showed a flaring up of his old powers of description and characterization, Gorky wrote little during these years that will stand the test of time. He had become a museum piece. With his passing the last of a long and great line of nineteenth century Russian writer comes to an end.

A Hybrid Tax Bill.

The conference tax bill passed by the House is a hybrid measure combining steeply graduated taxes upon undistributed corporate profits with graded taxes upon corporate net income at somewhat lower than present rates. Dividends are also subject to the normal income tax levied upon individuals, in accordance with the provisions of both House and Senate bills.

Despite its serious defects, the House bill had a certain logical consistency that appealed to the theorist interested in taxation experiments. There was no mistaking the purpose of the plan to force a distribution of surpluses by punitive taxation, and set up an entirely new system of corporate taxation. Since the bill provided for the repeal of existing income, capital stock and excess profits taxes, corporations distributing all their current earnings to stockholders would have escaped taxation entirely. But heavy penalties would have been inflicted upon concerns retaining any considerable percentage of earnings.

The critical barrage that preceded and followed passage of the House measure seemed irresistible. It was pointed out that established, prosperous corporations with large surpluses might escape taxation entirely, while struggling corporations in the initial stages of development would be severely handicapped. It was also charged that the progressive rates of taxation would deprive corporate managements of necessary discretionary control over company resources. Moreover, no allowance was made for the great differences in the capital needs and inventory requirements of taxed industries, although certain classes of corporations, such as banks and insurance companies, were exempted from the graduated levy on undistributed profits.

Shaken by the testimony of experts who almost to a man (excepting Treasury spokesmen) condemned the House bill, and doubtful of the adequacy of the revenue returns, the Senate cast aside dubious "reforms" and substituted a rather feeble but much less dangerous compromise measure. It sacrificed consistency to political expediency, however, by retaining a limited flat rate tax of 7 per cent upon undivided corporate profits, while retaining and increasing existing taxes on corporate net incomes. The Senate bill at least made no sharp break with existing practices, and seemed relatively innocuous by comparison with the House bill.

The conference bill is an admission that the Senate fight to modify the drastic provisions of the House bill has been lost. To be sure, the steeply graduated rates of the House levies on undivided profits have been lowered. But as an offset, taxes on corporate incomes, capital stock and excess profits remain, with some reduction in rates. In spite, therefore, of a superficial appearance of greater moderation, the conference bill would greatly increase the tax burdens of moderate sized and larger corporations, if they should seek to withhold any considerable proportion of earned income from stockholders.

Like the House bill, this latest proposal merits the objection expressed by Senators George and Walsh that it will "operate to substitute through tax pressure bureaucratic judgment instead of ownership direction and judgment as to what is sound, prudent, and a financially wise policy necessary for steady employment and general prosperity." Senator Byrd, who led the fight against the House bill, is also justified in describing the conference plan as an illogical compromise "as bad as the House bill, if not worse." If the Senate consents to pass this measure, the successful effort of the Administration to gain recognition for a new principle of corporate taxation may prove to be a Pyrrhic victory.

Justified Rebuff.

The Senate has concurred in the House rejection of an amendment to the deficiency appropriation bill reviving the Florida ship canal project. Thus the prolonged struggle of the Administration to secure Congressional approval for this extravagant, economically indefensible, undertaking ends in defeat.

There remains a slight possibility that the President might still utilize unexpended relief funds on hand to carry on the work. But in view of the resistance that has developed, such action seems most unlikely. Furthermore, it would be difficult to devote funds to the canal without making similar provision for the Passamaquoddy project, which is less costly and probably no more impractical.

At any rate the House deserves credit for its successful stand against the pressure tactics of the Administration, the more so because the Senate had refused to face the issue squarely, letting itself be persuaded to approve the ship canal while turning down the Quoddy project. By so doing, it lost an opportunity to vindicate the important principle for which Senator Vandenberg was fighting—to maintain a modicum of Congressional control over the expenditure of relief funds.

The House, fortunately, remained firm, with the result that the Administration will probably not venture again to allocate a small amount of relief funds to commence a huge undertaking, on the cool assumption that the Legislature will automatically fall in line behind an executive fait accompli.

A Step Forward.

Every thoughtful Washingtonian will breathe a sigh of relief because of the essential feature in the compromise on the District appropriation bill. The provision for a fiscal relations study, which the Senate made a condition of the reduction of $700,000 in the Federal contribution, promises an end to the tragi-comic squabbling which year after year has wasted the time and energy of Congress, and tried the patience of Washingtonians to the breaking point. Even in its reduced form the current cut is unjustifiable. But it can be accepted tolerantly because of the indications that at last a rational procedure for solution of this annual difficulty is in sight.

Arrangements for the fiscal relations study, to be laid before the next Congress, are placed without any strings in the hands of the President, on whom responsibility for this overdue improvement in the District government now devolves. The adequate sum of $50,000 is authorized for the investigation, the specified objective of which is to determine the "equitable amount to be paid by the United States as an annual contribution toward the expenses of the District of Columbia."

Much of the spade work for this investigation is already accomplished. Already at hand, to mention only two examples of source material, are the appropriate statistics from the Federal Census Bureau and Mr. L. H. Parker's excellent study of tax burdens in Washington and other cities. Indeed the work of the President's investigators will be largely a matter of drawing objective conclusions from the mass of evidence which has long been ready for an inquiry of this impartial character. And the residents of the District may await the results of any judicial findings in this field with complete confidence.

The value of this investigation, however, is not confined to its promise of a square deal for Washingtonians. Even more important, from the national viewpoint, is the legitimate expectation that the District may thereby be released from its pitiable status as a football for petty politicians. While Blantonism is rapidly becoming more farcical than dangerous, it cannot be really eliminated until a scientific solution of the fiscal relationship has replaced the present situation, where loud and unscrupulous assertions outweigh the known facts. It will be a gain for the country, not merely the disfranchised District, when gross misstatements regarding the assumed privileges of the National Capital are no longer profitable as local electioneering material.

Just because the issue is so important, a word of warning is advisable. A report on the fiscal relationship problem is now certain, and it may be presumed that the report will be thorough and impartial. But there is not the same assurance that this report will speedily become the basis for determining the ratio in local appropriations. Indeed it is probable that in certain quarters a concerted effort will be made to block all of the progress now foreshadowed. Against such efforts Washingtonians, and such representative organizations as they possess, must be constantly on guard.

Pan-American Fellowships.

The importance of establishing closer political and economic ties between the United States and the nations of Latin America has come to be regarded as axiomatic in this hemisphere.

The Roosevelt Administration has done much to bring this great ideal to fruition. Even greater accomplishments are in prospect. Unfortunately there still remains one great obstacle to better understanding. In the field of cultural relations the United States and Latin America remain literally worlds apart.

Because of the barrier of language, and even more because of its orientation toward Europe, Latin America knows little of what is being done here in the field of the arts and the sciences. Our ignorance of Latin America's intellectual life is even more complete. Yet there is much that North and South America can learn from each other to mutual advantage.

Fortunately, numerous efforts are now under way to breach the wall of cultural isolation between the two Americas. This week's announcement of the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation's annual award to Latin-American scholars is a case in point. Out of 200 applicants from all parts of the continent, two Argentinians, two Mexicans, a Chilean and a Cuban have been awarded generous fellowships which will enable them to carry on their researches at various American universities.

That kind of collaboration can be of the greatest practical value. But what is more important, such fellowships justify the finer meanings of the word. They help to make the United States and Latin America better known to each other with regard to those activities which best reflect the cultures and civilizations of the New World.

"Proof that women are more intelligent then men lies in the fact that nine times in ten a woman wins an argument with a man," asserts a woman writer. That's no proof; intelligent men don't argue with women.

Another thing the cotton and wool industries may as well do is to forget about girls' swim suits and try to find some other outlet.

Gladstone And Landon.

To the Editor of The Post— Sir: Mr. Gladstone, after a speech in the British Parliament, was taunted by an opponent, who declared the great statesman had presented views contradictory to those advocated in a former address. "I will speak what I believe today, if it contradicts everything I said yesterday," cried Gladstone.

Mr. Landon could hurl a similar courageous statement in the teeth of Mr. Farley.

Candid minds, minds that are progressive over accepting new truths, are ready to surrender former belief when they are found wanting.

"Let not him that girdeth in his harness boast himself as he that putteth it off," was King Ahab's reply to the boasting of Ben-hadad. (1 Kings, xx:11.)

Mr. Farley, take notice. It looks very much as though in the coming election it will be: "Life—Landon—Liberty." JOHN N. QUINN.

More Comments on Questionnaire.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial, "Treasure It Reverently," is a delightful tribute to the deliciously naive questionnaire of Judge Blanton addressed to the Washington public school teachers and merits the same preservation among Americana.

There are, however, two features of this immortal document that perhaps deserve some consideration. One is the implication that communism is 100 per cent wicked. But since some truth is required to float any error that floats at all in the atmosphere of human thought, it is expedient, just and fair to observe that communism teaches at least one Christian dogma. All men are brothers and should be so regarded and treated. Of course, Judge Blanton himself believes this and, to the extent of this belief, is himself a Communist. Pagans believe and practice the dogma that some men are born to rule and others to serve.

The second feature of this beautiful treasure from the intellect of this conspicuous expert on District government and American ethics is the implication that here in this "land of the free and home of the brave" the teachers of the District are not brave enough to be free to seek truth wherever found. Consequently this noble proponent of an Index Expurgatorius for the schools himself advertises gratis several men and publications hitherto but little known outside the small circle of the intelligentsia, whatever these are.

Born great, having achieved greatness, now comes this man of genius and pleads that his present greatness has been thrust upon him by the parents and friends of the District schools. Such a marvelous circumvallation of this citadel of America awaits only the sounding of trumpets to bring down the walls of our Jericho.

WILLIAM E. CHANCELLOR.

Washington, June 18.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Hail and congratulations!

I wish to express my appreciation of your editorial in The Post of June 18 dealing with the school questionnaire. Scott Bone in his best days could not have stated the situation more aptly.

ALLAN DAVIS.

Washington, June 18.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Readers of the Congressional Record will recall the bitter hatred displayed on the floor of the House by the blustering Abilene statesman against the gentleman from the State of Washington. Earlier in the session it was necessary to restrain the Texan on several occasions to prevent him from physically assaulting Mr. Zioncheck. Those who know Blanton best generally ascribe his immoderate rage to a feeling of personal jealousy.

This jealousy cannot be because Blanton realizes that Mr. Zioncheck is somewhat his superior in intellect and statesmanship, for if that could be a motive Blanton would have like cause for jealousy against at least 90 per cent of the House membership. Although it is generally conceded that Zioncheck is the abler of the two men, that does not account for the Blanton jealousy. The real reason is not far to seek.

In his 20 years of service in Congress Blanton has never missed an opportunity to get his name in the newspaper headlines. Back in his home district he accomplishes this purpose by countless columns of propaganda extolling his own virtues as a Legislator. Here in Washington he makes the front page through unique and startling feats of showmanship. Blanton's favorite literature is a newspaper article about himself. Any kind of an article will satisfy him if only his own name appears in type often enough.

When he first came to Washington he was vain enough to believe he could fool the boys in the press gallery into regarding him as a real statesman. But he soon abandoned that phase of publicity-seeking because of the keen perception of the writers. He was ignored and was regarded as just another lightweight Congressman. That rebuff, however, did not even ruffle his vanity. Caring little whether he was praised or censured, just so he could make the front page, he was willing to go any length to invite the use of printer's ink. Rather than be left out of the news he seems to have preferred the role of a freak Congressman, even to the point of contesting successfully with all rivals for the coveted title of Public Nuisance No. 1.

But a few months ago along came Mr. Zioncheck with some advertising ambition of his own. Being a little smarter than Blanton, and having an equal flare for dramatic showmanship, Zioncheck was soon crowding Mr. Blanton off the front page. The Texan began to lose sleep and even weight. He became worried and angry and jealous. In recent weeks he must have given much thought to devising absurdities that would surpass Zioncheck's best efforts. Those of us who know Blanton's resourcefulness are still betting that Blanton will ultimately surpass his more brilliant rival.

DIX EDWARD.

Washington, June 18.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There has been a great deal of flag waving from the superpatriots in connection with the proposed repeal of the red rider. Let me rise, very humbly, from my place in the rear of the crowd and ventuhe the statement that patriotism, properly mixed with intelligence, is a fine thing. It is natural and fitting that we should love our country and defend its institutions. But may the good Lord deliver us from a blind unreasoning patriotism which, even though it be well-intentioned, will inevitably defeat its own ends.

The World War, with its oceans of spilled blood, its billions of wasted treasure, its appalling desolation, its aftermath of crime and poverty, which began with hate nurtured by a narrow patriotism and ended in an agony of attrition, soon forgotten—the World War, in which no one won and everyone lost, what better example could you find of the mischief caused by the superpatriots and their refusal to believe that any nation which disagreed with theirs was automatically and unforgivably wrong?

The Campaign Managers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is going to be a campaign worth the price of a ringside seat. Round 1 has already come off, without advance ballyhoo, ink on the articles, or sounding of the bell. Just some cautious circling and exchange of light taps as the antagonists feel one another out. One-Round Farley, leading clumsily, Red (Slugger) Hamilton feinting and seizing the first opening to slide home a telling left jab.

Poor old One-Round! Unless he adapts his style of battle to the present mode and comes back with a counterblast as hot as his original indictment of the "nonentity candidate," has lost the round by a wide margin. It goes to The Slugger by unanimous vote of the pee-pul by reason of pungent verbiage and haymakers smothered by telling rebuttal.

By talking a good fight, One-Round Farley reveals an optimism as deceitful as a campaign cigar. His denunciation and derision advertise his alarm. A few dupes, bunked in the past by the New Deal build-up, distribution of the purse and the vote-corralling system, echo words of cheer and a grudging support—with an eye to the nearest exit from the bandwagon at first sign of a flop.

Washington, June 16.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The public was disturbed, shocked and later nauseated by Farley's methods followed in total disregard of all Civil Service ideals. Good Democrats became disgusted. Friends of the President could not restrain themselves. Senator Norris predicted Farley would cost Roosevelt 1,000,000 votes. Farley's endless chatter of canned speeches, written by supple fingers without responsible authority, invited national ridicule. His attack on Landon was answered with intelligence and dignity by Hamilton. He will make no more attacks in that direction.

HENRY P. WINCHELSON.

Mr. Davis' Denunciations.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A few weeks ago Mr. Chester C. Davis, retiring AAA administrator, was honored by being named to the Federal Reserve Board. The office is one which obviously calls for an objective and judicial point of view if its activities are to command public confidence. This in turn would suggest the propriety of its holder withdrawing from active partisan politics.

But never be it said that Mr Davis is ungrateful to the Administration which has given him a $15,000 job for eight years. Coincident with his appointment he has taken the stump in fervent, if subjectivized, support of the Administration's disputed farm policies and in denunciation of the Republican farm platform.

Whether his views on farm policy are right or wrong, somehow or other these partisan activities are not quite what one expects in a member of the Federal Reserve Board. The ordinary decencies of public life impose certain restraints upon the holders of public office, which are not the less binding because they have not been written into statutes. Of this Mr. Davis is intelligent enough to be aware.

Nevertheless, the Administration expects every appointee to do his duty. Perhaps we shall yet see Justice Cardozo being sent on tour to attack Governor Landon's labor views.

A Kansan Speaks

Some Truths.

Westbrook Pegler, who conducts a syndicated column in a number of newspapers has devoted considerable space lately to Kansas and Kansans. The writer is a native Kansan, a Democrat and a newspaperman.

Pegler attended the Cleveland convention and evidently was very much peeved because Gov. Landon was nominated by the Republicans. Mr. Pegler has a perfect right to oppose Gov. Landon, but he does not need to make an ass of himself by insulting all the good people of Kansas. I am opposed to Mr. Landon, not because he is a Kansan, but because he is a Republican.

Listen to this from the intoxicated mind of Pegler—intoxicated with his own admitted self-satisfaction and superiority complex: "Kansans go East, but the Easterners never go to Kansas except of necessity. Kansas has no beaches, theaters or mountains and hundreds of thousands of persons have crossed the State without ever setting foot on Kansas soil." It is indeed true that Kansans go East, but the Easterners of the type of Pegler are so pleased with themselves and do not care to learn any more that, consequently, of course, they do not visit Kansas.

Certainly Kansas has no beaches or mountains, but how do mountains and beaches affect intelligence, refinement and good citizenship? Kansas theaters will average up with those of other States.

• • • •

"There is always a possibility that the brakeman's cry of 'all aboard,' might be unheard and that a New Yorker might be left stranded in a town which bears the mocking name of Garden City or Newton," says Mr. Pegler. Well, if a Noo Yawkah of the Pegler breed did become stranded in Garden City, the first school boy he met would probably report him to the truant officer or to the probate judge who looks after incompetents, and the first real estate agent he met could sell him the courthouse, if the Kansan weren't too honest to take his money—if the New Yorker had any. Finney County, of which Garden City is the county capital, grows and harvests more sugar beets than the whole State of Noo Yawk. Finney County also grows and produces more alfalfa than New York. For the information of Mr. Pegler, alfalfa is not a kind of spinach for the dinner table, but it is a very nutritive food for horses, cattle and hogs.

Mr. Pegler further writes: "It has been a long time since there was a frontier anywhere in the East, but the grandparents of the present generation of Kansans were sod-hut people, many of whom were born without the assistance of doctors, and the population still knows by personal experience a number of inconveniences which are only newspaper talk to the East. Blizzards, drought, the scorching heats of summer, cyclones and grasshoppers are some that come to mind. And, as if there weren't already enough irritations in the life of the Kansan, a new one was invented for his special discomfort when his farm suddenly blew away on the wind. His farm just blew away."

The writer was born in a "sod hut," 30 miles from the nearest habitation. I have no apology to offer because of that fact and it did not make me any better or any worse. Blizzards—yes, we have had them; but the Kansas winters are not nearly as severe as the winters of New York and the summers are no hotter. Cyclones are no worse or more frequent in Kansas than in any other part of the Middle West or South. Kansas and all of the Middle West experienced a scourge of grasshoppers just once in 82 years. But Pegler's assertion that "his farm just blew away" is not borne out by the facts and shows such a lack of knowledge that it is hardly worth while to refute it.

The dust storms of the past few years were the most unusual events. They had never happened before, may never happen again, and only affected a small part of western Kansas. The top soil which in some cases actually did blow away may have been of some benefit to the worn out farms of New York, but certainly did not damage the Kansas farms much, because the subsoil which was left is just as rich and fertile as the soil which "blew away." If Pegler's "Noo Yawk fahms" had lost that much soil they would have been ruined forever.

It might interest Pegler to know a few truths about Kansas. Kansas ranks thirteenth in size of the 48 States. It is first in the production of wheat, first in the milling industry, and first in the percentage of boys and girls attending higher educational institutions. Kansas has the lowest death rate in the Nation from alcoholism. Smoke that. Kansas has the second largest publisher in the United States—Senator Arthur Capper. The State ranks fourth in production of oil, fifth in railway mileage. Kansas is eighth in amount of wealth per capita, and fourteenth in the number of automobiles. Only three States in the Union have a less percentage of illiteracy—and Noo Yawk is not one of them either. Fully one-third of the Kansas counties have no almshouses or poor farms. Time and space forbid me to enumerate the whole list in which Kansas ranks around the top.

• • • •

The writer knows that the majority of the people of every State in the Union are high type of citizens and there are some bad ones in every State. But for a man to make the broad statement that the citizens of any one State are no good fellows is taking a very narrow perspective and is manifestly unfair. Kansas was settled by a sturdy and God-fearing lot of people. Of course they suffered privations and vicissitudes incident to a pioneer life. The early Kansans, like our colonial forefathers, fought, bled and died that men regardless of color or race should be free citizens. There is no better citizenship in America than in Kansas. They are honest, intelligent and modern. They are generous to a fault, kindly and hospitable.

Truth In Sports.

My friend Jimmy Powers, the sport editor of the New York Daily News, backs off and showers himself with fresh-mown rose petals as a member of a new school of sport writers who have the vision and courage to tell the truth and nothing else but. Aside from the fact that Mr. Powers was riding the trains with the ball clubs and hanging around the fight camps a dozen years ago, and therefore, is no wide-eyed juvenile himself, his essay calls for a little correction. I don't like to go around telling people's ages on them, but no man who remembers the Meusel brothers and Jackie Coogan's debut has any right to talk baby talk and ask people if Harry Greb was as great as the old-timers say.

"Carpentier," says he, "was studiously ballooned into a cardboard terror, and patriotic French bankrolls were tossed for 50-kilometer losses." We will just skim lightly over the fantastic idea that any Frenchman ever lost his mind to that extent and proceed to the fact that every sport writer who covered the Dempsey-Carpentier assignment warned the citizens that the pair were simply no match.

Carpentier was so bad that he did his boxing in secret in a ring pitched behind an old barn in Manhassat, Long Island, but we finally prevailed upon them to put him in the ring with a few punching dummies. In these little exhibitions he showed himself to be even worse than we had suspected, and we all told the customers so day after day. By ring time the journalists were almost unanimous in predicting that Carpentier would not come up for Round 4, and there were some who said Dempsey could knock him over whenever he chose to do so.

Nevertheless, the patrons turned out to the extent of $1,800,000, and, though they saw no fight worth the name, they did get their money's worth in excitement. That seems to be their reason for going to expensive prize fights, anyway, for they always ignore warnings of mockery if the occasion strikes their imagination.

* * * *

Well within Mr. Powers' experience as a sport writer the customers were touted off the Sharkey-Scott fight in Florida, but attended, nevertheless. And Mr. Powers surely remembers the disclosures of the Boo-Boo Hoff funny papers which Gene Tunney signed within an hour before he entered the ring for his first fight with Dempsey. The Hoff funny papers were a sort of contract awarding Hoff a share of Tunney's earnings as champion in case he won the fight. They were negotiated by Abe Attell, the pillow-man of the fake world series of 1919, and Mr. Hoff openly described himself as an underworld character. Mr. Tunney told a bed-time story by way of explanation. He said his manager, Uncle Will Gibson, was about to buy a house in New York and wanted a few thousand cash to close the deal and was all balled up with the urgent business of buying a house in New York within the hour of sending his gladiator out to fight in Philadelphia for an asset which then was worth several million dollars.

Nevertheless, the next time Tunney fought, Dempsey the customers bought almost $3,000,000 worth of tickets. They did this in spite of the further fact that two nights before the fight in Chicago a notorious racketeer of the prohibition era made a secret call on Dempsey at his training quarters accompanied by a member of the Illinois Prize Fight Commission.

* * * *

If there ever was an age of skepticism in sport writing it was the Era of Wonderful Nonsense which led up to the Great American Panic.

Mr. Powers says Primo Carnera was puffed up into a fairy-book ogre, when a reference to the files will show that we all declared he could not fight a lick, that he was owned and operated by a gang of racketeers and that the derelicts whom he was knocking over night after night were the most pathetic and feeble hulks to be found in the old volumes of the Boxing Guide.

When Primo knocked out Jack Sharkey a lot of us expressed the opinion that Sharkey quit, but were unable to set forth our reasons for thinking so. We told the truth as far as we could about the Sharkey-Delaney thing and the Delaney-Paulino thing, and a lot of us were constantly telling disenchanting truths about the baseball magnates and their business methods in dealing with the heroes of the so-called national game. We ridiculed the phoney amateurism of the professional amateurs of the tennis business, we pointed out the pro teams in intercollegiate football and we plainly identified those race tracks in Florida, Illinois, Ohio and elsewhere which were conducted by bootleggers.

But it never made any difference to the customers. They loved the excitement, and some of them used to write letters protesting against these efforts to spoil their illusions.

The sport writers of the moment have been, in the main, quite unromantic about the Louis-Schmeling fight, but with the contention that they are the ones who lit the torch I entirely disagree. The torch was burning fiercely a dozen years ago, and I distinctly remember seeing Mr. Powers himself carrying the same as far back as 1925. But the customers didn't know it was the torch of truth. They thought it was a lynching or a house on fire and came a-running from all directions.

Middle Atlantic States Most Conservative in Poll

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, June 19.—The Middle Atlantic States, which account for more than half of the Nation's savings bank deposits and over 40% of total life insurance in force, lead the country in number of voters who call themselves "conservatives," according to the results of a Nation-wide poll taken by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

The question put to a representative cross-section of voters in every State in the Union was:

"If there were only two political parties in the country—Conservative and Liberal—which would you join?"

| | Voters Classifying Themselves As: CONSERVATIVE | LIBERAL |
|---|---|---|
| Middle Atlantic States | 60% | 40% |

| | Voters Classifying Themselves As: CONSERVATIVE | LIBERAL |
|---|---|---|
| Maryland | 76% | 24% |

Complete results of the poll, showing how all sections of the country voted, will appear in Sunday's Post.

Tax Bill Is Passed by House

that Representative Lindsay Warren, in the Speaker's chair, had to rap continually for order.

Wearing a Landon sunflower, Representative Robert F. Rich, (Republican), Pennsylvania, pitched into every Democratic member who attempted to explain the measure.

"This bill breaks down all of the fundamental principles of thrift that your father and my father taught us," he yelled above the din.

Hill Is Applauded.

Outlining the conference action, Representative Samuel B. Hill (Democrat), of Washington, made what is probably his last speech in the House before accepting a post on the Board of Tax Appeals. He received an ovation after Treadway lauded his House service, and gave minority indorsement to the President's selection.

One by one, the Democratic conferees took their turn at explaining the measure, Representative Fred M. Vinson, of Kentucky, and Chairman Doughton winding up the procession. They were constantly heckled by the minority. One Democrat, Representative Pettengill, of Indiana, took the floor against the bill, declared it discriminated against small business, and said he could not vote for it.

Representative Frank Crowther (Republican), of New York, said it was "tax Hungarian goulash and pot pourri."

Previously a blistering minority report was filed with the Senate by Senators David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, and Walter F. George, of Georgia (Democrats). They said the bill is "contrary to every dictate of prudence, contrary to every sound business principle, contrary to the experience of the past, inimical to thereal welfare of the stockholders and will tend to promote insecurity for the workers in industry."

A Republican minority conference report in the House called the "compromise" bill "a hybrid tax measure resulting from the unnatural union of two conflicting theories of taxation," and declared "much more could be said relative to the general policy underlying the President's proposal and its injurious effect upon the country."

Held Aid to Monopoly.

Senator Harry Flood Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, who forced general moderations in the Senate's own tax bill, assailed the conference agreement as penalizing weak and growing companies, but benefiting strong corporations in a position to distribute all current earnings in dividends. He said the bill, if passed, "will entrench monopolies and destroy competition."

Meeting in Washington, the board of directors of the United States Chamber of Commerce, which battled the bill through House and Senate committees, said the compromise bill "embodied a destructive theory of taxation" and "we are convinced it would retard recovery and discourage re-employment."

Atrocity, Says Vandenberg.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, took the floor of the Senate to pronounce the bill "a climax in the unsound, wishful, disruptive economics which have become a national curse." Vandenberg called it a "tax atrocity," which "races toward the further destruction of every real impulse which would encourage recovery."

Despite this thunder of opposition at the bill's dual imposition of undivided-profits taxation and graduated normal levies on corporate income, opponents of the bill showed little disposition to fight the measure to the point of balking final adjournment on Monday. The real battle will come in the Senate, but even here only 41 votes are said to have been mustered against the bill.

Byrd Issues Statistics.

A spearhead of the Democratic conservative attack on the bill, Senator Byrd released detailed tables showing how the undivided profits tax would increase the tax burden of both large and small corporations.

If no distribution of dividends were made, he said, the taxes of low-income corporations would be increased as follows over the present law:

| Company net income. | Increase. |
|---|---|
| $1,000 | 15 per cent |
| $3,000 | 21 per cent |
| $5,000 | 26 per cent |
| $10,000 | 61 per cent |
| $20,000 | 98 per cent |
| $50,000 | 1[illegible] per cent |
| $100,000 | 117 per cent |

With a 50 per cent distribution of dividends, he said, the weaker corporations still would be severely penalized, as follows:

| Company net income. | Increase. |
|---|---|
| $10,000 | 5 per cent |
| $20,000 | 19 per cent |
| $50,000 | 37 per cent |
| $100,000 | 40 per cent |

"The big will stay big and the little will remain little," Senator Byrd said in a statement.

"No provision is made for corporations paying debts out of earnings or constructing a new plant. A corporation must pay a high supertax if earnings are applied to debt payments and if earnings are used for development. The only cushion is that a few corporations who already have legal contracts not to pay dividends are protected.

Foresees Escape.

Byrd said that "strong monopolistic corporations" already have large liquid surpluses and that such corporations will pay their earnings out in dividends, thus escaping the undivided profits tax. Weaker competitors, unable to tap an accumulated surplus, he pointed out, would be fully subject to the tax.

"I realize the need of raising additional revenue by reason of the huge appropriation bills passed, but I shall never vote for a system of taxation that destroys the weak and fortifies for all future to come the strong and prosperous companies," Byrd said.

Directors of the United States Chamber of Commerce took the same line of attack.

"Through penalizing prudent management it would undermine confidence," the chamber officials said in a statement. "It would discriminate against new enterprises and those which are financially weak in favor of those which are well established and possess ample funds.

The chamber statement labeled the measure a further "disheartening" note in a "period of reconstruction, burdensome tax increases, accompanied by increasing appropriations and harassments of business initiative."

"It apparently has not been recognized that Government revenues in the year now closing are at a peace-time peak," the directors said.

"In the endeavor to stimulate reemployment and general recovery, this particular measure would provide a substantial obstacle. Business interests believe that immediate steps should be taken to prepare for the consideration of the next session of Congress, a comprehensive plan of carefully devised expenditures and revenues, looking toward progressive improvement of the fiscal condition of the Government.

Senators George and Walsh, who had blasted the bill when the conference agreement was reached Thursday, submitted a minority report yesterday because, they said, the undivided profits tax principle "is utterly unsound in principle and disastrous in its application."

"It can not be too often reiterated nor too strongly emphasized that the theory and concept of a tax on a sliding scale on undistributed corporate earnings is to penalize the accumulation of corporate surpluses and reserves," the Senate minority report stated. "It is designed to encourage, if not indeed to compel corporations large and small to distribute all their earnings, even though they are merely inventory gains, and to lay aside nothing for a rainy day."

They said it was both "unfair and absurd" to penalize future reserve accumulations of all corporations to prevent "tax avoidance of a few rascals."

Pointing out that if "necessary, reasonable and equitable exemptions were made, there would be a very substantial diminution in the revenue demands of the Treasury," their statement added:

"This very fact indicates that this measure will collect the major portion of the $860,000,000 requested by the Treasury from business concerns who are emerging from the depression with debts, impaired capital, obsolete machinery, and empty treasury reserves, and plants in need of rehabilitation."

The House Republican minority report charged the compromise bill retains "all of the objectionable features" of the original House bill and declared against any new taxes "until the Administration has at least made an honest effort to reduce expenditures and eliminate waste and extravagance."

The House Republican report said the bill "still penalizes the accumulation of necessary, 'rainy day' reserves; it still penalizes the payment of debts; and it still penalizes corporations which reinvest their earnings for the purpose of rehabilitation or expansion."

Senator Vandenberg in his Senate speech complained that the compromise bill "is the makeshift product of a star chamber House and Senate conference, which, in sheer desperation, has subordinated principle to expediency."

Action on the measure, he charged, "is precipitated more by an anxiety to adjourn than by any such adequate consideration as ought to precede a new levy of some $700,000,000 upon the already breaking backs of American taxpayers."

He attacked the bill on three other grounds—that it asks for more revenue, without any corresponding attempt to cut Government spending; that it is the "worst" of a series of attacks on thrift and prudence; and that it encourages "big business and monopoly," but "crucifies" small business and denies it growth.

"This bill," he concluded, "is beyond extenuation or apology."

Political Convention.

(The scene is the Twitchell home. Elmer and Mrs. Twitchell are trying to find out what is happening by radio.)

Elmer—It certainly is wonderful to be able to sit here and hear everything that goes on at a convention thousands of miles away, isn't it?

Mrs. Twitchell—It's marvelous.

Voice—Thanks, Charlie; that was very nice of you. Now we're back in the convention hall, folks. It's very close here, and the people are milling about. The chairman is about to make an important speech, so we will take you downtown to the Elks Club and see how the platform committee is doing . . . Take it away, Wilbur.

Wilbur—Thanks, Otis; that's very nice of you.

Another voice—Thanks, Wilbur; that was very interesting . . . We're back in the convention hall, folks, and they're staging a great demonstration for . . . Harry, suppose you give the radio audience your impression of this stirring scene.

Harry—Thanks, Edgar . . . I think that to give you the right picture it will be best to go back to last September, when a small group of men met in Skaneateles and . . . That was very interesting, Harry, but now the convention has come to order and the chairman is about to read an important message.

* * * *

(The curtain will be lowered to denote the passing of two days and nights. Mr. and Mrs. Twitchell are still sticking it out at the radio.)

* * * *

Voice—The result of the roll call to name a Presidential candidate will now be announced . . . Are you there, Otis?

Otis—Yes, Wilbur . . . Folks, this is Otis Wozzle, on the roof of the convention hall, from which point I can describe the scenes outside the auditorium. The streets are full of people, and . . .

Voice—That was fine, Otis . . . Now, folks, you have heard the result of the roll call, and I want you to hear an analysis of what has happened so far from William Quodd . . . Take it, Will.

Mr. Quodd—Some of you may recall that 11 years ago . . .

Voice—Just a minute, Will . . . The nominee has just sent a telegram, and as it will be read immediately this will be a good time to take the radio audience to Kalamazoo and see what is going on out there.

Voice—Charlie, suppose you break in from Wichita.

Voice—Jimmy, are you ready now with the nominee's daughter in Minneapolis?

Chairman—Ladies and gentlemen, the ticket has now been completed and a motion to adjourn has been made and seconded . . .

Voice—Thanks, Arthur . . . Thanks, Wilbur . . . That was very good, Horace . . . Would you mind giving the radio audience an analysis of what has happened, Mr. Quodd?

Mrs. Twitchell—Awah-h-h-h!

Borah to Back Landon, Ticket, Friend Asserts

McKaig Also Says Grange Leaders Mostly Will Vote Republican.

By the Associated Press.

Towanda, Pa., June 19.—Ray McKaig, National Grange deputy and a personal friend of U. S. Senator William E. Borah, said tonight the Senator will support Gov. Landon for President.

McKaig also declared emphatically in an interview that he (McKaig) will not be a candidate for United States Senator from Idaho.

"With Senator Borah filing for re-election I would not be foolish enough," he said.

When asked whether Senator Borah would support Landon he replied:

"Of course he will. He has never bolted the ticket yet. Gov. Landon has the support of the agricultural forces in Kansas and almost unanimous support of the grange leaders. He helped put the grange program through the Legislature in Kansas and there is no reason in the world why Borah would not support Gov. Landon. I have every reason to believe that he will."

He said Landon's "gold plank" was a "disappointment, of course," but added that it will not alienate Borah's support.

Landon Adds Trio.

Topeka, Kans., June 19 (AP).—Puffing a new brier pipe, gift of Kansas editors, Gov. Alf M. Landon announced today three additions to his campaign staff—Charles P. Taft, son of the former President; Ralph West Robey, Columbia University economist, and E. Ross Bartley, Chicago.

The new pipe was given Gov. Landon with the admonition that he "keep the old one to fumigate the statehouse and smoke out Jim Farley and Tammany." More than 50 members of the Kansas Editorial Association and their wives crowded into his office for the presentation.

Taft, brother of Robert Taft, Ohio's "favorite son" candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination, will be stationed in Topeka during most of the campaign, Landon said.

Asked about the nature of the work to be done by the new staff, the Governor said, "they'll form the usual campaign staff. They'll assist me in the campaign."

"They will not be a brain trust," he replied firmly to questioners at a press conference.

Taft said "please don't think I'm a brain truster—I'm a politician." His meetings with the Governor, he said, will be "to discuss security further with him."

Bartley Formerly Here.

The Governor said Bartley, former Washington correspondent, would assist in press relations and would be the only member of his staff to accompany him to Colorado next week. Others, he said, might follow later.

Bartley became secretary to Vice President Charles G. Dawes in 1925. Since then he has been employed in Republican organization work in Illinois.

Dr. Charles Bullock, Harvard professor emeritus and tax authority, called on the Republican Presidential nominee late today.

Contemporary Drama

Printed Plays.

Inasmuch as it is necessary to visit New York City and spend a great deal of money in order to see the new plays of every season, it is fortunate that most of them are now published very soon after their first appearance; in this way readers in every part of our country can become familiar with the contemporary drama, and find out for themselves why certain plays are successful.

There is no better program for a year's study in the various reading clubs than the Contemporary Drama. Any good bookshop in any town can tell the prospective purchaser what plays are obtainable in print.

* * * *

Of the plays produced on the metropolitan stage durfng the season just closing, 1935-1936, the following are now published: "Idiot's Delight," by Robert E. Sherwood, published by Charles Scribner's Sons; "Murder in the Cathedral," by T. S. Eliot, published by Harcourt Brace & Co.; "End of Summer," by S. N. Behrman, published by Random House; "Winterset," by Maxwell Anderson, published by Dodd, Mead & Co.; "First Lady," by George S. Kaufman and Katharine Dyton, published by Random House; "Russett Mantle," by Lynn Riggs, published by Samuel French; "Bury the Dead," by Irwin Shaw, published by Random House; "Paradise Lost," by Clifford Odets, published by Random House.

* * * *

All the Pulitzer Prize Plays from the beginning in 1918 to 1934, 16 in all, are printed complete in one volume by Random House.

The complete plays by Sir James Barrie and the complete plays by John Galsworthy are published respectively in one volume by Charles Scribner's Sons.

Planks in Lemke's Platform

By the Associated Press.

Representative William Lemke, of North Dakota, who announced his Presidential candidacy on a new party ticket yesterday, issued this 15-plank platform of "the Union Party of the United States:"

1. America shall be self-contained and self-sustained—no foreign entanglements, be they political, economic, financial or military.

2. Congress and Congress alone shall coin and issue the currency and regulate the value of all the money and credit in the United States through a central bank of issue.

3. Immediately following the establishment of the central bank if issue, Congress shall provide for the retirement of all tax exempt, interest-bearing bonds and certificates of indebtedness of the Federal Government, and shall refinance all the present agricultural mortgage indebtedness for the farmer and all the home mortgage indebtedness for the city owner by the use of its money and credit which it now gives to the private bankers.

4. Congress shall legislate that there will be an assurance of a living annual wage for all laborers capable of working and willing to work.

Favors Security for Aged.

5. Congress shall legislate that there will be an assurance of production at a profit for the farmer.

6. Congress shall legislate that there will be assurance of reasonable and decent security for the aged, who, through no fault of their own, have been victimized and exploited by an unjust economic system which has so concentrated wealth in the hands of a few that it has impoverished great masses of our people.

7. Congress shall legislate that American agricultural, industrial and commercial markets will be protected from manipulation of foreign moneys and from all raw materials and processed goods produced abroad at less than a living wage.

8. Congress shall establish an adequate and perfect defense for our country from foreign aggression either by air, by land or by sea, but with the understanding that our naval, air and military forces must not be used under any consideration in foreign fields or in foreign waters either alone or in conjunction with any foreign power. If there must be conscription, there shall be a conscription of wealth as well as conscription of men.

Against Spoils System.

9. Congress shall so legislate that all Federal offices and positions of every nature shall be distributed through civil service qualifications and not through the system of party spoils and corrupt patronage.

10. Congress shall restore representative government to the people of the United States to preserve the sovereignty of the individual States of the United States by the ruthless eradication of bureaucracies.

11. Congress shall organize and institute Federal works for the conservation of public lands, waters and forests, thereby creating billions of dollars of wealth, millions of jobs at the prevailing wage, and thousands of homes.

12. Congress shall protect all industry and private enterprise by controlling and decentralizing the economic domination of monopolies to the end that these small industries and enterprises may not only survive and prosper but that they may be multiplied.

Protection for Youth.

13. Congress shall protect private property from confiscation through unnecessary taxation with the understanding that the human rights of the masses take precedence over the financial rights of the classes.

14. Congress shall set a limitation upon the net income of any individual in any one year and a limitation of the amount that such an individual may receive as a gift or as an inheritance, which limitation shall be executed through taxation.

15. Congress shall re-establish conditions so that the youths of the Nation, as they emerge from schools and colleges, will have the opportunity to earn a decent living while in the process of perfecting and establishing themselves in a trade or profession.

Lemke to Seek Presidency

the old parties and will run for President of the United States as a candidate of the Union Party, which I am instrumental in establishing officially, in accordance with the thousands of messages and requests which I have received from over the Nation.

"The Hon. Thomas Charles O'Brien, of Boston, has signified his willingness to seek the Vice Presidency on the same platform.

"I have arranged with friends of mine to proceed with filing the name of 'the Union Party,' the emblem, the names of Presidential electors, my own name and that of Mr. O'Brien in order to fulfill the specific law of each State relative to filing.

"I am hoping that the platform which I have submitted to my friends, and have asked them to publicize, will meet with wide approval. To my own mind, it is the only platform which will embody the principles which will save Democracy and put a permanent end to the so-called depression.

"Some three-quarters of a century ago this Nation was at the crossroads. The issue of human slavery confronted our people. The decision, as to whether the Nation should remain half free or half slavery had to be made. oPlitical parties of that day temporized with the issue of human slavery and brought about the Civil War and incidentally the formation of a new party headed by Abraham Lincoln, dedicated to the preservation of the Union and elimination of human slavery.

"Today we are again at the crossroads and the issue again is slavery—economic slavery. Today we are in the midst of another war—the war against a man-made depression. It has reduced our Nation to the lowest economic state in its history, leaving a trail of suffering, starvation and want in a land of plenty. Two major parties have had ample opportunity to seriously attempt to remedy the economic ills of our Nation. They have been found wanting.

Elected as Republican.

"There is only one solution. That is through the formation of a new party which I am launching today, to be known as the Union Party of the United States."

Lemke, self-styled nonpartisan, elected to the House on the Republican ticket, is best known in the Capital for his advocacy of farm-mortgage moratorium and refinancing legislation.

Lemke's bill to refinance farm debt at low interest with $3,000,000,000 of new currency was crushed in the House last May after it long had been pigeonholed by Administration forces in committee.

Prior to this setback the Supreme Court had declared the Frazier-Lemke farm-mortgage moratorium bill, of which he was co-author, unconstitutional.

Speaks Over Radio.

Lemke, as attorney general of North Dakota in 1921, had charge of drafting laws establishing an industrial program in that State, and has been connected with many farm organizations in the West.

Lemke went on the air last night to ask the country's approval of his platform.

In his transcribed speech, he said that the Union Party would be "nonpartisan" so far as Congressional elections were concerned.

"It (the party) will support those members of Congress who voted for progressive legislation. It will support those members of Congress who favor a change in the rules of the lower House of Congress, in order to re-establish representative government in the Congress of the United States, so that any bill that the people really want voted upon can have a vote upon the floor of the House after discussion and debate. It will support those members, regardless of party or party affiliation."

Honored on Birthday.

Boston, June 19 (AP).—Thomas O'Brien, once district attorney of Suffolk County (Boston), celebrated his forty-ninth birthday anniversary tonight bx becoming the candidate for the Vice Presidency of the United States on the Union Party ticket headed by Representative William Lemke.

O'Brien is a Boston attorney and an enrolled Democrat.

He declined to make any formal statement, but admitted he would take an active part in campaigning for the independent party.

While gaining his education at Boston Latin School, Harvard College and Harvard Law School, O'Brien worked as a baggageman and brakeman on the Boston & Albany Railroad.

After his graduation from law school in 1911, he became counsel for the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen of America in New England and for affiliated organizations of engineers, firemen, telegraphers and signalmen.

He is married and the father of a son and three daughters ranging in age from 17 to 21 years. He resides in the Brighton section of Boston, his birthplace.

He formerly was a member of the Massachusetts Parole Board and served as deputy director of prisons.

In 1922, he was elected district attorney of Suffolk County on the Republican ticket and remained in that office until 1927.

Coughlin Backs Party.

New York, June 19 (AP).—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin tonight pledged his support to Representative William Lemke (Republican), North Dakota, and the new "Union" Party formed six hours earlier in Washington, and called upon his National Union for Social Justice to follow him. He denounced both the Republican and Democratic parties and in a dramatic period told his radio audience:

"God speed William Lemke and his friends as they proceed to file in each State."

The National Union, he said, "does not depart from its policy in indorsing the Union Party candidate for President of the United States."

Behind Lemke and Thomas Charles O'Brien, of Boston, the Vice Presidential candidate, Father Coughlin said would rally "every lover of liberty who desires to eradicate the cancerous growths from decadent capitalism and avoid the treacherous pitfalls of Communism."

He referred to O'Brien's Harvard University background, adding:

"Lemke and Yale, agriculture and Republican! O'Brien and Harvard, labor and Democrat." (Lemke was graduated from Yale.)

"East and West!"

"Protestant and Catholic, possessing one program of driving the money changers from the temple, of permitting the wealth of America to flow into every home."

Denouncing the Roosevelt administration, Father Coughlin said that "for God's command of 'increase and multiply' spoken to our first parents, the satanic principle of 'decrease and devastate' has been substituted."

"My friends," he went on, "I come before you tonight not to ask you to return to the Landons, to the Hoovers, to the old deal exploiters who honestly defended the dishonest system of gold standardism and rugged individualism. Their sun has set, never to rise again."

Birth of Union Party.

"Six hours ago the birth of 'the Union Party' was officially announced to the newspapers of the Nation, thereby confirming information which hitherto was mine officially.

"The new candidate for President, together with his sponsors, formally requested my support as they handed to me his platform. I have studied it carefully. I find that it is in harmony substantially with the principles of social justice."

Leaders Doubt Race by Lemke Will Be Factor

Major Swing in Votes Held Unlikely by Big Party Leaders.

By the United Press.

Nation-wide comment on the announcement of Representative William Lemke (N. Dak.) that he will head a third party ticket in the Presidential elections this fall was varied.

At Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, said:

"It's a free country. Lemke has a right to run, but who's going to support him besides Coughlin? I do not take the candidacy very seriously. The only chance it has is by a union of Coughlin and Townsend. Three Messiahs—Coughlin, Townsend and Smith—and one Presidential candidate can't make a party. There will be too much friction.

"Perhaps some Republicans are taking a flyer in financing this new party. If it has any political effect, it will hurt Roosevelt."

Conference Called.

It was uncertain whether the new party would be able to obtain substantial support from the Western Progressives in Congress. Senator Robert M. La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin, has called a conference of the Progressives to decide their course after the Democratic National Convention.

Senator Tom Connally (Democrat), Texas, said, "There's no place for a third party in the United States. I don't see how they can get any place."

Senator Frederick Steiwer (Republican), Oregon, said, "If the third party is given the support of strong left wing blocks, it might be formidable in the sense that it will attract a large number of voters. It would not, however, be significant otherwise. It would take more votes from the New Deal than from the Republican Party, but it would not affect the final result. It might increase votes for Gov. Landon in the electoral college."

Scientist Churches Announce Topic

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The golden text is from Proverbs 3:19; "The Lord by wisdom hath founded the earth; by understanding hath He established the heavens."

Among the citations which compose the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "And I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away, and there was no more sea." (Revelation 21:1.)

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "In St. John's vision, heaven and earth stand for spiritual ideas, and the sea, as a symbol of tempest-tossed human concepts advancing and receding, is represented as having passed away."

Kiwanis Head to Talk To Two Bible Classes

Harper Gatton, president of Kiwanis International, who is here for sessions of an annual convention, will speak at a joint meeting of Fultz and Crescent Bible Classes at Memorial United Brethren Church at 9:40 a. m. tomorrow.

Dr. Simpson B. Daugherty, pastor, will preach at 11 a. m. on "At the Cross." Vespers will be at 7:30 p. m. and include a message from the minister.

Dr. Harris to Lecture At Church Conference

Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of Foundry M. E. Church, will go to Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va., this week to give a series of lectures at the conference of 500 colored preachers. He will speak twice Tuesday, the opening day of the summer institute and once each day through Friday.

Dr. Robert M. Williams, pastor of Asbury A. M. E. Church in Washington, is a vice president of the institute. Several other pastors of local colored parishes will also attend.

Dr Brooks to Preach.

Dr. R. W. Brooks, pastor of Lincoln Congregational Temple, will preach tomorrow morning on "Unseen Resources." Holy Communion will be observed. George E. Cohron, director of the U. S. Employment Center, will address members of the Men's Brotherhood at 10 a. m.

The Federal Diary

Registered in U. S. Patent Office.

By Betty Read.

Fingerprints may mean criminal justice to most people but to a gray-haired man in the office of the Adjutant General, U. S. Army, they are a method of identification which has nothing to do with gangsters and jail-birds.

Christopher Columbus Bennett has spent 20 years of his life in fingerprint work which has no connection with the underworld and yet he has turned up almost as many queer stories as the fingerprint man in police work.

Bennett's job is the fingerprinting of Uncle Sam's soldiers and he estimates that he has placed the revealing little black smudges on official records at least 30,000 times and has handled more than 300,000 files of prints.

It's His Hobby, Too.

Fingerprinting is not only his livelihood but his hobby and when he leaves his office at night he takes his work with him. He has fingerprinted several Presidents, a couple hundred school children and headliners of all types. But all have been in the interest of non-criminal identification, a sure-fire method which he would like to see made compulsory for every person in the country.

Why? Well, fingerprints saved the Government millions of dollars, he claims, in the recent payment of the soldiers' bonus. Spurious claims were quickly weeded out by the fingerprint test. There are 40,000 unknown dead buried each year in potters' field, a large percentage of whom could be identified if fingerprinting were compulsory. The number of amnesia cases is surprisingly large and stories of disputed identity in inheritance and insurance cases are not rare. All these Bennett pointed out as ones which could be solved quickly.

"There are many reasons why universal fingerprinting would be an excellent thing," he said, "in the Army we have 2,400 men named John Smith. Many are the same age and were even born in the same towns. Hundreds of them have the same middle initials. We have needed fingerprints to identify them a number of times."

At his home Bennett keeps a file of the famous people whose prints he has been asked to take. The late President Taft sent for him one day and asked to be printed. Taft explained he was setting an example which he hoped others would follow. Bennett also fingerprinted President Harding and one of his prize exhibits is the card showing the prints of the Siamese twins.

No Two People Alike.

"I took them to illustrate that no two people have the same fingerprints," he said.

His interest in his job began at the time of the tragedy on the steamer, General Slocum, on the East River in New York, when 1,021 women and children were burned to death or perished by leaping into the water from the boat which was carrying them to a Sunday school picnic.

"Six hundred of those victims were buried without identification and this would have been unnecessary if they had been fingerprinted."

He told a story of a man who disappeared in Grand Central Station, New York, and recently, after eight months of search, was found in a Southern city where he attracted the attention of the police. His fingerprints were broadcast and came to the Army Bureau of Identification as a routine matter. Here they were identified as those of a World War veteran. The man was a prosperous leather merchant who lost his memory while on his way home one night.

Civil Service Jobs Listed.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces acceptance of applications not later than July 6, 1936, for the following positions:

Junior chemist, $2,000 a year.

Junior agronomist, junior animal fiber technologist, junior animal husbandman (beef and dual-purpose cattle), junior animal husbandman (sheep), junior animal husbandman (swine), junior biologist (food habits research), junior biologist (for resources), junior soil surveyor, junior soil technologist, junior zoologist, $2,000 a year, Department of Agriculture.

Personnel officer, $4,600 a year; principal personnel assistant, $3,800 a year; senior personnel assistant, $3,200 a year; personnel assistant, $2,600 a year.

America has become sport-minded—at least, there is a great increase in the number of people who want to seek quiet and solitude along the wooded streams and lakes, for the Division of Fish Culture in the United States Bureau of Fisheries reports that in the past two years its work has doubled. This means that the stocking of streams and other waterways has jumped to meet the demands of the Isaac Waltons of the country. Throughout the Nation there are 93 hatcheries doing this job.

The most complete exhibit the Deparmtent of State has ever assembled is the one now on display at the Texas Centennial in Dallas. According to dry figures it takes up 2,200 square feet of space, but Clinton E. MacEachran, chief clerk and administrative assistant in the Department of State, who was in charge of assembling it, guarantees it is well worth looking over.

And one of its features is especially attractive to Texans for every Texan, whether he can read or not, knows the colorful history of his State, MacEachran said. So the exhibit of documents relating to the annexation of Texas has proved very popular. These documents are treasures in the National Archives, but MacEachran sent experts to the files to copy them so exactly that it difficult to tell the ones on display in Dallas from the originals here in Washington.

For the passport division display, there is a diarama of a night sailing from New York Harbor and the department's exhibit also includes the flags of the 61 countries with which we maintain diplomatic relations. The Secretary of State's own flag is shown and for the first time in the department's history a replica of the reverse side of the United States Seal has been put out for public gaze.

On the Air Today

The first of the predicted new full hour shows will be heard even before summer is well on us. The "Caravan," after June 25, will be heard as a one-hour presentation, taking its place in the group now comprised of Fred Allen's "Town Hall Tonight," "Hollywood Hotel," the Major Bowes hour, "Radio Theater" and others.

The first of the full-hour "Caravans" will be heard Tuesday night, June 30. For the past few months the "Caravan," with Walter O'Keefe, Glen Gray and his orchestra, Deane Janis and others, has been offered in two half-hour periods. The new show has been set for Tuesday nights. WJSV is the station.

Some amusing observations can be made occasionally when a good press agent gets into action. For example, on last Sunday's radio page appeared a bit of an item relative to the influence Fred Allen was exercising quite innocently on the script program known as "Forever Young." It was reported that Allen always referred to the program as "Pepper Young's Family" and the production department was just about ready to take a cue from Allen and rename the show.

About the middle of the week came a solicitation from Earle Ferris, who looks after many radio stars' publicity. It said that the title of "Forever Young" was to be changed, in all probability, and three suggested titles were listed on a return post card. Would I please check the one I liked best, return the card, and in due time the new title would be announced—based in part on the selections of radio writers.

In the same mail was an announcement from N. B. C. saying the serial show "Forever Young," would change time late in June and would thenceforth appear under the title of "Pepper Young's Family!"

Bob Longstreet tells me that his new Saturday afternoon program up there at Frederick, titled "Teen Age Matinee," is proving very successful. All the young folks too old for kid shows and too young for adult work are having the times of their lives. You can hear one of the programs this afternoon at 4, WFMD, 900 kilocycles, or right alongside WRC on your dials.

Features today:

Lazy romance: Is theme of "Barn Dance," emphasizing such tunes as "Lazy Dan in the Sun," "If You Can't Get a Girl in the Summertime," "Waiting at the Gate for Katie," "When the Wild, Wild Roses Bloom," "Hello, Bluebird," and many others, WMAL at 8:30.

Liberty League: Jouett Shouse, on "New Deal Versus Democracy," WMAL, at 9:30.

Meredith Willson: With more old favorites, including "Thanks," "Singing in the Rain," "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking?" "You're My Thrill," "Down the Old Ox Road," "Time on My Hands," "Good Night, Sweetheart," and "I've Got an Invitation to a Dance," WRC, at 7:30.

• • • •

The Works Progress Administration takes advantage of the radio to hold a staff meeting this afternoon at 4, WRC. Thousands of persons in hundreds of cities will "attend" either as employes or citizens. Harry Hopkins will preside and conduct a round-table discussion of policies.

"Professor Quiz" appears again to have outgrown his studio facilities. The WJSV show is expected soon to move from the Willard Room of the Willard Hotel to the small ballroom. You're invited, WJSV, at 8:30 tonight, either through your loud speaker, or a personal visit at the Willard where you can see the show exactly as it goes on the air. High spot of the series: Last Saturday night, when a contestant said an "escalator" was a "machine that manufactured babies."

Miss Stevens, Mr. Greyer Are Married

Mrs. Lynn Woodworth Honor Matron; Bride Carries Lily Bouquet.

Two families whose names were prominent in Colonial history, were united yesterday when Miss Martha McClelland Stevens, daughter of Mrs. John Leo Coontz, became the bride of Mr. Charles Peyton Lewis Greyer, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peyton Lewis Greyer, of Morganton, N. C. The bride is a lineal descendant of George Read, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and a granddaughter of the late Judge Alvan C. Read, of Louisiana. The bridegroom is a descendant of Isaac Chappelier, Virginia Huguenot pioneer, and of Col. Fielding Lewis.

The wedding took place at 5:30 in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, with the Rev. A. A. McCallum officiating. The ceremony was performed before an altar banked with gladioli in colors shading from flame to pale pink, and lighted by 80 candles in the two St. Paul candelabra.

Mr. Samuel Leech, church organist, played the wedding music and Mrs. Anton Gorloff sang "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms."

Wore Chiffon Gown.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Alexander Stevens, wore a gown of chiffon over pearl satin, made on modified medieval lines, with a deep, square neckline and wide flowing sleeves. The train which was separate from the dress, was outlined by a shirred border. Her veil, of Venetian rose point lace which framed her face and fell below the waist in front, formed a train behind. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Lynn Woodworth was her matron of honor, and Miss Elizabeth Springer and Miss Anita Ker, her bridesmaids. They wore identical gowns of mousseline de soie, with full skirts, shaded from flame to pale pink, high standing collars and full, puffed sleeves. Their large horsehair hats were trimmed with flowers in gladioli shades and they carried bouquets of gladioli, that of the matron of honor in flowers of darker shade and those of the bridesmaids in lighter shades.

Brother Best Man.

Mr. Joseph Warren Greyer, of Morganton, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and the ushers were Mr. Lynn Woodworth, Mr. Alvan Read Henry, of New Haven, Conn.; Mr. Alex Mull, of Morganton, and Mr. William Tyler Page, jr.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. A. Hoyt Taylor, 2910 Pennsylvania avenue. The end of the room in which the bridal party received was decorated in gladioli, and the dining room with roses and other summer flowers. The parents of the bride and bridegroom received with them, as did the bride's aunt, Mrs. R. L. Henry, and Judge Henry, of Alexandria, Egypt.

Mrs. Coontz wore a gown of dusty pink chiffon with dubonnet accessories, a broad dubonnet hat of horsehair and a corsage of red roses. The mother of the bridegroom wore gray lace with a pink hat and a corsage of pink sweet peas.

The bridal couple left by motor for a wedding trip of ten days and will return to reside in Glover Park, where they have taken an apartment. The bride's traveling costume was a suit of white with a white patent leather hat and accessories.

Bride Is Composer.

The bride attended George Washington University, also received her musical education in Washington, and has traveled extensively abroad. She is gaining recognition as a composer, especially of music for modern dance groups, and is active in the Modern Dance Group Musicgrams. Her mother Kathleen Read Coontz, widely known as a writer of short stories and pageants, wrote and staged the St. Mary's Tercentenary pageant two years ago and wrote many of the Washington bicentennial plays used throughout the country in connection with the observance of the Washington anniversary. Mr. Coontz also is a well-known magazine writer.

Mr. Greyer holds a commission as first lieutenant in the U. S. Army Reserve and is connected with a publishing company.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Judge and Mrs. Henry, Mrs. Curtis Chappelier and Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Chappelier, of Delaphane, Va.; Mrs. Henry Schneider, Mrs. Alvan C. Read and Mrs. John Beall, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Greyer, of Morganton, N. C., and Mr. Amasa McClelland Henry, of Oxford, England.

Miss Milton Leaves For N. Y. Wedding

Miss Katherine Milton, of Albemarle, N. C., and Miss Laura Stewart, of Monroe, N. C., who have been at the Shoreham, have left for New York City, where Miss Milton will be married today at noon to Mr. John Willis Almond, of Albemarle.

Wed at St. Paul's Church

Hessler-Henderson.

MRS. CHARLES PEYTON LEWIS GREYER, JR., the former Miss Martha McClelland Stevens, whose marriage took place at St. Paul's Episcopal Church at 5:30 yesterday afternoon. She is the daughter of Mrs. John Leo Coontz, well known writer of short stories and pageants.

NOTES OF SOCIETY

Official and Resident

The Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Peter left last night for Gardiner, Me., to attend the wedding on Tuesday of their son, Mr. Marc Peter, jr., to Miss Frances Gardiner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Gardiner, of Boston and Gardiner. They will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner.

Mme. Peter will not return to Washington before sailing from Boston on June 28 on the Lafayette with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Georges Peter, and her grandchildren, for the minister's country place at Versoix, near Geneva, where she will spend the summer. The minister will join them the latter part of July.

The Minister of the Dominican Republic, Senor Don Andres Pastoriza, has returned by plane from his home in South America, where he went some time ago.

The Speaker of the House and Mrs. William B. Bankhead and Senator and Mrs. Royal Copeland were among those dining last evening at the Little Tea House.

Frau Scholz, wife of the First Secretary of the German Embassy, will sail on Monday for Berlin, where she will spend the summer. Herr Scholz expects to join her in August.

The First Secretary of the Egyptian Legation, Nicolas Khalil Bey, will arrive in New York tomorrow aboard the Queen Mary after a visit of three months to Europe, England, and his home in Cairo.

Chatfield-Taylors Are in Hot Springs.

The Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor are in Hot Springs, Va., for ten days. The latter will go to Chicago shortly after the first of next month, to spend the summer.

The United States Consul at Naples, Mr. Charles B. Hosmer, is in Washington on leave and is the guest of Mr. J. F. McGurk at his home on California street.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson will be the guest in Philadelphia, where she is going to attend the Democratic convention, of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Barklie. Tomorrow the Philadelphia Democratic Women's Club will entertain at a reception in her honor.

Mrs. James Clement Dunn and her daughter, Miss Cynthia Dunn, will leave on Tuesday for Honolulu, where they have taken a house for the summer.

Col. Edward B. Clark has left Washington for Utica, N. Y., to visit his sister, Mrs. Charles P. Kirkland. He will go to Bronxville, N. Y., next Thursday, where he will be joined by Mrs. Clark, to attend the wedding of their grandson, Frederick L. Devereux, jr., son of Col. Frederick L. Devereux and the late Mrs. Devereux, and Miss Ruth Wentworth Foster. The wedding will take place on Friday, June 26.

Cottons Are Hosts To David Shaws

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cotton, jr., have as their guests over the week-end Mr. and Mrs. David Shaw, of St. Louis, Mo., in whose honor they entertained at dinner last evening. Mrs. Shaw was, before her marriage in Baltimore last spring, Miss Henrietta Wickes.

Mrs. Mary Dennis, cousin of Mrs. Shaw, and Miss Nancy Grimes entertained at a cocktail party in her honor yesterday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Wessel will sail today aboard the S. S. Scanstates for Copenhagen, after which she and her husband will return to the estate they recently purchased near Santiago, Chile. Mrs. Wessel is the former Miss Helen Doherty.

Sailing on the same boat are Col. and Mrs. J. W. McIntosh, of Overlook Lodge, Warrenton, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Nathan, Miss Lucille Nathan and Mr. Melvin Behrend have returned to Washington after a three months' trip to California and the Orient.

Mr. and Mrs. George Herman, of 5329 Reno road, will leave on Monday for Buffalo, N. Y., where they will make their future home.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Breckinridge Bayne, of Oxon Hill, Md., who were married here on Wednesday, are at the St. Regis Hotel in New York.

Mrs. M. E. Kahn and Miss Hortense Morris are guests at the Villa d'Este in Atlantic City.

Rita Helen Levy Is Married.

Mrs. Louis Levi, of Schnectady, N. Y., and Washington, announces the marriage of her daughter, Rita Helen Levi, to Mr. Louis Jacobson, of New York and Alexandria, on Wednesday, June 17, in Baltimore.

Miss Eva Bullard, of the Chastleton Apartments, will sail on Wednesday on the Queen Mary for a three months trip through Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

Mrs. duPont Llewllyn, of New York, has taken a cottage in Easthampton, and has arrived with her son, Clendenin, to spend the summer there.

Fairfax Club Dance Tonight.

The Lord Fairfax Country Club tonight will have the second of its series of weekly dances at the clubhouse on Mount Eagle, near Alexandria. Several dinner parties are being arranged by members preceding the dance, which will be at 10 o'clock.

Miss Billie Taber Engaged to Marry H. A. Gardner, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. William Parker Taber, of Norwalk, Ohio, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Billie Taber, to Mr. Henry A. Gardner, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Gardner, of Chevy Chase, Md.

Miss Taber was graduated in May from the King-Smith School here. Mr. Gardner attended the University of Virginia, and is a member of the Theta Chi Fraternity and of the Chevy Chase Country Club.

Announcement of the engagement was made at a tea given at their home in Norwalk by the parents of the bride-to-be. Miss Taber returned to Ohio June 1.

500 Are Entered In Pony Show At Warrenton

3 Championships and 25 Classes in Revival of Annual Event.

More than 500 ponies from Washington, Maryland and Virginia comprise the entry list for Warrenton's annual Junior Hunt Pony Show, opening today at 9 a. m. at the Warrenton Horse Show Grounds. There will be 25 classes and three championships, judged by Maj. Henry Leonard, of Washington; Mr. Courtland H. Smith, of The Plains, and Mr. Otto Furr, of Middleburg.

The pony show this year is exclusively for children and their ponies. All horse classes have been omitted. With adult entries included in former years, the list became so large as to defeat the original purpose of the show, the oldest children's pony show in the country.

The Foxcroft pony stud entries will be exhibited by Miss Anne Clay Bayly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Bayly, Upperville, well known in Washington, where she has taken many ribbons.

Little Miss Peggy Keith Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hamilton, another blue ribbon winner for several seasons, is also showing. Ellie Wood Page Keith, of Charlottesville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morsen Keith, an outstanding young rider in ring and hunting field, will show several entries, and other riders will be the Misses Marjorie and Louise Fair, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fair; Yolande Shaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gould Shaw; Miss Bettina Belmont, daughter of the late Raymond Belmont; Ridgeley White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur White; the Misses Mary and Jane Holler, daughters of Mrs. Delancey Nicol.

Miss Betsy Brittle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clay T. Brittle, who is president of the pony show; Miss Sallie Spilman and Miss Edith Soames, who have been hunting with the Warrenton Hunt, will also put their ponies over the jumps.

Miss Margaret Hill, of Bethesda, will defend the Sunset Challenge Cup, won last year, and Miss Edna Roth, of Rockville, who annexed two of the championship cups at the last show, will try for a leg on the new trophy. L. R. Colbert, of Fredericksburg, who also retired a cup in 1935, will send several ponies from his stables to compete for a new trophy offered by the Junior Hunt Association.

C. V. Hill Weds Riverdale Girl

Miss Maybelle Irene Wackerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Eugene Wackerman, was married at 8 p. m. yesterday to Mr. C. Vernon Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hill. The ceremony took place at the Church of the Epiphany, Canon Raymond Wolven officiating, assisted by the Rev. Ze Barney Phillips.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin made on princess lines with a tulle veil and Juliet cap caught with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses, gardenias and lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaids were Miss Edna Schwing, Dr. Margaret Cowan, Miss Betty Galt and Miss Amber Ruth Noble. They wore dresses of mousseline de soie made on empire lines, maline picture hats and carried nosegays of roses with an orchid in the center.

Mr. Lawrence Clifton was best man. The ushers were Mr. John D. Wackerman and Mr. Daniel Wackerman, brothers of the bride, and Mr. William Keeler and Mr. William Jackson.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in Riverdale, Md. The house was decorated with white roses and baskets of spring flowers.

After a wedding trip in New England and eastern Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Hill will reside in Riverdale.

Party Is Given By Mrs. Lewis For Mr. Bullitt

Mr. and Mrs. Biddle Also Guests at Informal Tea in Club.

Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, wife of Senator Lewis, entertained at a tea yesterday afternoon in honor of Mr. William Bullitt, United States Ambassador to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. The party, a small, informal affair, was held at the 1925 F Street Club.

Ambassador Bullitt left last night for Philadelphia, but will return to be present at a dinner being given in his honor on June 30 by the Ambassador of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and Mme. Troyanovsky.

Among the guests at Mrs. Lewis' tea yesterday were the United States Minister to Norway and Mrs. Biddle, who entertained at dinner last night aboard the Alder, the yacht belonging to the latter's mother, Mrs. William Boyce Thompson; the Commandant of the Marine Corps and Mrs. John Russell, who are sailing on Tuesday for Porto Fino, Italy, to spend the summer; the Naval Attache of the Italian Embassy, the Marquis of Sant Orsola and Dr. Stanley Hornbeck, of the State Department.

Mrs. Huntress Leaves For Chicago Wedding

Mrs. Margery Huntress leaves by motor tomorrow for Chicago to be present at the marriage of her son, Mr. Douglas Huntress, and Miss Elizabeth Ashcraft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Ashcraft, which will take place there June 29.

She will be accompanied by her daughter, Miss Marion Huntress, who will be Miss Ashcraft's maid of honor, and her sons, Mr. Jack B. Huntress, of Boston, and Mr. Carroll Benton Huntress, of this city.

Florence Marshall Honor Guest at Fete

Affair Is Given at Home of Mrs. Nelson.

Mrs. Elnathan Kemper Nelson entertained last night in the garden of her home in Sligo Park Hills in honor of Miss Florence E. Marshall, of Washington and East Weare, N. H., whose book "Are You Awake" has just been published.

The garden was lighted for the evening and Miss Marshall gave readings from her book and talked on the various angles, through which she proposes to reach young people with her verse.

Pen Women Plan Fete on June 27

Founders' Day Observance Arranged by Group.

The president of the District of Columbia Chapter of the League of American Pen Women, Mrs. Bess Heath Olmstead, and the executive board will entertain at a reception in observance of Founders' Day on Saturday afternoon, June 27, from 3 to 6 at Mrs. Olmstead's home, 3911 Livingston street, Chevy Chase.

Charter members of the league, the national president, Mrs. Phyllis Fergus Hoyt, and members of the national executive board will be guests of honor. Tea will be served in the garden if the weather permits.

All members of the League of American Pen Women have been invited to participate in the affair.

Adoption by U. S. Parents Of Dowry Custom Debated

Survey of Ministerial Group Reveals Arguments in Favor of European Custom; Parents, However, Score Plan as Fostering Selfishness.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

WHAT ABOUT this idea of American fathers and mothers following the pattern of European parents in providing a dowry—money, goods or estate—for marrying daughters?

A recent survey among 166 ministers conducted by the Northwestern Life Insurance Co. points out that much marital discord develops from the financial strain that comes in the first few years of marriage and presents, among suggestions to remedy this, the establishment of something that approaches a dowry.

HOPE R. MILLER.

At the same time, an article published today in Harper's Magazine under the title "An Exhausted Parent Speaks" presents the other side of the picture. In a scathing broadside against the bad manners and self-centered attitudes of the younger generation, an anonymous writer portrays modern youth as sitting in the lap of luxury at parents' expense, and demanding that all privileges and financial support be extended even after marriage.

The problem of whether to provide a dowry seems to boil itself down to two questions: Would such aid prove of more benefit to the bride and groom than the same share would later in life? Or would it tend to establish marriage on a luxury living standard and thereby hinder rather than help?

Authorities differ in their answers. Dr. Homer P. Rainey, director of the American Youth Commission, believes, for example, that modern parents as a rule are too willing to assist their children in a material way. "The average father wants to protect his boys and girls from all the hardships he had in youth," Dr. Rainey said yesterday. "Yet, in making the way too easy for them, in forefending them too surely against struggle, he removes their chances for the proper development of character and sympathy for the millions who spend all their lives in a fight for survival.

Warns Against Pampering.

"Wise parents are waking up to the fact that too much pampering injures the child's ambition, weakens his character and impairs his personality. Youth needs responsibility more than anything else. Long before they reach the age to marry, young people should be made to feel a sense of obligation to their associates through sharing in the work of the home."

He further pointed out that many boys and girls want what actually amounts to a dowry at marriage because they have been reared "to expect everything, in exchange for nothing." This is not the fault of the children, but of their parents, he said. "Sons and daughters who learn to rely on themselves in the home are prepared to do so in a home of their own. Youths thus reared are eager for a chance to prove their independence and would probably resent, rather than welcome, support from their parents through a dowry or any other means."

Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, former pastor of the First Congregational Church, is another who believes modern youth profits by "the discipline of chores." He also agrees with Dr. Rainey's opinion that parents are more to blame than their children for the fact that boys and girls today are so frequently pictured as a bad-mannered, selfish, demanding lot.

"Youth is a problem in modern times because we are giving it only a make-believe share in the work of the world," he said. "If boys and girls are given some responsibility in adolescence, if they are dealt with by persons who understand them, and if—above all—they are given a chance to express themselves through regular duties at home, you won't find they depend on parents very much after they grow up.

"Despite the fusillade of criticism that has been fired at it in recent years, modern youth is no more self-centered and demanding than the stock from which it sprung," he went on. "A boorish, ambitionless boy is generally a chip off the old block. A vain, arrogant girl who expects to do exactly as she pleases with no questions from the parents who provide her with pretty clothes and a generous allowance (that may be continued after she marries) is nothing more than the product of heritage and her rearing. The trouble is not with modern children, but modern parents."

A few weeks ago Will Durant, speaking before the Town Hall in Washington, elaborated on the advantages of an out-and-out dowry from parents who could afford it. Yesterday Mrs. Georgette Ross Howard, widely known Washington lecturer, who has studied the youth problem both in this country and in Germany, said she agreed with Dr. Durant that it would be a good thing to give boys and girls some help in the first few years of marriage, when they really need it much more than they probably will later.

"Today, when the world is in the throes of a great economic upheaval, youth hasn't the opportunities it has in normal times," she said. "Even the most deserving young people have a difficult time supporting a home. A little help at the beginning—call it a dowry or anything you will—would be of much more benefit in youth than it would long after youth has passed."

Today's Health Talk

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

One of the most baffling problems facing physicians and parents is the involuntary emptying of the bladder (enuresis) at a period when control should have been established — somewhere between the ages of 2 and 3 years.

Ancient folklore records many preventives as well as cures, such as "the child should wear a clean gown when baptized and the godparents should keep their money in their pockets." This latter superstition obtains at christenings even in these days.

The phenomenon is more common in those youngsters who are classified as "nervous" and from 12 to 15 per cent of this group will be affected. Heredity is a factor inasmuch as in 30 to 40 cases out of every 100 there will be a history of bedwetting in the childhood of the parents.

Of course certain diseases will accentuate or continue the symptom such as diabetes insipidus and true diabetes. Stones in the bladder, inflammation; in fact any irritation anywhere along the urinary tract, may be responsible. Many of these children are regarded by the neighbors as badly spoiled and some will exhibit temper tantrums or abruptly refuse to mind. The psychic factors of fear, dislike, jealousy, and inferiority play an important role. The habit may develop after a severe illness in which for a time the youngster was unconscious or in delirium with loss of control.

Habit Can Be Stopped.

Every child facing the situation needs help. In the first place he must be convinced that with his co-operation the habit can be overcome. This means restricting fluids after 4 p. m. and using an alarm clock so that the urine may be voided at least once during the night. A system of rewards for bladder consciousness may be helpful.

Toilet regularity is essential and youngsters will need to be taught cleanliness and normal bladder hygiene. Scoldings have no place in the treatment, but encouragement and praise for success mean everything. If failure occurs—it is too bad, but let us try to avoid a recurrence. Efforts to establish toilet routine should begin when the child is from 15 to 18 months of age. This involves several periods a day, first upon waking in the morning, before and after each meal, and following the afternoon nap. Of course, over-training must be guarded against, as the urinary pouch must be allowed to enlarge, to grow normally, through retaining a certain amount of fluid. Evening excitement and staying up too late will undo the lessons of the day. The child should be more complacent and quiet at bedtime than at any other period.

Many diets have been recommended, but few are of value unless drinking is limited. By the dictum, "restrict fluids late in the afternoon," we do not mean that the child should not take plenty of water, milk, etc., between waking and 4 p. m. Certain dry foods may be used late in the day.

Teaching Child Firearms Use Urged for Safety

Fourth of July Still Is Not Without Danger; Set of Rules Recommended.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

THE FOURTH OF JULY may be safer than it used to be, but it is not yet by any means entirely safe and sane. There is always a list of accidents to be recorded, most of which might have been avoided by the use of common sense and a few ordinary precautions.

Gunpowder and firearms are not playthings, and if children are to be allowed to use them, at least they should be taught how. For some reason, many parents hesitate to teach their children how to do such things as shoot guns or drive cars. They will teach them to eat correctly and do the multiplication tables, or how to speak English, but the more hazardous matters they simply leave to chance.

Children should be taught how to use firearms, they should be taught the danger of explosives. Until they have been taught, they should not be permitted to use them without an overseer. One cannot get one's training by experience, since one accident may prove fatal.

The excellent rules for the Fourth of July laid down in one family many years ago have been handed down. Four generations have survived 75 Fourths without an accident by observing the following set of rules faithfully:

1. Woolen clothes are worn by all celebrators.
2. Jokes with fireworks, such as tossing them about, are forbidden.
3. An adult must be at hand if little children are in the group.
4. There must be no pretense whatever of shooting anyone, even though the gun be only a stick.
5. Any child caught doing a stupid or careless trick with fireworks, even if no accident results, has his fireworks confiscated and is forbidden to celebrate any more that day.

The rules may seem hard, but they are better than a lifetime of remorse.

2,204 Cities Offer Supervised Play

Play leadership or supervised facilities were provided for children and adults in 2,204 American cities in 1935, according to reports in the 1935 yearbook of the National Recreation Association.

Separate community play areas, such as outdoor playgrounds, recreation buildings, athletic fields, bathing beaches, golf courses, etc., numbered 18,779. Nearly 44,000 recreation leaders and more than 10,000 volunteers supervised this public play last year. Total expenditures for the entire program of recreation amounted to $37,472,409.54.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Hoary Question Again Raised as to Whether Girl Should Devote Self Exclusively to One Man.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I am very interested in your column which I have been reading for quite a while and I believe you can really give me some good advice. I am a country girl working as general maid for $6 a week. I belong to the Brethren Church and I have no bad habits at all. I don't even believe in joking.

* * * *

I am 25 years old and have never had a date with any young man as yet, although several boys have asked for my company. But now have in mind a nice young man I would like to go with. I do not know whether I should settle down to going with this boy, or go with a good many boys. Will you please tell me what you think? COUNTRY GIRL.

* * * *

DEAR COUNTRY GIRL: I am going to take your question at face value—strange and contradictory though it is—and advise you accordingly. In the first place, the simple fact that a certain young man has caught your fancy doesn't necessarily mean that he is going to respond to you in kind; that he is going to ask for your company regularly. Therefore, you had better wait until he shows a marked preference for your society before crossing the bridge of trying to decide how much of your time you should give him.

Also, if I am to take your statement literally, that a number of young men have shown an interest in you, and you have never accepted any of their invitations—then I must say you are acting in a most abnormal fashion. Any young woman should build friendships with as many nice young men as she possibly can, regardless of whether she is romantically interested in them. A girl need not be in love with a man.

* * * *

Girl Wants Friends.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a constant reader of your column and am sure many persons have been helped by your advice. My greatest problem is making friends. I was reared in a religious home and love to go to church. I guess I am a little old-fashioned, as I don't drink, smoke, dance, curse, etc. I see no harm in dancing, however.

* * * *

I am so lonely at times I can hardly stand it. My home is in the country, which I always love. I had never worked for my living until a few months ago, and while I don't have to work, I thought it would be nice to come to the city for a while. I love the city itself and I love my work, and would hate to go back to the country now, but I am afraid sometimes that I will have to, because I am just so lonely. A person never realizes how much his friends mean to him until he finds himself cut off from them, living among strangers.

* * * *

I am 23 years old and not blessed with any beauty to speak of. I have a quiet and even disposition and was called the nicest girl in my home town. I almost never go out here, as I don't care to be out alone. I love the movies but seldom go. I am wondering if you could introduce me to some nice young man, as lonely as I am, with whom I could be friends. Thanking you for any help, I am,

OLD-FASHIONED GIRL.

Cordial Church Group.

DEAR OLD-FASHIONED GIRL: I am sorry to say I do not know any young man to whom I might introduce you. However, I do know of a very hospitable young people's church group which would welcome you as a member. If you will give me your name and address I will give you an introduction to a young man and a young woman who are leaders in the group and I am sure they will see that you are made to feel at home in the class. The class is made up of persons ranging in ages from 20 to 30, with the majority around your age.

* * * *

As I have so often mentioned in this column, the local Y. W. C. A. and the local Community Center—the latter conducted under the auspices of the public school system—also offer recreational and social facilities for young people of your age. The first named is located at Seventeenth and K streets northwest and any representative can furnish information about the summer program of the "Y." The second named can be contacted by dialing NAtional 6000 and asking to be connected with Community Center headquarters. M. H.

Pleasant HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

WE'RE ALWAYS harping on what a delicious color yellow can be in making a room pleasant and sunny looking. But we didn't know the half of it till we went to call on an old school friend in another town recently. Her whole house was abloom with bowls and vases of yellow cut flowers. The effect was simply exquisite.

The house wasn't anything special, but she did have a nice garden from which the flowers came. Her rug was rust and the furniture coverings were mostly in coral and greens—some solid and some figured. The walls were in a light shade of green and the draperies were figured on a nasturtium ground with green pleated ruffles. Can you imagine how lovely yellow flowers in profusion look in this setting and what a contribution they make to the color scheme. She has an enormous big bowl of them on a little low table in front of the fireplace now that they don't keep a fire going. And another huge bowl in front of the windows. Smaller bowls and vases go on occasional tables and on either end of the mantel she has small bud vases for single perfect sprays of yellow blooms. Occasionally she mixes a few blue flowers in with the yellow, but the effect is mainly a mass of gold.

In her bedroom she created an entirely different effect with flowers. Here the walls were in a rather deep shade of blue with spreads and curtains in pale peach and the rug in a figured design that was predominantly blue. Here she used big crystal bowls of white flowers of dramatic types.

Pleasant Homes.

Needlepoint is one of the easiest of handwork a lady can do and the nice part about it is she has something permanent for her time and work. Especially is it interesting to do and to keep if the designs have personal significance in her family. Elizabeth MacRae Boykin's bulletin, "Sew Yourself a Family History," has patterns that you can copy. It will be sent on receipt of a stamped self-addressed envelope.

And Call It Accident

By Mrs. Belloc Lowndes

SYNOPSIS.

Though George Dwight, her childhood sweetheart, pleads with her to return to America and marry him, Ruth Starling insists on staying in London and using her inherited fortune to go on the stage. Through her English lawyer, Mr. Singleton, Ruth meeets Capt. Philip Trefane and his wife, Iris, two scheming adventurers. Capt. Trefane is interested in theatricals, but short of capital. Ruth offers to put $250,000 into a theatrical venture under his management. His aunt, the Marchioness Cicester, is loaning the Trefanes her Cornwall castle for the summer and Ruth accepts their offer to stay with them as a paying guest. Capt. Trefane, using his contract with Ruth as security, insures her life in his favor. Iris hires a fortune teller to tell Ruth that her association with the Trefanes will be "all roses," though the woman hints to Ruth of dire happenings to come.

Chapter Ten.

"AND SHE'S LIKE an animal in having a most unnaturally sharp sense of hearing," said the captain. "It's quite uncanny."

"Yes, it's a dangerous thing talking secrets while that girl's about," said Iris dryly. In a different tone she addressed her husband: "Talking of food, I suppose you remembered to call at the butcher's and at the fishmonger's in Lilyford, Phil?"

There came a look of real anxiety in her eyes. "You didn't forget to do that—or did you?"

"Lord! I do believe I did. Darling—you did marry a fool!"

Did there come a spasm of annoyance over Iris's face? Yes, but it was scarcely there before it had gone.

"Don't worry, Phil; I've nothing to do this afternoon, and you and Miss Starling must have plenty to say to one another. So if you'll get out the car, darling, I'll motor into Lilyford and pick up the meat and fish."

But Capt. Trefane did not move. He was essentially lazy, though few of those about him realized the fact.

"I say, Iris?"

"Yes, Phil?"

There was infinite weariness in her low tone.

"Why not send the child to do those tiresome little jobs?"

"Because the child, as you call her, would refuse to go. She's been messing about all day in the studio. I'd rather do it myself, I would, really."

"Maybe you're right," but he looked what Ruth Starling had never seen him look yet, ill-tempered, even cross. But as he rose from his easy chair his face cleared. "Look here, my dear? I'm expecting a long-distance call in about an hour. When it has come through I'll go off and have everything you want back by 6."

She shook her head. "That would be too late. The best of the girls, the one who acts as cook, or rather as kitchen-maid to me, has to go off at half past 6. Don't give me a thought, Phil! I shall enjoy the drive. But before I leave I should like to show Miss Starling her room." As followed by Ruth, she walked with light, swift strides out of the great hall, she exclaimed: "I'm afraid you won't find the winding stone steps in the tower easy to negotiate, especially at first. But you'll be quite safe if you hold on to the rope as you come down. If I were you I'd hang on to it, too, as you go upstairs. That's the one thing Phil's aunt, Lady Cicester, is particular about. She often has the rope tested, for she doesn't want any one to fall down and so have to be laid up at the castle!"

Ascends the Tower.

And it was true that the high stone treads were badly worn, though Ruth would not have noticed the fact but for Iris' warning. And, as she began going up and up the tower, she looked with mingled delight and awe at the ten foot wall on her left.

"I'm sorry none of the bedrooms look over the sea; the great hall made that impossible. But, after all, there do come summer storms, and then it's rather a bore listening to the wind and the breakers."

On being ushered into her vast bedchamber, the newcomer felt as if she was playing a part in an historical play. The bed was a Jacobean four-poster, hung with turquoise blue damask silk, and plain silk of the same shade lay under the piece of beveled glass on the oak dressing table. Above the deep fireplace hung an ancient piece of tapestry.

"If you'll wait until I'm back from my little trip I'll unpack for you," observed Iris.

"I shouldn't dream of letting you do that!"

"That is good of you, Miss Starling. The last time we were here we had a woman as a paying guest who had two children and a nurse, but she expected me to wait on her hand and foot. That was the real reason we refused the loan of the castle the following year. I didn't feel I could stand another experience of that sort."

She was looking out of one of the windows as she spoke, and it was as though she was addressing herself rather than the American girl.

All at once there came over Ruth a great feeling of pity for this fragile and exquisite creature. There was something brave and gallant about Iris, as Mr. Singleton had admitted. She wondered why he and Mrs. Singleton didn't really like her.

"I wish you'd call me Ruth," she said impulsively.

Friendship Cemented.

"Why, of course I will, and you must call me Iris. Come over here to the window. Before going downstairs I'd like to show you the manor house, where Lady Cicester lives with her son during the summer months of the year." And, as Ruth obeyed her: "It's that white building embedded in a wood. As a matter of fact, there are some beautiful gardens surrounding the house, but you can't see them from here." She paused: "I shall have to take you there tomorrow, for Lady Cicester is aching to see you."

Again there came that edge of sarcastic contempt in the voice Ruth found so alluring, and the American girl again remembered the very frank letter from Lary Cicester which she had been made to read by old Mr. Singleton. She felt slightly guilty as she answered, "How very kind of her."

"Not kind at all—simply rather a vulgar wish to see what sort of person is our paying guest. My husband told her about your theatrical venture and that he is going to be your manager. So she wants to give you what she calls a 'look over.' I remember how frightened I felt the first time she gave me a 'look over.' Even then she regarded Phil as the black sheep of her respectable family, and though she has a great deal of money of her own and professes to be very fond of my husband, she has never been of real help to him."

An angry expression flashed over her face; then, in quite a different tone, and indeed with a smile, she observed: "I mustn't stop here gossiping or there will be nothing for your dinner tonight."

She turned away from the window and when actually at the door she turned around: "I'm glad we're going to be friends, Ruth."

Ruth Starling stood quite still for a few moments. She had never met any girl or woman even remotely like Iris Trefane, and she felt bewildered by what appeared to her such a contradictory mixture of kindness and brutality. For when she had spoken of her husband's stepchild, Helen Bates, Iris had been brutal. Also, whilst giving an impression of deep reserve, she had shown herself, even in the short time she and Ruth had been together, full of disconcerting candor.

Evening at the Castle.

To Ruth the one completely satisfying thing about the woman and the man with whom she was going to spend some weeks of, she believed, almost complete solitude was their deep love for one another. It was clear that they were on the happiest terms of mutual devotion, and though she had been prepared for this pleasant state of things by both the Singletons, she had not realized how true their remarks had been.

A few moments later, while she was engaged in unpacking the considerable possessions she had accumulated during the last few months, a cheerful looking country girl came in to ask if there was anything she could do for the visitor.

The wind had died down, and suddenly Ruth felt it oppressively hot. "Is it possible to bathe in the sea from the castle?" she asked.

"O, yes, miss! Yesterday Capt. and Mrs. Trefane went out in the boat and swam about like fishes. We could see them from the kitchen window; they are grand swimmers."

When she went down at 8 o'clock she found both her host and hostess had dressed for dinner, though they all waited on themselves. It was, however, as the captain said, "great fun," the more so that the food, if simple, was exceedingly well cooked and daintily served.

After dinner Ruth and Phil, as his paying guest was now bidden to call Capt. Trefane, settled down to the delightful task of planning out the various scenes of the play, "A Daughter of Heth," of which she had acquired the rights. At one point she had occasion to read a few lines of the dialogue, and he exclaimed admiringly, "You have what I call a perfect stage diction, Ruth!" She would, in very truth, not have believed her ears had she overheard the interchange of words between the husband and wife as soon as they had bidden her a cordial good-night: "That girl, darling, will never make an actress. I don't wonder she had an awful flop in New York."

And the grim answer: "It's your job to make her into a success. You've got to do it."

"I know that—damn her!"

The Magic of Good Talk

"THE MOST interesting girl I ever talked to," says Ted of Julie. Never even noticed that he did nearly all the talking!

That goes to show how slick Julie is. Does it all with that radiant, sympathetic smile and a peppy interest in everything.

You never catch Julie springing "What books have you read lately?" at a frivolous moment, or capping Ted's funny story with a better one. She doesn't say "I simply love tennis" when she's weak on sports. Just listens with interest to Ted's enthusiasm.

Never uses such trashy slang as "you said a mouthful," nor pulls out any $10 words like "antipathetic" or "juxtaposition." Never bores with dull, personal affairs.

Nothing on this order, "Gosh, I shoulda washed my hair las' night but Madge called up and said I could borra her dress pattern, the one she made that blue georgette by, ya know . . ."

Yet she's never caught out when a thick, glum silence falls. Can always talk about learning to roller-skate, or what the grocer said about the new hats, or helping catch Mrs. Higgins' pet parrot.

600 Rural Health Units.

In only about 600 of the 2,500 rural counties in the United States does there exist even a skeleton public health organiaztion, and of these 600 less than one-quarter have facilities regarded as adequate, according to an article by the late Edgar Sydenstricker, of the Milbank Memorial Foundation.

Picnic Season Is Here Again; Timely Tips

By Taking the 'Makings' a Jaunt in the Open Is Made More Fun.

PICNIC season is here again, and there are very few people in this country who do not enjoy a picnic, not necessarily the kind that means mosquitoes and bugs generally, but affairs where a simple meal is packed in a basket and taken out into the country and thoroughly enjoyed with that extra appetite which outdoor air seems to stimulate.

Make the picnic easy. Take the "makings" and prepare the lunch on the spot. For instance, a loaf of bread (all sliced), butter, filling, lettuce wrapped in a cheesecloth bag and placed in a coffee can with a piece of ice will fill the requirements for sandwiches. Then for something to drink. A favorite is canned tomato juice, for it quenches the thirst without making one want water afterwards. By having the cans chilled in the refrigerator before starting they will remain cool unless, of course, the ride is extra long, but short jaunts are more frequent.

Sometimes instead of the tomato juice, or in addition to it, take along some other kind of juice—pineapple, grapefruit, loganberry, cherry or cranberry. They touch the spot, too.

In taking things for salad, the lettuce in the can of ice is again the starter. A can of mixed fruit pieces, or maybe just a can of pear halves or apricots, and a jar of mayonnaise, all of which have been chilled, are the choice of the day. Potato chips seem to fill the extra room for appetites, and for extra special occasions fried chicken eaten from the bone "a la native style," or a can of corned beef or tongue which can be sliced on the spot is the de luxe tidbit.

The simpler the preparation the easier on the cook. Be sure to remember to take a can opener, and a good one, too.

If picnics are frequent you will find it a joy to have a large white canvas which can be placed on the ground and used to sit on and eat from.

One-Room Home Needs Good Furniture Taste

When planning a home in one room, select your furniture for its utility as well as its beauty, says Lurelle Guild. In July Pictorial Review he describes a room that can easily be copied, and that meets every requirement of comforable living without looking crowded or "bedroomy." Each piece of furniture has an important role—a comfortable sofa that becomes a bed at night. Two easy chairs for an evening when friends drop in to chat. A table for bridge or a hospitable snack that also can be used as a console against the wall. Four straight chairs for bridge—two of them also flank the table to complete the console group. One is also used at the combination desk, bookcase and bureau; that is far cheaper than three separate pieces, and is a space saver, too, as the secretary drawers become a bureau with room compartments. Small projecting partitions, easily erected, form a delightful alcove and contain shallow decorative shelves.

New Type of Pouch Keeps Tobacco Dry

Men who like to keep their tobacco fresh will want one of the new tobacco pouches which have just been developed. They are air-tight pouches.

These are made of genuine leather, and have a zipper fastener. The trick that keeps the tobacco fresh and moist at all times is the pure gum lining inside the pouch, which is fitted with thick rubber lips. As the zipper closes the lips seal together.

Salt on Sweets.

Sweet foods are enhanced by the addition of a bit of salt, as, for example, most fudge recipes call for a speck of salt. Conversely, foods with a salty flavor are enlivened by something sweet. Note the popularity of serving stewed figs, dried apricots or raisin sauce as a garnish for ham.

A Man's Size Salad That Costs but a Trifle

Six pickled beets sliced, one Spanish onion sliced, three hard-cooked eggs, sliced, and real mayonnaise plus crisp lettuce leaves make a delicious, inexpensive salad of the he-man variety. Arrange several slices, as illustrated above, on crisp lettuce leaves for individual servings. This amount will serve eight.

Double Rations Advised to Aid Growing Youth

Adolescents Need Twice as Much Food as Adults, Says Doctor.

Eating twice as much food as an adult is regarded as normal for boys and girls who are "growing up," according to Dr. Helen Bull of the New York State College of Home Economics.

She urges that wholesome food be provided by parents at meal time to prevent the rapidly growing youths from being tempted by rich indigestible foods between meals. The overgrowth of thyroid frequently seen at these ages could be prevented with enough iodine in the diet, she says. Natural sources include salt-water fish and cod liver oil.

"Unlike animals, the 'growing up' period in humans is the safest in the life span, with the lowest mortality; and behavior that seems abnormal is characteristic of this period, and is due to rapid physical development," she points out in bulletin from the New York State College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

"Clumsiness and awkwardness are caused by a more rapid growth of muscles in some parts of the body than in others, and movebents are hard to co-ordinate. Because the growth and action of the heart and blood vessels do not keep pace with the development of other parts of the body, young people often do not want to exert themselves and are criticized for being lazy. It is better to spare them long-continued exercise during this period.

Meat Pie With Olives.

Meat pies are economical entrees which may be camouflaged for company meals with a generous amount of ripe olives, a handful of raisins and, optionally, a few capers. Leftover meats or hamburger may form the meat basis. Ripe olives are sliced in good-sized wedges for these dishes, using the inexpensive, small ripe olives.

'Be Clean' Is the Watchword For a Good, Healthy Summer

Hints for Warm Months, Once Most Dreaded Season, Include Common Sense Use of Plenty of Soap and Water.

NOT SO MANY years ago summer was the most dreaded season of the year. As the summer progressed the death rate rose steadily. While the greatest number of victims was among infants and young children, many adults also succumbed. Now summer is the healthiest period of the year because of the knowledge of disease prevention which we have acquired. In order that all may profit by this knowledge, the following health hints have been prepared.

Be clean. Bathe frequently. Use plenty of soap and water. A shower bath morning and evening should be the minimum. Bathe after work or exercise.

In protecting health, soap plays an extremely important role, not only because of its cleansing qualities, but because of its germicidal value. In addition to washing away dirt which may harbor infection, and incidentally washing away many germs at the same time, soap itself possesses valuable antiseptic properties.

Pure Soap Is Germicidal.

The purity of soap is extremely important as regards its germicidal value when used on the skin. The addition of most medicaments to a soap does nothing more than impart an odor—they do not improve its germicidal properties. A pure, mild, white soap is safer and just as effective.

Wash your hands thoroughly before eating and always before leaving the lavatory. Many diseases are picked up by the hands and carried by them to the mouth. Don't just hold your hands under the faucet and think they are clean. Use plenty of good soap and a hand brush. Clean under and around the nails. Typhoid fever, amoebic dysentery, poliomyelitis, are just a few of the diseases which are carried by dirty hands.

Be sure that any person who serves you food or drink has clean hands. Remember that he or she doesn't have to stick a finger or thumb in your food to contaminate it.

Clothing for hot weather should be light and porous and should be changed frequently.

Cleanliness in the home is quite as important as personal cleanliness, and this is primarily the responsibility of the housewife. Keep the home clean inside and out. Dishes, glasses and all eating utensils should be washed thoroughly with soap and hot water and then rinsed with boiling water. A simple method is to place them in a dish rack after they have been washed and then pour boiling water over them.

Keep Ice Box Clean.

Your refrigerator should be kept scrupulously clean at all times, but especially in the summer. Use a good pure soap and plenty of hot water. True, the hot water will raise the temperature of the box temporarily, but remember that a dirty refrigerator is a source of contamination of food that is responsible for many cases of food poisoning or, more properly speaking, food infection.

Don't leave garbage around uncovered for flies to carry dirt and filth back in to the kitchen and dining room. Wash garbage pails thoroughly every time they are emptied.

The great protection against illness the year round, but especially in the summer when germs multiply rapidly, is cleanliness—real thorough cleanliness that is achieved by the plentiful use of soap and water.

Clean body.
Clean hands.
Clean waiter, waitress and cook.
Clean kitchen.
Clean dining room.
Clean home.
These are the watchwords of health.

Recipes Offer Two Delicious Seafood Dishes

Easily Prepared Salad and Lobster Stew Good for Summer.

From a famous restaurant in New York come these two sea-food recipes to find their place on your summer menus:

Sea-Food Salad.

1 cup crab meat
1 cup cooked shrimp
2 hard-cooked eggs
1 medium-sized head of lettuce
Salt and pepper
French dressing
1 bunch water cress

The secret of this salad lies in thorough marinating. Cut up the ingredients, including half the head of lettuce. Add the seasoning and the French dressing. Then just mix, mix and mix some more. Serve on crisp leaves of the remaining half of the lettuce and garnish with water cress.

Lobster Stew.

(This recipe makes two portions.)

Meat from 2 to 2½ pounds boiled lobsters. Add:
2 ounces melted butter
½ teaspoon paprika
4 mushrooms, cut up
2 cups fresh clam broth
1 teaspoon Lea & Perrins sauce
1 cup sherry
1½ cups milk

Mix these ingredients and bring to a boil. Cook for ten minutes. Then serve on toast.

New Prune Recipe.

Leftover prunes and leftover baked custard combine to make an appetizing dessert. Remove pits from cooked prunes and spread three or four open in the bottom of each sherbet glass. Cover with a large spoonful of custard. Top with a plump, pitted prune. Serve with cream.

Ripe Olives Welcome Part Of Every Meal

Fruit, Unknown at Dawn of Century, Achieves Universal Fame.

IN THIRTY-SIX years, ripe olives, unknown to the world at the dawn of the century, have achieved universal acceptance in every-day menus.

We find them useful not only as a part of the decorative scheme in meal planning, in which their career began, but as an integral and welcome part of the meal, a food which has won our respect for its virtues as a nourishing, easily digestible and versatile ingredient of cocktails, sandwiches, salads and entrees, and one which is brim-full of seasoning possibilities.

Ripe olives, in their native California, are widely used in delicious entrees. Typical recipes exert their charm on visitors to the State and are carried Eastward to a favored few. The ability of ripe olives to revolutionize an economical entree into a dignified repast for important guests has much to do with their present range of popularity, and is one good reason among others for including ripe olives on the emergency shelf. Of course, they belong in every dinner as a relish or appetizer either before or during the meal.

Each Size Is Named.

The various sizes of ripe olives are named in the order of their gradation for our accommodation, and the number of olives contained in each can is plainly marked.

Using the 9-ounce can as a basis of comparison, we begin with the "small" olive, otherwise labeled "standard" or "select," which contains as an average count, 76 deliciously flavored ripe olives, rich in oil; truly a nutritional bargain by which we may all profit.

"Medium" sized ripe olives run 64 to the can and are just as intriguing in low cost food value. The "large" ripe olive count averages 55, and is practically on the same inexpensive basis.

We pay little more for the "extra large" ripe olive which averages 46 to the 9-ounce can and offers slightly more "edible portion" by actual weight. The "mammoth" ripe olive is next in size, and here we begin to pay a small premium for our interest in size. Remaining sizes, "giant," "jumbo," "colossal" and "super colossal" range from 30, 28, 22 and 20 to the 9-ounce container respectively, and demand some extra tribute to our desire for their greater rarity and the luxury of their perfection and size. Just as much flavor is tied up in the four smallest sizes and they remain the most popular for everyday consumption.

Easy to Pit.

While the convenient, small cans of sliced ripe olives relieve us of the effort of preparation, many prefer to purchase the small all-purpose ripe olives for use in entrees and salads particularly and to slice the fruit themselves. For this purpose, quarter each olive by cutting against the seed with a small, sharp knife, then insert the point of the blade at the end opposite the stem and bring away the easily separated flesh with approximately four strokes of the knife.

This accomplishes a double purpose, since the chewy quality of wedges of the fruit is highly desirable for those entrees and salads in which other ingredients do not require the smaller pieces of the prepared sliced olive. If smaller slices are to be prepared from the whole ripe olive, slice the flesh of the olive before removing from the seed by cutting against the seed to produce eighths or sixteenths, and remove the slices in the same manner as that used to remove the quarter wedges.

From the Bureau of Home Economics in the Department of Agriculture, comes the welcome information that ripe olives go through the process of preparation without loss of the valuable vitamin A content.

Braided Elastic Makes Dandy Belt

Golf is a game where enthusiasts are offered more accessories a season than can be squeezed into a dozen clubroom lockers. All are intended to improve a duffer's game, but most of them turn out to be gadgets that fail their purpose.

One really successful accessory, however, that will be very much in evidence on the golf course this summer, is a belt made of braided, silk-covered, elastic cord. The belt looks like one of the corded belts so popular this season for sports wear. The rubber cord supplies the extra "give" that every sportsman seeks, and makes for maximum playing comfort.

The belts come in the leading summer colors, including black and white combination, polar bear, marine blue and plain white.

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

Three New Shades of Liquid Nail Polish on Market.

By Mignon.

(The Mignon who writes this column does not sell, indorse or manufacture any cosmetics.)

THEY are trying to bring women back to the idea of using a cream, a powder or a cake nail polish. Some women prefer these things and have never gone in for the liquid nail polishes, but when you get something that is effective, quick and easy to use, it is quite difficult to convince women that they should drop it.

The smart thing that the manufacturers of liquid polishes have done is to teach women to take care of their nails in between the liquid polish applications. Many nail creams and lotions have been put out—most of those I have used have been good—but almost any cold cream that is heavy and oily and is applied regularly after a warm hand bath will help soften the nails.

The trouble with most women who use liquid nail polish is that they expect the polish to last too long. The thing to do is to remove it, say three times a week; that night give the nails a good oily treatment of some kind and the next day scrub them with soapsuds, get them thoroughly dry and then apply a new coat of liquid polish. The old saying that "what is good is permanent" certainly does not apply to cosmetics. It may apply to the use of cosmetics that are good and you may continue to use them for your entire lifetime, but with them you must use intelligence. Anything that is good that is not properly used certainly can't astonish you with its fine results.

All of this is getting down to the subject of three new shades in nail polish brought out by one of the reliable manufacturers. You may not like colors that are vivid, but you have your choice of these three, one of which is decidedly soft, and they are called "rust," "rose" and "ruby."

Pinch of Spice Abets Any Food

Chowder, Stew and Potatoes All Improved by It.

From soup to nuts, there is nothing on the dinner menu that a pinch of spice can't transform. Here are a few suggestions.

Clam chowder needs thyme, a bay leaf and caraway seeds as much as it needs clams.

Boiled potatoes make you forget calories when cooked in salted water with two bay leaves, then rolled in a mixture of melted butter and paprika.

Chocolate desserts, such as puddings, cakes and pies, are improved by adding a pinch of ground cloves.

Olives for Picnics.

Picnic meals are not complete without our favorite relishes. Outside of the fact that we enjoy them whenever served, ripe olives are particularly right for outdoor menus because of needed fuel values.

Mrs. Steiwer Provides Recipe for Her Famed Salmon Souffle.

By Pattie Ellicott.

WASHINGTON is indebted to its Congressional residents for many additions to its menus that otherwise might be overlooked. Thus entertaining here would have less of an all-American flavor.

Prominent among the Senatorial hostesses is Mrs. Frederick Steiwer, whose husband is not only one of the leading young members of the Upper House, but also is now much in the limelight at the Republican National Convention in Cleveland.

The Steiwers are very hospitable and many of the guests who have been fortunate enough to have dinner invitations to their home have commented upon the tastiness of a salmon souffle served now and then as part of the bill of fare.

Naturally, the proper use of salmon comes almost as a matter of course to a Northwest hostess where the great fish is one of the principal commodities of the section.

Salmon Souffle.

1-pound can salmon
¾ cup soaked bread
½ cup milk
2 eggs
1 tablespoon chopped celery
1 tablespoon melted butter
2 drops onion juice
Salt and pepper

Soak bread in cold water, squeeze dry, measure required quantity. Remove skin and bone from salmon, flake with a fork. Beat egg yolks light, stir in milk, add soaked bread, onion juice, salt, pepper and celery. Mix well; add salmon and butter, then fold in stiffly beaten egg whites.

Put in baking dish, bake in a moderately hot oven until nicely browned—about 25 to 30 minutes.

Serve at once, or it will fall. Serve with green peas.

Eggs Assume Star Summer Role on Menu

Dropped From Breakfast in Hot Days, They Take Place of Meat.

By Dorothea Duncan.

MANY HOUSWIVES have dropped eggs from the breakfast menu since the beginning of June. Crisp cereals topped with fresh berries or sliced fruit and thin cream are more appealing to hot weather appetites than scrambled eggs and bacon. Then, too, while the weather is warm, the usual heavy breakfast of fruit, cereal, eggs, toast and beverage is more than the average person needs.

But eggs have not been discarded for the summer just because they have been removed from the breakfast menu. Instead they have been given a starring role on luncheon and dinner menus because they are a perfect meat substitute and an ideal summer food.

Eggs are perhaps the most versatile of all meat substitutes for they can be served in so many intriguing ways—hot or cold—plain or in combination with any number of other delicious foods.

Eggs Stuffed with Mushrooms.

2 tablespoons butter
¼ pound mushrooms or ½ cup canned mushrooms
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup boiling water
1 cup irradiated evaporated milk
6 hard cooked eggs
2 tablespoons irradiated evaporated milk
Salt and pepper
Buttered bread crumbs
¼ cup almonds, blanched, chopped it desired.

Clean mushrooms. Chop stems, but leave caps whole. Saute mushrooms in the butter. Remove mushrooms. Add flour to butter remaining in pan. Stir to blend well. Add boiling water. Cook until sauce begins to thicken, then add the one cup milk and salt. Cut eggs in two crosswise, mash egg yolks with two tablespoons milk. Refill egg whites with this mixture. Put into buttered baking dish with mushroom cap topping each stuffed egg. Add stems to sauce. Pour sauce over eggs. Top with buttered bread crumbs and brown in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.). Yield: Six servings.

Italienne sandwich plus a green salad, a fruity dessert and a tall glass of milk bring real satisfaction at noon when the mercury is mounting.

Italienne Sandwich.

1 small green pepper
1 small onion
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup canned tomatoes
Salt and pepper
Toast
Fried eggs
Grated Swiss cheese

Chop the green pepper and onion fine; cook slowly in butter. Add tomatoes and cook until reduced one-half. Season. Spread the sauce ¼ inch thick on fresh toast. On each slice of toast placed a fried egg. Partially cover the top of each egg wih grated Swiss cheese. Place under low broiler heat until the cheese is slightly melted. Serve piping hot. Garnish with crisp bacon strips, parsley and radish roses, if desired.

Curried eggs served on buttered toast rings are especially attractive for a summer luncheon or dinner menu if accompanied by green vegetables, a crisp salad and a fruited dessert. Try them this way:

Curried Eggs.

Prepare six hard-cooked eggs. Shell and slice them. Peel and dice one small onion and one apple. Pound one-quarter cup blanched almonds (optional). Saute these ingredients for five minutes in two tablespoons butter. Add and simmer for eight minutes: 1¾ cups milk, chicken stock or a combination of both. Add, if needed, salt and paprika. Dissolve 1½ teaspoons cornstarch and 1½ teaspoons curry powder in ¼ cup milk or chicken stock. Add this mixture to the other ingredients. Stir and cook them for two minutes. Add the eggs. Heat well. Serve them on hot buttered toast. Garnish with parsley or water cress.

Mrs. Kennedy Heads Club in Chevy Chase

New officers elected at the monthly meeting of the Garden Club of Chevy Chase, D. C., on Tuesday were Mrs. B. C. Kennedy, president; Mrs. William Myers, first vice president; Mrs. Paul Anderson, second vice president; Mrs. E. S. Holland, recording secretary; Mrs. Edward Mullins, corresponding secretary; Mrs. F. H. Untiedt, treasurer, and Mrs. Maurice Collins, parliamentarian.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Stewart Wirgman, Williams lane, Chevy Chase, Md. She was assisted by Mrs. Henry Wirgman, Mrs. P. G. Nutting and Mrs. Alfred C. Fisher.

Avocado and Pineapple Make an Exotic Salad

An exotic salad combination which rates attention for sheer flavor excellence is that of fresh pineapple and avocados. Nothing is more epicurean than a half-shell avocado, filled with cubes of fragrant, fresh pineapple, drenched in Roquefort French dressing. Some prefer the plain, tart, thin dressing with no addition of cheese, but to many a small amount of crumbled Roquefort added to French dressing is the final crowning touch for the avocado-pineapple flavor alliance.

Recipe Contest Looks Forward To Jellies in the Cold Weather

WILL THERE BE gooseberry, currant and sour cherry jam on the pantry shelves next winter? Will the call for strawberry, raspberry or blackberry preserves be answered when hot breads come to the table on a cold November day? Of course, is the answer, for if you watch The Post food pages next week, you will find recipes for just such delicious concocotions that have been tested by Washington housewives.

For The Post is conducting another recipe contest next week, the theme of which is jellies, conserves, jams and preserves made from seasonal fruits—strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, gooseberries, sour cherries and sweet, currants and rhubarb or any of their combinations. The season for making these delicacies is at hand, and the inexperienced housewife will appreciate these recipes when she starts out on her first batch of preserves.

Cash awards will be offered for the five best recipes submitted next week. First prize will be $5; second prize, $3, and the three remaining prizes, $1 each.

To enter the contest merely write out your favorite recipe for preparing jelly or preserves, conserve or jam, from any of the above mentioned fruits, or from other fruits now at the height of their season. Mail your recipes to Dorothea Duncan in care of The Washington Post in time to reach this office not later than next Saturday.

English Learned Through Talkies

The "talkies" are proving the greatest incentive for Argentinians to learn English, says Robert King Hall in the June bulletin of the Pan American Union.

Thousands of people have enrolled in language courses during the last few years, and Argentine pupils study earnestly to master the language that will enable them to understand the doings and sayings of their beloved American movie stars.

Mustard Oldest Spice.

Mustard has been put to many uses that have nothing to do with ham sandwiches or corned beef. It is one of the oldest known spices, and among its earliest uses was its application to scorpion bites, which it was believed to make innocuous. A later generation made a cough syrup of mustard by boiling it with dried figs in strong ale. The custom of grinding the mustard seeds and sifting them to a fine powder, the form in which we use it so frequently today, dates back to 1720, when an English woman known to history simply as "Mrs. Clements of Durham" made the experiment and found it tasty.

Crocheted Cape Chic 'Topnote' For Summer Evening Wear

Pattern 5360.

By Alice Brooks.

A SUMMER'S NIGHT—starlight—and your sheerest frock call for this lacy capelet, which, in turn, calls for crochet hook and bit of white, pastel or black string. You'll love the soft scarf collar that ties so fetchingly 'neath your chin, so hurry—if you'd enjoy this cape all summer! It will do equally well for a neighborly visit or a more formal occasion.

In pattern 5360 you will find complete instructions for making the cape shown; an illustration of it and of all stitches used; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Washington Post, Household Arts Dept., 259 W. Fourteenth street, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

Raisins a Favorite.

Raisins are a favorite garnish for children. For what would a gingerbread man be without raisin eyes and buttons for his vest? How much more children enjoy a peach made into a jack o'lantern with raisins for features, grated cheese for hair, and an English walnut half for his bow tie.

POTATO BALLS COOKED IN MILK.

Cut potatoes with French vegetable cutter or slice into inch cubes. Place in top of double boiler and cover with rich milk. Cook over boiling water. Potatoes cooked in this manner will become tender in 30 to 45 minutes. Just before serving season with salt, pepper and butter.

Those who prefer creamed potatoes with a very thin dressing will like the vegetable prepared by the above method. Some of the potato starch which is lost in cooking the vegetable thickens the milk ever so slightly. Preparing creamed potatoes by the above recipe eliminates the pan used for boiling the vegetable when the sauce is prepared separately.

Julia Cruikshank And Bridal Party Guests at Dinner

Miss Julia Ward Cruikshank, of Alexandria, whose marriage to Mr. William B. McIllwaine will take place today, was entertained with her fiance and members of her wedding party at a dinner given last night by Mrs. H. Rozier Dulany, jr., at the Little Tea House. The dinner preceded the wedding rehearsal at St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Miss Cruikshank also was guest of honor at a tea yesterday afternoon at which Mrs. Charles Beatty Moore entertained.

Bathing Beach Etiquette Calls For Modesty

Guests at Pools Frequently Violate Rules of Good Manners and Taste.

By Margaret Wallace.

THE ETIQUETTE of the bathing beach and swimming pools, public and private, is a subject of real concern at this time of year to those who wish to abide by the rules of good manners and good taste.

The people in Washington who have private pools in their city homes or nearby estates are surprisingly generous with their invitations to their friends and acquaintances to use the pools during the warm days.

Probably the rules of good manners are transgressed more by the guests at these pools than in any other way in Washington.

Bases List on Conduct.

One hostess who has a large, lovely pool in the grounds of her suburban home has made a carefully checked and rechecked list of the people she will invite to use the pool this summer. This list is based on the conduct of guests at the pool in other years. Those who are being left out of the list are those who used the pool at hours they were not invited; people who brought uninvited guests with them; those who were casual in expressing and showing their appreciation of the hospitality they enjoyed.

Also left off of this hostess list are people who brought their dogs with them and did not keep them out of the pool.

Good manners on the beach begin with wearing swimming suits that will not offend because of their lack of modesty. The person of good taste will wear the style of bathing suit prevailing at the beach they frequent. If the prevailing style is not conservative enough it is proper to adopt a more conservative one to suit the individual taste. It is never proper to wear a too striking or scant bathing suit at a beach where the styles are more conservative. No well-bred person will attract attention by dress or manner at a bathing beach.

Wrap is Good Form.

No matter what kind of bathing suit is worn it is good form to wear some kind of a wrap over it in going to and from the beach if it is necessary to pass through streets.

Many people bring their dogs to the beaches with them and are guilty of gross breaches of politeness because they allow the dogs to annoy other people on the beach or to go in the water where people are bathing.

It is very bad manners to leave paper bags and cups and other picnic debris on the beach. Well-bred people always leave the beach as clean as they found it.

Query—We have a small pool in our garden in which a dozen people can enjoy a swim comfortably on a warm day. I encourage my daughters to bring their friends to use the pool. One young man who is a good swimmer goes through so many "stunts," high fancy diving and so forth, and splashing about that the other swimmer do not enjoy themselves at all. We asked him to use the pool any time he wanted to before we knew that he was going to make a nuisance of himself. Do you think I might ask him not to dive and splash when others are in the pool?

Answer—Yes. Tell him that you want all your guests to enjoy themselves. Tell him that he can come before the other guests or remain afterwards to practice his diving.

Query—I am a young girl 20 years old. I am going on a vacation and have chosen a seaside resort recommended by a friend. I will have a room in a hotel. I have to go alone because I cannot afford to take any one with me. Do you think I can go in bathing all alone before I make friends at the hotel. I do not make friends easily and my mother is worried about my making friends with strangers.

Answer—You can go in bathing by yourself. It is a good idea to watch the people for a day or two before you try to make friends at a summer resort. It is better taste not to try to make friends with men but choose the older women or girls of your own age. Do not be obtrusive. Many people do not care to be too friendly with strangers at a summer resort hotel.

DON'T TREAT CONSTIPATION* LIGHTLY

Poor Health May Be the Price of Neglect

Too many people dismiss common constipation* as a matter of no great consequence. Yet this condition causes discomfort, and may lead to headaches and loss of appetite. When it is allowed to continue, it may lower your resistance, and so increase your chances of catching a serious illness.

Common constipation often develops when you eat meals that lack sufficient "bulk." Your system fails to get needed internal exercise. Fortunately, today, you have a generous source of effective "bulk" in Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Within the body, the "bulk" in ALL-BRAN absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass, which gently cleanses the system. This natural laxative food also supplies vitamin B and contains iron.

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal, with milk or cream, or cook into muffins, breads, etc. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Stubborn cases may require ALL-BRAN oftener. If not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

ALL-BRAN is guaranteed by the Kellogg Company as an effective laxative food for constipation.* Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

*Constipation due to insufficient "bulk"

Our Summer Gardens

In the rose garden it is a fairly safe rule to feed a shrub in proportion to its production. The larger and stronger bushes that are full of bloom can make good use of considerable fertilizer. Smaller and weaker plants should be fed more conservatively. This applies particularly to plants recovering from winter injury with only slight top growth in proportion to their roots.

The same rule applies right through the summer. In the June flush, roses make good use of considerable quick fertilizer. Within a few weeks the hybrid teas will have passed their peak of early summer bloom and there will be only a few flowers on many varieties. At this time they should not have quite so liberal a supply of water or heavy feed. As they revive and show more life in late August and September they can make use of more plant food again, but it safer to cut down again several weeks before frost to allow the new wood to ripen before cold weather.

A dry season in May has helped in control of black spot, and there has been little or no trouble with mildew this year. Expert opinion seems to be shifting strongly toward dusting as preferable to spraying in control of black spot. Either straight dusting sulphur, or one of the proprietary dusts will prevent—but will not cure—black spot. The objective is to have the leaves covered thoroughly enough to prevent the start of the disease in moist weather when the spread is worst. Good rose growers dust every week or ten days anyhow, and give an extra coating when there is rain in prospect. Sprinkling roses—particularly in the evening—is just asking for trouble. The flowing hose will supply the moisture better and will not promote the disease.

Of the climbing roses, most weathered the last two winters without serious damage. Dr. Van Fleet was injured in many locations as was its sport, New Dawn, but New Dawn remains one of the very best offerings in climbing roses. It is the most reliable of the few "everblooming" climbers. There are few weeks when a good plant does not have a few fine blossoms, and we are not likely to have many more times when there will be three hard winters in succession. The superiority of New Dawn seems to warrant the slight gamble involved in planting it.

Helen L. Davis Is Betrothed

Mr. Kurtz Hanson to Wed Pelham Girl, Graduate of Vassar.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Davis, of Pelham, N. Y., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Louise Davis, to Mr. Kurtz McRoberts Hanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Hanson, of Bethesda, Md.

Miss Davis attended Dana Hall School in Wellesley, Mass., and was graduated from Vassar College in 1935. Her father is business manager of the New York Herald Tribune and a director of its Paris edition. He is a former president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Mr. Hanson attended the Episcopal High School in Virginia and Cornell University, and is a member of Chi Psi and of the Chevy Chase Club. He is on the staff of the National Geographic Society in Washington. His father, a leading Washington attorney, is general counsel of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

19 Air Officers Residing Here Got Promotion

Names of 252 Who Won Higher Ranks Are Listed by Army.

Nineteen of the 252 officers of the Army Air Corps receiving temporary promotions, as part of the reorganization of the officer personnel of the Army's air force, are residents of the District of Columbia and nearby Maryland and Virginia.

Their promotions, announced yesterday by Secretary of War Dern, were made possible Wednesday when President Roosevelt signed a bill creating a new temporary promotion system based on seniority.

Although the promotions are designated temporary, and the Secretary of War is empowered to revoke any promotion, for practical purposes they will prove permanent. Each officer is to hold his temporary rank until his turn on the regular army promotion list is reached when he will receive a permanent commission. Designation of the temporary promotions now is made necessary by the need for a larger number of high ranking officers to meet the expansion of the air corps since the war.

Local officers receiving promotions are Lieut. Cols. John D. Reardon, John N. Reynolds, Walter R. Weaver and Jacob H. Rudolph, of Washington, and Alfred H. Hobley, of Chevy Chase, to the rank of colonel.

Also, Majs. Edwin B. Lyon, Robert LeG. Walsh, Willis H. Hale, Hubert V. Hopkins, William F. Volandt and Asa N. Duncan, all of Washington, to be lieutenant colonels; Capts. Arthur W. Brock, jr., St. Clair Street, William J. Flood, Edwin R. Page and Charles B. DeShields, of Washington; Vincent J. Melot and Issiah Davies, of Chevy Chase, and Don L. Hutchins, of Takoma Park, to be majors.

Virginia officers being promoted are Lieut. Col. Robert E. M. Goolrick, of Fredericksburg, to colonel; Majs. Charles B. Oldfield, of Norfolk; Oliver P. Echols, of Charlottesville, Vincent B. Dixon, of Phoebus, and Lloyd N. Keesling of Cedar Springs, to lieutenant colonel.

Also, Capts. James F. Powell, of Hampton; William S. Gravely, of Roanoke; John Paul Richter, of Sweet Chalybeat Springs; Harvey H. Holland, of Axton; Robert V. Ignico, of Lexington; Reuben C. Moffat, of Richmond, and Leonidas L. Koontz, of Harrisburg, to majors.

46 Guards Held After Strike Riot

Kent, Ohio, June 19 (AP).—Peace returned tonight to the plant of the Black & Decker Electric Co. as 46 company guards were bound over to the Portage County Grand Jury on a charge of shooting with intent to wound.

They pleaded innocent in a blanket arraignment before Mayor W. I. Harvey, who set bond at $1,500 each.

The company guards entered the plant yesterday morning under cover of a tear gas barrage, and were removed last night by county and city officials.

Before their removal six men were wounded and several were gassed.

R. J. Lamb, president of the plant, said in Cleveland the company has not decided what steps will be taken toward reopening.

Union machinists called a strike six weeks ago to enforce demands for a 10 per cent wage increase, a 35-hour week, and recognition for purposes of collective bargaining.

Accountancy School Awards 125 Diplomas

Kennedy Tells Graduates They Can 'Make' and 'Write' History.

Declaring the accountant is "a maker" as well as a "writer" of industrial history, John T. Kennedy, president of the Benjamin Franklin Accountancy School, addressed 125 graduates of his school last night at the Mayflower Hotel.

"There is hardly a large corporation in the United States which does not have an accountant occupying an executive position of the first rank," Kennedy said.

Dean Edwin C. Bosworth conferred the degrees and certificates with the assistance of Joseph I. Zucker, of the accountancy faculty. Candidates for degrees were presented by Randolph C. Richardson, of the law faculty.

Rodham T. Delk, of the evening department, who was the ranking graduate, delivered the valedictory. Four others received gold watches for their scholastic achievements. They were Robert Gilliam Weightman, William Peratino, Ellis Martin Rowe and Robert H. Bird.

A list of the graduates follows:

Staff Shuns Gift: Chanel's to Close

Paris, June 19 (AP).—Mlle. Gabrielle Chanel announced today that her employes had refused her offer to hand over her dressmaking establishment to them and that the famous style shop would be closed.

She said she had made her decision to close rather than to bargain with her striking employes after she offered to turn over the entire business to them.

The shop, she added, already was "virtually closed" by the occupation of the strikers.

Mlle. Chanel offered to remain as an unpaid adviser if the employes accepted her business on a co-operative basis, but the employes refused.

The style expert said that since higher wages and taxes might have forced her to close anyway, it would be "unfair" to promise her employes she would meet their demands for higher salaries and shorter hours.

Offut Named to Greet G.A.R. Delegates Here

George W. Offutt, jr., yesterday was named by the District Commissioners as head of a special citizens committee to welcome the G. A. R. encampment in the National Capital in September.

E. C. Graham was named treasurer of the committee; Robert J. Cottrell, was named executive secretary, and Daniel J. Donovan, auditor.

Congress has appropriated $14,000 for entertainment of those attending the convention.

Fiscal Study Wins Backing Of President

Blanton's Drive on Reds Is Praised by Three Colleagues.

President Roosevelt yesterday gave his indorsement to the proposed fiscal relations study as the House adopted the conference report on the 1937 District appropriation bill and sent it to the White House.

The last of the major appropriation bills, the District measure carries $43,523,910, including a lump sum of $5,000,000.

While explaining he had not seen the revised bill, the President at his morning press conference said reports indicated it was very satisfactory. He had previously urged passage of the bill, while in deadlock, instead of a continuing resolution.

Broad in Scope.

The Chief Executive expressed approval of the proposal to make the fiscal relations study broad in scope rather than limited to comparative tax tables. He indicated the investigation, to be made under his direction with a $50,000 authorization, will be started shortly after the bill becomes a law.

The House adopted the conference report without a struggle, although the House managers had yielded on the great majority of controversial issues.

Although Representative Thomas L. Blanton had threatened to assail Representative Kent Keller (Democrat), of Illinois, for introducing a resolution to censure him for sending out the "red" questionnaire, he merely reiterated his attack on the communism bugaboo in the schools and what he calls the low tax rate in the District.

Defended by Three.

He smiled broadly as words of praise were heaped upon him by three of his colleagues.

The defenders were Representative Taber (Republican), of New York, who teams with Blanton frequently and always against the District; Representative Cannon (Democrat), of Missouri, former chairman of the District appropriation subcommittee, and Representative Rankin (Democrat), of Mississippi.

Cannon ran into a hornets' nest of criticism when he sought to defend the Blanton questionnaire as Representative Sisson (Democrat), of New York, grilled him on the question of authority for sending out the questionnaire.

The Texan was praised by Representative Fish (Republican), of New York, "for trying to expose the activities of Communists in our public schools."

Blanton Reads Letter.

Subsequently, Blanton read into the record one letter, although he said he had thousands of others, indorsing the teachers' query.

The Texan pointed out that some $78,000 for continuation of character education in the public schools had been stricken out of the District bill, together with the parking-meters, which, he said, would have taken money out of the pockets of members of Congress and their constituents visiting here.

Separate House votes were necessary for the House to accept the $5,000,000 lump sum payment, the fiscal relations study amendment, and the proviso that pay patients may be admitted to Children's Tuberculosis Sanatorium.

Criminal Court To Be in Session Half of Summer

Recess Curtailed to Give Trial to Those Unable to Furnish Bond.

The criminal courts of the District Supreme Court will be kept open six weeks this summer, Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat announced yesterday. They will be held in session for most of July and all of September, whereas in former years, when the court recessed for the summer in July, no criminal cases were tried until fall.

The change is being adopted so that prisoners unable to afford bail will not have to wait in jail three or four months before being given a trial.

According to United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett's records, only 12 persons were in jail awaiting a hearing. The District grand jury added to that number late yesterday when 25 indictments were returned, many of them being "jail" cases in which the defendants were unable to post bond.

Among those indicted yesterday was Thomas W. Herrold, formerly cashier and bookkeeper for the Navy Cafeteria Association, who was charged with embezzling $6,503.96 of the association's funds. Police asserted Herrold admitted taking the money April 16 and lost it playing the stock market. The association operated the restaurant in the Navy Department Building.

Those indicted are Stephen Bulebosh, Catherine Lawson, Hampton G. Brown, James Brown and Sidney Gray, grand larceny; Eugene R. Skinner; Thomas F. Medley, William Morton, James Allen, Marcellus Hill, Lewis Holmes, George Johnson and William Dorsey, housebreaking; Adrian T. Owens, Benjamin L. Harlen, John Wilson, Lamar E. Brown, George Butler, robbery.

Purcellville Program Will Open Tomorrow

Purcellville, Va., June 19.—Dr. Sparks W. Melton, of Norfolk, will assist the Rev. Henry B. Cole, pastor of the church, with the dedication services of the Purcellville Baptist Church, which will begin Sunday and continue throughout the week.

The program Sunday evening will consist of the following: Fleet H. James, chairman of the building committee, will present the notes and bonds of the organization, which will be accepted by the clerk of the church, Paul P. Popkins; burning of the notes will be in charge of W. E. Paxson. This will be followed by the dedicatory prayer by the pastor. Music will be supplied by Douglas and Leslie Myers, of Waterford.

The Purcellville church has been served by three pastors, the Rev. R. P. Rixey, who served from the organization date to November 1, 1925; the Rev. C. T. Taylor, from April 1, 1926, to May 18, 1934, and the present pastor, Mr. Cole, who came to the church December 1, 1934.

Baptists Mark West Church's 70th Year Here

200 Attend Celebration; Rev. Flannagan, Former Pastor, Is Speaker.

West Washington Baptist Church celebrated the seventieth anniversary of its founding last night with a dinner and an address by one of its former pastors.

More than 200 persons were present for the exercises.

Seventy birthday candles were lighted—one for each year the church has stood at the corner of Thirty-first and M streets northwest—and church members stood around the tables where dinner was served and sang "Auld Lang Syne."

Feature of the evening program was an address by the Rev. William R. Flannagan, former pastor. He congratulated the members on the occasion.

Two of the oldest members of the church, a brother and sister, were introduced. They were John H. Newman and Mrs. Mary MacFadden, both of whom now are in their 80s. They joined the church 68 years ago under the church's first pastor, the Rev. James Nelson. Since that time 14 preachers have occupied the pulpit of the church.

Robert L. Haycock, long a member of the church and assistant superintendent of schools of the city, presided at the meeting.

Virginia Phone Law Is Aired at Hearing

Richmond, Va., June 19.—Only minor changes were suggested by aviators, airline representatives and airport managers today to the proposed regulations that would augment supervisory powers of the State Corporation Commission over flying in Virginia.

R. E. Steele, of the aviation division, explained that the new State law that went into effect at midnight gave the commission authority to enjoin alleged violators and impose fines, which it did not have under the former statute. It formerly had to depend on Commonwealth's attorneys for enforcement.

The new regulations promulgated under the law eliminate the requirement of compulsory insurance, which, required by only one other State, carried an almost prohibitive rate. A. W. Card, speaking for the Virginia Aeronautic Association, presented a petition indorsing elimination of insurance requirements.

Hit-Run Suspect Held.

Weston, W. Va., June 19.—Charged by a coroner's jury here as being the hit-and-run driver whose auto struck and killed John C. Taylor, 62, in a street here, John Turner, jr., 25, of this city, today is held in the Lewis County Jail for the next Circuit Court grand jury. He may not be admitted to bail. Taylor was killed some time last Saturday night. His body was found later by a pedestrian.

District Blimp Pilot Explains Sport of Free Balloon Racing

When six free balloons ascend from Denver, Colo., in the annual national balloon race, Verner Smith, Hoover Field blimp pilot, will be dangling in the 6-by-4 basket of the Goodyear entry.

The race begins the evening of July 3. On the Fourth, Smith may hear firecrackers bursting hundreds of miles from Denver. Or he may be grounded but a few miles from his starting place.

Smith, who pilots the Goodyear blimp Enterprise over the Capital every day, is one of the country's veteran balloonists. He has over 7,500 flying hours to his credit, more than any other man in the country.

Like most men who gamble their lives on their skill, Smith is not one to talk much about his achievements. But yesterday, sitting in the blimp hangar at Hoover Field, he answered questions about the sport of free-balloon racing.

Research Value.

The only practical value of free balloons, he said, is in research and in instruction. Every would-be blimp pilot must first learn how to fly a free balloon.

Flying a free balloon is the aeronautical equivalent of sailing a small boat, he explained. Success lies in harmnessing the forces of Nature.

The free balloon pilot, Smith said, must be a working meteorologist. He must understand the uncharted and ever-variable currents of the air, know their causes and know how to make them work for him.

Since the idea of the free-balloon race, he explained, is not to get somewhere first but to stay up the longest and to go the greatest distance, the pilot must have endurance, must be able to think coolly and to work fast under tension.

Predict Landing.

Even before starting, some balloonists can predict the exact spot where they will land. It's all a mighty scientific business, done by means of radio weather reports that give velocity and direction of the air currents at every altitude.

The dread of the pilots is to be sucked into a thunderstorm. Upward sweeping currents at the front of the storm force them to valve out gas to check a too rapid rise, and downward currents at the storm center necessitate throwing out the precious sand ballast to check a too-rapid drop.

With supplies of gas and ballast depleted, the balloonist has a poor chance of victory. Conservation of these, Smith says, is the essential part of flying.

3 Exonerated In Children's Auto Deaths

Jury at Inquest Finds Traffic Fatalities Were Accidental.

Jobless Father Pleads for Funds to Bury His Son, 5.

Three District motorists were exonerated yesterday in connection with the deaths of three children in traffic mishaps Wednesday.

After a coroner's jury heard witnesses describe the deaths as accidental—each child was reported to have run into the street from behind parked cars—an unemployed WPA worker, father of one of the young victims, made an appeal for aid in securing funds to bury his son.

Philip Steve Karavasilis, 353 L street southwest, father of 5-year-old Billie Karavasilis, sat in the inquest room as witnesses described his son's death. Repeatedy, he drew the back of his hand across his eyes. When the jury was told how Billie died in his mother's arms, he broke down and sobbed.

No Money for Burial.

"I haven't any money to bury my son," Karavasilis said. "I don't know what I'm going to do. The neighbors have tried to collect money, but they only got $18. I lost my job last November—and now this had to happen."

William J. Nalley, an undertaker in the 500 block of Eighth street northeast, had agreed to donate his services. He said he would keep Billie's body until today. But the cheapest burial plot costs $25.

Billie was injured fatally when struck by a motorcycle in front of his home. He ran into the street to greet his sister, Mary, 7, who was walking toward the house on the opposite side. James E. Davis, of the 100 block of L street southeast, driver of a motorcycle, attempted to avoid the accident by swerving. He was thrown from the cycle and injured his leg.

Darted Into Street.

Edwards was driving in the 400 block of Third street northwest when 3-year-old Michael Maley, of 420 Third street, ran from between two parked cars and struck the side of his auto. A few minutes prior to the accident, Michael had been warned by his father to stay out of the street. The boy's mother, Mrs. Charlotte Maley, told the jury that she watched her son fall beneath the car.

Chumbris, driving the car which struck Harry Glazier, 6, 1315 Park road northwest, testified he didn't see the child until he heard a thump on the fender and looked back.

Harry was playing with a rubber ball. It bounced into the street and he ran to retrieve it just as Chumbris passed. The youngster ran against the side of the car and was knocked against a parked car.

A German nearly broke up the veterans' bonus celebration last night.

The announcement of Max Schmeling's victory over the "Brown Bomber" stopped the parade of vaudeville, radio and night club stars at the National Press Club auditorium for nearly a quarter of an hour.

The 250 guests of Fort Stevens Post No. 32, American Legion, jumped to their feet, cheering. One veteran smashed his new straw hat in joy. The band struck up "Ach du Lieber Augustine" and the men sang lustily. The same men only 19 years ago had braved death to wipe out the "hated Hun."

After this demonstration the crowd went back to enjoy the rest of the four hours of local entertainment and what was left of 10 kegs of beer.

Allegany High School Class Is Graduated

Cumberland, Md., June 19.—The closing exercises of Allegany High School were held this afternoon at the Strand Theater, when the third largest class in the history of the school received diplomas at the hands of former State Senator William A. Gunter, president of the board of education.

Dr. Charles F. Sanders, Gettysburg College, gave the address to the graduates. Among those on the stage was Tasker G. Lowndes, president of the State board of education.

Job Wanted

Police Seek to Aid Survivor of Suicide Pact.

Detective sergeants of the headquarters homicide squad, having obtained a respectable burial for Mrs. Thomas J. Hodgen, yesterday started an effort to get her husband, a 60-year-old gardener, a job.

The elderly couple, bowed under sickness and unemployment last week, decided to die together. They were found unconscious in their room, suffering from gas poisoning. The wife died, but the husband is recovering.

The detectives, impressed by the couple's devotion, fear Hodgen will try to end his life again when he is released from Gallinger Hospital. They want someone to give him a job, believing that with work he would get a new outlook.

Mrs. Hodgen will be buried today in Cedar Hill Cemetery and not in Potter's Field, because of the detectives' interest. The W. W. Chambers funeral home will take care of funeral plans.

Relief Clients' Use of Bonus To Be Limited

Veterans Must Pay Debts, Repair Homes to Stay on City's Rolls.

Workers Will Investigate Spending; Mistakes Halt Cashing.

War veterans on District relief rolls, estimated to number not more than 200, must cash their bonus checks and spend the money to pay honest debts, it was decided by the public assistance commitee of the Board of Public Welfare at a meeting in the District Building yesterday.

Case workers will investigate each case and learn how the bonus money is expended, Elwood Street, welfare director, announced. Veterans will not be permitted to save their bonus and stay on relief rolls. They will not be allowed to spend the money for anything "out of sight." They may remain on relief rolls if they spend their bonus for "just debts," necessary household repairs and similar things, Street said.

Meanwhile, Treasury officials said a number of stop orders on payments of some bonus bonds had been issued by the department because of errors made in preparation. It was estimated that some 15,000 mistakes had been made. As soon as errors are corrected, payments will be resumed.

Lusk's Statement.

Rufus S. Lusk, representing the Washington Taxpayers Association, urged the committee not to let veterans receiving a substantial bonus remain on relief rolls. Lusk issued the following statement:

"Veterans who are relief clients and have received a bonus of any substantial amount should not be allowed to remain on the relief rolls of the District. One of the arguments for the bonus was that it would help former soldiers on relief and it seems strange that there should be any doubt about continuing to hand out taxpayers money to men some of whom may have as much as $750 in cash.

"The bonus should be treated as any other cash which a relief client may have. It has been the policy of the Public Assistance Division to require applicants for relief to state in detail their resources. Clients with bank accounts are rightly refused relief.

Source 'Not Factor.'

"There is no more reason why a veteran should continue on relief when he has up to $800 in bonus money than he should be continued on relief if he had $800 in a savings bank. Because he receives this money for war service should not make any difference."

A letter congratulating District Postmaster Vincent C. Burke and local mail workers for their part in handling the bonus delivery was sent to the postmaster by C. Hamilton Anderson, commander of the District Department, Disabled American Veterans.

Takoma Park Unit Backs New Mayor

The Takoma Park Citizens Association last night voted to support the town's new mayor and commissioners and asked for improvement of traffic regulation at three intersections.

Two new members were appointed of a commission to plan a monument to Benjamin Franklin Gilbert, founder of Takoma Park.

The association voted to send a letter of condolence to Mrs. Stephen E. Kramer, wife of the late assistant superintendent of schools.

Improvement of traffic regulation was asked at second and Walnut streets, Sixth and Aspen streets and at Blair road and Van Buren street.

The association appointed a committee of three to join with a committee of the Takoma Park Boundary Association in seeking widening of Eastern avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston King, sr., members of the association, who are leaving Takoma, were honored at a reception.

Mrs. Bryan, of Norfolk, Asks Capital Police to Aid in Search.

A little old lady who was born at the outbreak of the Civil War walked into Police Headquarters yesterday and asked if someone there could help her find her "baby brother," missing for 70 years. He was 3 the last time his sister, Mrs. Mary Bryan, of Norfolk, Va., saw him.

"He and another brother and myself were orphaned by the war," she said as she sat primly at headquarters. "Well, not exactly by the war," she continued. "Our father died a little more than a year after he enlisted and our mother decided to go out West. She was having a dreadfully hard time. Everybody in the South was having a dreadfully hard time."

The Marions—Mrs. Bryan's father was Burgess Marion and her mother was Nicey Anne Ellen Marion—lived near Cedar Rock, N. C.

There were three children—James Alexander, who now lives at Exmore, Va.; Mary, who is three years younger than James, and Henry Solomon, two years younger than Mary.

"When mother decided to go out West to live with some relatives in Illinois she took little Henry Sol, as we called him, with her," said Mrs. Bryan. "I was 5 at the time. That's the last Alex (the older brother) and I ever saw our mother or baby brother."

Her mother may be living, too, Mrs. Bryan believes. She herself is 75 and since her mother married at the age of 15 she would be about 94 now.

When Mrs. Marion took the little boy to Illinois the two older children were left in the home of a Methodist clergyman, the Rev. A. E. Bobbitt, and his wife.

Mrs. Bryan can remember that her mother planned to have her and Alex come to Illinois later.

"She told the Bobbitts to put tags on our wrists and send us out on the train," she recalled.

But Mary and Alex never joined their mother. For a short while there were letters, then silence that has lasted for almost 70 years. Mrs. Bryan now believes the Bobbitts probably could not bear to give up the youngsters after they had become attached to them. Their own youngsters were grown.

Yesterday was the first time Mrs. Bryan has appealed to the police for aid in hunting her brother. For years she has been running down every possible clew without assistance.

State to Negotiate For Bridge Funds

Baltimore, June 19 (AP).—The State roads commission probably will open negotiations with the Federal Government within the next few weeks for construction of Potomac River bridges destroyed in the March floods.

It was learned today the commission has not yet decided which Federal agency to approach. Details of the bridge plans, even selection of the sites, have not yet been completed.

Members of the commission and Chief Engineer Nathan L. Smith inspected sites at Harpers Ferry, Hancock, Shepherdstown and Point of Rocks yesterday. Smith said the group "just looked over advantages and disadvantages" of the various sites.

The commission will discuss the sites at its meeting next week. Present plans call for location of the Point of Rocks bridge at approximately the same site of the old bridge.

The new Harpers Ferry bridge probably will be some distance from the old site, which is owned by a toll bridge company. The new bridge site will be some distance away to avoid possibility of a suit by the bridge company.

Youthful Rider Injured in Jump At Horse Show

Frank Christmas, Jr., 12, Pinned as Mount Falls at Marlboro.

Frank Christmas, jr., 12, 1608 Varnum street northwest, son of a Washington horse trainer, was seriously injured yesterday when the horse he was riding failed to make a jump at the Marlboro Firemen's Horse Show.

Young Christmas was pinned beneath the spirited hunter, Jesta Gallop, when the animal struck its front legs against the jump and somersaulted through the air.

The youth was carried by the local rescue squad ambulance to the office of Dr. Reverdy Sasscer, Upper Marlboro, and later removed to a Washington hospital. He was said to have a possible fracture of the back and pelvis.

The accident occurred toward the close of the first day of the two-day show held at the Upper Marlboro Fair Grounds. Among those taking outstanding honors during the day was U. S. Randall, young Washington sportsman.

Winners of the various events follow:

Reception Arranged For Visiting Firemen

Hagerstown, Md., June 19.—Plans were completed today for the three-day convention of the Maryland State Firemen's convention, with virtually every room in the larger hotels filled and rooms in many private residences reserved for the several thousand firemen expected for the convention which opens Wednesday. A banquet will be held here Tuesday night for officials of the association, city and county officials and convention officials, followed by a meeting of the executive committee.

Fred Pelzman says:

City Teachers To Spurn Red Query Replies

Only One of 200 in Poll Answers Questionnaire of Rep. Blanton.

Association Expects All in District to Take Similar Position.

Unofficial returns on a questionnaire on Representative Thomas L. Blanton's questionnaire indicated last night that Washington's high school teachers are overwhelmingly against giving the Texan their views on God, communism and Russia.

This second query was circulated to the 314 members of the High School Teachers Association of the District of Columbia, asking them if they planned to answer Blanton's questions.

Last night more than 200 replies were in, Mrs. C. Estelle Phillips, president of the association, reported. All the answers were "No," except one.

"One man said he had already filled out the Blanton questionnaire form, and placed it in the mails," Mrs. Phillips said.

The assocaition replies came from teachers in Central, Eastern and McKinley High Schools. Answers from Wilson, Western and Roosevelt schools have not yet been turned in.

Expect Similar Replies.

"We have no reason to believe teachers in schools unheard from will feel different from the others, especially since the Board of Education has made it clear the teachers can do as they wish," Mrs. Phillips, a teacher at Central, added.

The association's letter to its members advised them that it would not be necessary to answer Blanton's query, and then asked:

"Will you please sign below if you are not going to answer the questionnaire? A 100 per cent "No" means we are not returning it."

Mrs. Phillips said the query was intended to bring about concerted action on the part of the association's membership.

Furore Subsides.

The flare in teacher circles precipitated by the controversial questionnaire, which reached Washington's 4,000 school teachers and officers of the school system early this week, had subsided yesterday.

Assured by the Board of Education that their answers, or their failure to answer, would in no way affect their jobs, the teachers left their posts calmly as the summer vacation began.

They also had the word of several Representatives, particularly that of Representative Kent Keller, of Illinois, that Blanton does not have the authority to call them before his sub-committee on District appropriations should they decline to state their positions on the subject of religion and economics.

The Education Association of the District of Columbia, in an open letter to Blanton, took the Texan to task for demanding with implied threats information of the teachers' personal views on matters of religion. The teachers' union advised its members to ignore the questionnaire altogether.

Annapolis Students Study at Langley

Annapolis, Md., June 19 (AP).—Fifty-one midshipmen, members of the second (junior) class at the Naval Academy, commuted by air to Langley Field, Va., today to study in the laboartories of the national advisory committee for aeronautics.

The trip was part of the broadened schedule of summer training worked out for the class by Rear Admiral David Foote Sellers, superintendent of the Academy. It will be a weekly event until each of the 489 members of the class has been to the laboratories.

During the flight the midshipmen were given an opportunity to act as co-pilots handle radio communication. They worked out aerial navigation and plotted courses. At Langley Field they watched experiments and demonstrations of the latest developments in the field of aeronautics.

"SINS OF MAN." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of the story, "Job," by Joseph Roth, adapted to the screen by Frederick Kohner and Dr. Ossip Dymow, starring Jean Hersholt, with Don Ameche, Allen Jenkins, J. Edward Bromberg, Ann Shoemaker, T. Dewitt Jennings, Fritzi Leiber, Francis Ford, Christian Rub, Adrian Rosley, Gene Reynolds, Mickey Rentschler, John Miltern, Edward Van Sloan, Fred Kohler, jr., and Maxine Reiner. Directed by Otto Brower and Gregory Ratoff. Reviewed Friday morning.

"Sins of Man"—and one seeks in vain for some justification for that utterly incomprehensible bit of titling—is impressive in its simplicity, poignant in its recitation of a great paternal love and genuinely moving in its unfailing appeal to those easy emotions that lie near the surface of every human heart. It is a picture that achieves a measure of greatness not alone by reason of Jean Hersholt's superb characterization of its central figure, but also because it adheres with rigid fidelity to a direct, sympathetic and universal theme of paternal and filial devotion.

BELL.

This unadorned film play, which caused a copious employment of tear-drenched handkerchiefs at yesterday's first performance at Loew's Fox, furthermore, is perhaps unique among current releases as the one picture of recent vintage that is able to hold an audience's fascinated interest without recourse to the usual purling cadences of romantic love between the genders. There is no feminine interest whatsover in "Sins of Man" beyond that engendered by the Tyrolean housekeeper, who figures in a minor capacity in the early sequences of the action. There is no love affair, no sustained "comedy relief," no extraneous movement of plot to divert attention from the straightforward recital of the tragedies, the triumphs, the anguish and the heartaches that overtook the household of a simple village sexton in the high Alps on the border between Austria and Italy.

A Play for Niobe.

The succession of events in the life of this churchman traces a pattern of grief and heartbreak through almost the span of a lifetime. First, the wife dies upon the birth of her second son; then the elder of the boys becomes immersed in the wonders of aviation and leaves home for America as the only means of evading the paternal insistence that he become also a church sexton, bell-ringer and organist; the younger son, Gabriel, proves to have been born a deaf mute, and Christopher Freymann, himself, falls upon evil days when he follows his first son to New York to evolve some means of obtaining surgical relief for the stricken lad who can neither hear nor speak.

The story, obviously, is not a cheerful one. It is, on the contrary, a gloomy and lachrymose narration of pitiful misfortunes that bend the body of a querulous and heartbroken old man, but never his courage or his faith. To that extent it is, of course, an epic of heroic fortitude which, in the end, is repaid by a complete rout of the sinister forces of defeatism.

Jean Hersholt is the entire picture. Eliminate his compelling impersonation of the patient Freymann and naught remains but a clever dual characterization by Don Ameche, who proves to be a far better character actor as Mario Singarelli than he does juvenile "straight man" as Karl Freymann, aeronautic enthusiast, and a belated comedy bit by Allen Jenkins. All else is mere contributory background for the magnification of the Hersholt role.

Despite its aloofness from the customary dramatic commodities of which conventional "heart interest" plays are made, "Sins of Man" possesses that singleness of purpose and closely knit homogeneity that convert it into an expressive and deeply affecting human document. It is seldom that a drama so completely masculine in interest and motivation takes so powerful a hold upon the heart and mind—all due to the interpretative skill and mastery of makeup of the star whose individual efforts somehow contrive to make a slightly distorted "happy ending" seem a wholly logical and admirable climax to a play of infinite sorrow. The supporting cast is not in any sense incompetent merely because it is hopelessly overshadowed.

Stage Bill Goes Gay.

Quite a different note is struck by the temper and tempo of the stage portion of the new bill at Loew's Fox. Pat Padgett and Pick Malone, who masquerade on the air waves both as "Molasses 'n' January" and "Pick and Pat," hit new highs in blackface hilarity in their nonsensical melange of verbal cross-fire, mouth-organing and dancing. Some of their material could do with a trip to the renovators, but their act, in the main, was so completely on the side of boisterous fun that it stopped the first show cold in its tracks. Practically the same feat was accomplished by Little Jackie Heller, the diminutive tenor, who tore down the house with "You," "Melody From the Sky," "Is It True What They Say About Dixie?" and a medley of "It's a Sin to Tell a Lie" and "She Shall Have Music."

Miss Mickey King, a young aerialiste who does an even 50 up-and-overs suspended high above the stage, after the manner of the late Lillian Leitzel, opens the bill and the 12 Dare Devils close it with a dance revue that gets away from the beaten path in its complex routines.

The Fox Movietone News, a Harry Gribbon comedy, "Sleepless Hollow," that could be dropped with no offense whatever to any intelligent audience, and Phil Lampkin's excellent orchestral potpourri of operatic gems augment a feature that was roundly applauded by yesterday's first tearful capacity house.

"HEARTS DIVIDED." Warner Brothers-Cosmopolitan Pictures filmization of Rida Johnson Young's story, "The Glorious Betsy," adapted to the screen by Laird Doyle and Casey Robinson, starring Marion Davies, supported by Dick Powell, Charles Ruggles, Arthur Treacher, Edward Everett Horton, Claude Raines, Henry Stephenson, Clara Blandick, George Irving and Phillip Hurlic. Directed by Frank Borzage. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

It's vaudeville week at the Earle for the two-a-day—beg pardon—four-a-day portion of the program is the most important portion and very pleasant it is.

It's hard to pick the headliner. There is Edgar Kennedy, in person, for the movie comedy fans; Lorretta Lee, for the radio-minded; Wally Brown and Annette Ames in a highly entertaining stage turn, for the variety fans, and the 18 Bebe Barri girls and Audrey Seiber for those who like to look at very pretty girls.

Personally, we would award first place to Wally Brown for his quiet humor. His hands look like Hugh Herbert, but his delivery is all his own, and his ideas of presentation distinctly new. Little Annette Ames is cute and, praise be, he gives her the spotlight gladly instead of trying to shoo her offstage as most gentlement seem to do to lady partners these days.

Kennedy Is Himself.

Edgar Kennedy, who looks just himself, as we somehow thought he would, wastes no time in telling us thar's Hollywood in them thar Western hills but goes into a nice, little, friendly act. He should make a lot of new friends this week to add to those who have been watching his recent progress from short reels to parts in such features as "The Bride Comes Home," "Small Town Girl" and "Fatal Lady." (Yes, he rubs his hand over his desperate face.) Patricia Alwyn is along—Mr. Kennedy says she's Mrs. Kennedy, and we say she has a nice smile.

Lorretta Lee is the blues singer Columbia Broadcasting has been so exercised over lately. She sings and gently "shouts" "Dinah" (a nice arrangement), "Sleepy Time Down South" and "Goody Goody." Why aren't any of the singers as tired of "Goody Goody" as we are?

Screen Romance Garbled.

On the screen, "Hearts Divided" is a queer hodge-podge, sort of a vaudeville of its own, what with the Hall Johnson Choir singing one song, three funny men who are funny, a romance that isn't romantic, and a Napoleon who might have stepped out of his picture on the wall.

The story of the romance of Betsy Patterson, of Baltimore, and Jerome Bonaparte, of France, in the early 1800's, should be familiar to all by now, but apparently it wasn't to the makers of the picture. They change history around (unless our history is all mixed up) and don't have Betsy marry Jerome at all. The big renunciation comes before the wedding instead of after, which might prove annoying to some of the Jerome Bonapartes of 1936, Baltimore.

Both Marion Davies, playing in a strange all-white, washed-out sort of make-up, and the very young Dick Powell are badly miscast as Betsy and Jerome. Their forte is cuteness. So the romance never does manage to break through, although the word "love" is repeated again and again and again. It gets as bad as "goody-goody." As we remember the Dolores Costello-Conrad Nagel version of years ago, it was rather an affecting love story, but this time it is flat, like the champagne that stands too long in that last too-long scene. Dick sings pleasantly and does what he can.

But forgetting the love interest and the principals there are some quite nice moments.

There is that trio—Charlie Ruggles, Edward Everett Horton and Arthur Treacher—who refuse to permit the word serious to be mentioned in their presence. They are dashing blades all, and vastly amusing, with Charlie Ruggles winning a slight edge.

Pippin Is One.

Then there is Pippin, played by Phillip Hurlic, a small pickanninny, who doesn't like to get lost at night because he's "so hard to find after dark." And there is a theatrical and flamboyant portrait of the theatrical and flamboyant Napoleon by the sterling Mr. Claude Rains, who must be related to the family.

The dialogue, except in the ardent passages, is intentionally funny. There are some very tasteful backgrounds contrived throughout. Where it relaxes, it is all right, but where it tries to "take it big" dramatically, there is a great deal lacking.

Beulah Bondi was listed in the cast, but we couldn't find her. Henry Stephenson is Betsy's father, Clara Blandic, her aunt, and George Irving a well made-up Thomas Jefferson.

Discussion of the E street bill cannot be concluded without mention of Audrey Seiber in that white satin gown—she's lovely.

The Cameras Catch Tense Moment

Metropolitan

"BORDER FLIGHT." Paramount picturization of a story by Ewing Scott, with screen play by Stuart Anthony and Arthur J. Beckhard; featuring Frances Farmer, John Howard and Roscoe Karns, with Robert Cummings, Grant Withers, Samuel S. Hinds, Donald Kirk, Matty Fain, Frank Faylen, Ted Oliver, and Paul Barrett. Directed by Otto Lovering. Previewed Wednesday midnight by W. A. Whitney.

Without fanfare and without pretense at being anything more than sheer entertainment, "Border Flight" recounts the activities of the Coast Guard in apprehending smugglers, with emphasis on the aerial angle of these efforts.

Sure, "Border Flight" is hokum—but the best. It has you at times roaring in glee at the dry humor of Roscoe Karns, at times stifling a great desire to get up on the screen and sock Grant Withers in the jaw, at times cheering the hero to victory with the gal and against the smugglers, and at times sitting on the edge of the seat just waiting for that inevitable crash.

Whatever the picture may lack, it does not miss being grand entertainment. Short—it lacks a minute of being an hour—it does not allow any time for superficialities, for time-consuming impedimenta; rather does the story open with a near crack-up and progress at horse-opera speed until the end, when Mr. Withers deliberately goes into a power dive, crashes into the smugglers' boat to save the day for the gal and the hero being bombarded on shore.

Dedicated to Coast Guard.

Tacitly dedicating the work to the Coast Guard, "Border Flight" makes no effort to "glorify," other than that glorification which may be manifest in a simple story of the unsung, peace-time activities of the maritime G-men.

From the suggestions already given, a brief idea of the story may be obtained—and that is sufficient. The principal love interest is between John Howard and Frances Farmer, with Grant Withers unsuccessful at making a triangle. The smugglers are Donald Kirk, Matty Fain and Frank Faylen. Samuel S. Hinds makes an imposing commander. Roscoe Karns, as the wartime ace, grounded through personal preference, is the mechanic who furnishes most of the humor of the piece.

Spectacular airplane crashes mark the progress of the story, which is filmed thrillingly and acted with credit.

In the supporting program are seen "Romance in the Air," with Winifred Shaw and Phil Regan warbling several sweet tunes during the apprehension of fake radio school operators; an issue of Paramount Pictorial, and the combined releases of the Paramount and Universal Newsreels, featuring New York's lady bouncer.

"FURY." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a story by Norman Krasna, adapted to the screen by Bartlett Cormack and Fritz Lang, featuring Spencer Tracy and Sylvia Sydney, with Walter Abel, Bruce Cabot, Edward Ellis, Walter Brennan, Frank Albertson, George Walcott, Arthur Stone, Morgan Wallace, Edwin Maxwell, Howard Hickman, Jonathan Hale, Leila Bennett, Esther Dale and Helen Flint. Directed by Fritz Lang. Reviewed Friday evening (second week) by Sally Stroud.

If you have never seen a lawless mob in action, you have a chance to see a typical one in all its fury in this picture. Should you happen to be from a section where folk attend lynchings in the festive spirit in which they go to all-day singin's, it will strike a familiar note. And you will recognize prototypes of the sort of persons who incite mobs.

With relentless truth this mob has its own way. People really say such things and do such things. smalltowners do blame "out-of-towners" for a lot of home talent necktie parties. As you know from recent happenings.

Whether or not such a string of coincidences could have happened is open to question. A stranger who liked peanuts could have been accused of being a kidnaper because he had a marked bill. A mob could and has acted just as this one did. Sheriffs and deputies have attempted vainly to cope with bloodthirsty citizenry on the rampage. Whether any per cent of prospective lynchees, innocent or guilty, have the good fortune to escape in the approximate manner this one man did, is doubtful. But escape he did.

Romance Finally Flowers.

With the testimony of the acting judge and incriminating newsreel pictures, the guilt of 22 citizens is proved, to the satisfaction of the innocent man, who was thought to have perished when the mob burned the jail in which he was unjustly imprisoned. Naturally, there is a happy ending; he gets the girl he had been en route to wed when he was arrested.

What is unnatural is that there is no glamor; the smalltowners speak in homely idiom; the boy-girl team is typically average, with run of the mill ambitions and dreams; most unnatural of all, the truth is told, with few reservations, about a social evil of cancerous viciousness. Therefore, do not choose to see it unless you have tired of tinselly tap dancers and crooners.

Beautifully crazy is "The Old Mill Pond," Harman-Ising cartoon, which caricatures "Fats" Waller, Cab Calloway, Stepin Fetchit and other sepia screen celebrities.

Nonpartisan note—The applause given President Roosevelt and Gov. Landon in the newsreel was equally divided. Which means what?

Columbia

"UNDER TWO FLAGS." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of the novel by Ouida, adapted to the screen by W. P. Lipscomb and Walter Ferris, starring Ronald Colman and Claudette Colbert, with Victor McLaglen, Rosalind Russell, Gregory Ratoff, Nigel Bruce, C. Henry Gordon, Herbert Mundin, John Carradine, Lumsden Hare, Fritz Leiber, William Riccardi, Frank Reicher, Francis McDonald, Nicholas Soussanin and Gaston Glass. Directed by Frank Lloyd.

Marked by a flamboyant sweep of both scene and action, this new picturization of Ouida's famous story of the Foreign Legion, which yesterday at Loew's Columbia resumed its F street appeal to the tastes of those who favor turbulence in their screen fare, quickly laid vigorous hold upon the emotions and imaginations of large and enthusiastic audiences.

"Under Two Flags" long has served as one of the theater's reliable standbys. It has been acted upon the boards of the traditional theater by some of the stage's most brilliant stars and before now has done yeoman's duty as a subject for cinematographic exploration. Never before, however, has the topic of Cigarette and her love for Sergt. Victor and the mixed romapticisms of the tale been accorded such spectacular treatment as in the present instance. The new production of "Under Two Flags" is an impressive example of the flexibility, scope and minutely expository power of the modern motion picture. It is alive with sensational action, leavened with judicious touches of comedy and distinguished by colorful characterizations contributed by a hand-picked cast.

Colman and Colbert Star.

The stars of the film, nominally, are Ronald Colman and Claudette Colbert, both of whom turn in finely shaded performances, but any fair appraisal of the salient virtues of the picture could not with good grace overlook the sterling work of such featured players as Victor McLaglen, Rosalind Russell, Gregory Ratoff, C. Henry Gordon, Nigel Bruce, Herbert Mundin, Lumsden Hare, Frank Reicher, Fritz Leiber or Francis McDonald. They do much toward establishing this as one of the painstaking accomplishments of the early summer season.

Frank Lloyd in his direction again has demonstrated his peculiar facility in the handling of large groups of players. His battle scenes on the desert are models of well-ordered realism.

The bill at the Columbia is rounded out by the customary short reel subjects and a new issue of the news events. N. B. B.

"SHOW BOAT." Universal picturization of the operetta by Oscar Hammerstein 2d, based on the novel by Edna Ferber, starring Irene Dunne, supported by Allan Jones, Paul Robeson, Helen Westley, Sammy White, Hattie McDaniel, Patricia Barry, Marilyn Knowlden, Arthur Hohl, J. Farrell MacDonald, Charles Wilson, Charles Winninger, Helen Morgan, Queenie Smith, Donald Cook, Francis X. Mahoney, Sunnie O'Dea, Charles Middleton, Clarence Muse, Mae Beatty, Harry Barris and Stanley Fields. Screen play and lyrics by Hammerstein; music by Jerome Kern. Dance numbers staged by LeRoy Prinz. Directed by James Whale. Reviewed Friday afternoon (fifth week) by W. A. Whitney.

"Show Boat" now joins that select white company of motion pictures playing into its fifth consecutive week, and if that is not sufficiently eloquent commendation, just read the preceding italics and be thoroughly convinced that here is, indeed, one of the season's finest offerings. And that is that!

Starting yesterday, there was added to the bill a picture, which, though "short" in length, is packed with compelling drama, searching analysis and trenchant comment—the fifteenth issue of "The March of Time." Three subjects comprise the current release.

Of particular appeal is the now famous "story of Joseph Krutz," wherein is related how he grew up in an atmosphere of squalor, slipped by circumstances beyond his own control, into a life of crime which ended at the electric chair. A tense, stark story, related (and enacted) in unvarnished terms, the drama emphasizes far more than the words of delegates to the recent meeting of welfare agencies where the cause and cure of juvenile delinquency lie.

The issue opens with a clearly presented discussion of the position of Austria in the present European political set-up, related as it might affect the restoration of the glory of the Hapsburgs and the return to the throne of 24-year-old Otto von Hapsburg. Showing the history of Austria from the height of its power down to the present time, the subject reveals that Austria's destiny cannot be of her own making, sandwiched, as she is, between Germany and Italy.

"I don't know whether they are celebrating the birth of the Texas Republic or the birth of musical comedy," comments the son of Gen. Sam Houston, to close the commentary on the Dallas-Fort Worth civic rivalry in the current Texas Centennial celebration. In presentation, narration, re-enactment and photography, the issue maintains the usual high standard of conciseness and clarity, offered without bias.

Medal to Honor Gen. Edwards, Dead 5 Years

26th Division Chief Cited for Gallantry but Never Decorated by U. S.

Five years after his death, Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, who was relieved of his war-time command of the Twenty-sixth Division a few weeks before the Armistice and was later demoted to brigadier general, will be honored with the Distinguished Service Medal.

Although Gen. Edwards commanded a division on the front lines longer than any other American officer, was frequently cited for gallantry and was decorated by the French, Polish and Belgian governments, he never received an American decoration.

The award of the Distinguished Service Medal, which will be made next Saturday to Mrs. Charles A. Otis, sister of the late general, was authorized by a law passed June 5 and introduced by Representative William A. Connery, who served under Gen. Edwards during the war.

The presentation of the medal will be a feature of the convention of the Twenty-Sixth division at Worcester, Mass., on Saturday. Maj. Gen. Fox Conner, commander of the First Corps Area, and Leonard Maloney, national commander of the Veterans Association of the Twenty-Sixth Division, are in charge of the convention.

During the 14 months in which Gen. Edwards commanded the division, made up of National Guard units from the New England States, it participated in some of the most important battles of the war, including Apremont, Seichprey, Chateau Thierry, Vaux, Bouresches Woods, the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives.

On October 24, 1918, with the signing of the armistice less than three weeks off, Gen. Edwards was relieved of his command and ordered home. In 1920 he was demoted to the rank of brigadier general, regaining his rank the following year. Because of being relieved from his command and his subsequent demotion, he was not recommended for any American decoration.

A graduate of the Military Academy in 1883, he fought in the Spanish-American war and the Philippine insurrection. He was the first chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, from 1900 to 1912.

His only daughter, Bessie Porter Edwards, died in France while nursing American soldiers, less than two weeks before he was relieved of his command.

Sanity Trial Is Set In Stocking Killing

San Francisco, June 19 (AP).—Insanity proceedings today gave Albert Walter, jr., an avowedly unwanted chance to escape the gallows for the "silk stocking" slaying of pretty Blanche Cousins.

"I appeal," said the 28-year-old wanderer when Public Defender Gerald Kenny told Superior Judge Lile T. Jacks he believed Walter insane.

"I did it and I want to have it over with," Walter told the court. "I want to be hanged. This is a good way of committing suicide."

Despite his protestations, Kenny entered a plea of not guilty by reason of insanity and the trial was set for June 25.

Walter, former New York restaurant manager, walked into a police station Wednesday night and led officers to an apartment in the fashionable Nob Hill section. There the police found the 31-year-old woman strangled to death—a silk stocking knotted about her neck.

Walter admitted assaulting her. He said he chocked her to death because she resisted his advances.

Stanek Kills Self; Ex-Czech Official

Praha Czechoslovakia, June 19 (AP).—Frank Stanek, 68, former president of the chamber of deputies and former member of the Czech cabinet, committed suicide today in a local sanitarium.

Sanitarium authorities announced he had shot himself with a revolver. They said apparently he was depressed by an incurable illness.

Only a few days ago Stanek welcomed Dr. Eduard Benes, President of Czechoslovakia, when the latter visited Moravia.

However, Stanek's condition grew rapidly worse when he returned to Praha.

6 Children Jabbed By Maniac's Needle

Montreal, June 19 (AP).—A maniac armed with a hypodermic needle was sought tonight by police for jabbing six children here.

Two of the children, Mary Sheppard, 6, and Armand Sarrazin, 10, were taken to hospitals with swollen arms.

The boy described his assailant as a "big, skinny guy." That is the meager description police obtained.

Nuns at the orphanage of Hospice St. Henri, yesterday found Armand crying he had been "stabbed."

It took a magnifying glass for physicians to find the tiny marks on the arms of the two children. They had not determined what injection, if any, had caused the infections.

The other four children bore no marks, but told similar stories of attacks by the assailant.

Culbertson on Bridge

Part-Score Sometimes a Menace.

A part-score easily may be a burden instead of a blessing. This is particularly true when an inexpert team, has the part-score. If the partners stretch their bids to take advantage of the score, a sizable penalty may result. If, on the other hand, they hold splendid fitting cards, they are entirely too apt to be satisfied with a low, "safe contract," instead of investigating slam possibilities. This latter was the case in the hand described below.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
North-South, 60 part-score

NORTH
♠ K J 6 4
♥ A Q 8 7 2
♦ K 7

WEST
♠ 10 5
♥ J 9 5
♦ Q J 8 3
♣ 10 9 5 2

EAST
♥ K 10 4 3
♦ 10 9 6
♣ Q J 7 4 3

SOUTH
♠ A Q 9 8 7 2
♣ A K

The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 spade | Pass | 2 hearts | Pass |
| 2 spades | Pass | Pass! | Pass |

North's pass to his partner's spade rebid is difficult to understand. In fact, his first bid had nothing to recommend it, with or without a part-score. It is a sound general rule that a part-score should have virtually no influence on the bidding! The exception to the rule is that, obviously, there is no need to "reach for game." Otherwise, responses should be perfectly normal.

The correct bidding on this hand, with and without the part-score, is:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 spade | Pass | 3 spades | Pass |
| 4 dimds. | Pass | 4 hearts | Pass |
| 5 dimds. | Pass | 5 no trp. | Pass |
| 7 spades (final bid) | | | |

After the trump suit agreement, South's four diamond bid is an asking bid. North's response of four hearts shows the heart ace and second round diamond control. South still must guard against a diamond loser, which he does by inquiring into third round control. (A second asking bid in the same suit as the first, provided partner did not answer the first with a response of four no trump, is an inquiry for additional control.) Since North has only a doubleton king of diamonds, automatically assuring third round control, he confirms that fact by bidding a corresponding number of no trump.

Considering that the grand slam was absolutely cold, North and South hardly could feel satisfied with themselves for stopping at two-odd.

Schmeling's Knockout of Louis One of Ring's Greatest Upsets

German Batters 'Brown Bomber' Into Tired Negro

Knockout Not Lucky, Occurs After Louis Is Virtually Collapsed by Teuton's Methodical Barrage of Fists.

head, then came another and a third—even more vicious than its predecessors. The third punch was charmed—and it dropped Louis to the canvas for the first time in his brief and sensational professional ring career. It was the turning point. Louis rose at the count of four almost simultaneously with the bell. That bell may have saved him for the punishment he was yet to take.

Max staggered Joe again just at the bell, which neither heard. As they continued to fight during the period of rest, Schmeling landed another hard right. Referee Arthur Donovan pried them apart—and Joe walked back to his corner like a man on stilts with his kneecaps bending the wrong way with every other step he took.

Schmeling belted Louis almost at will in the sixth. Again just at the bell he shot home another hard right to the head—and once again Joe shuffled to his corner with rubber where his leg muscles should be.

Louis Fades After Seventh.

Louis rallied in the seventh, but the rally proved his parting shot to his dominance of the fistic scene. From then o nhe became a pitiful catcher, with no more ability to fight back than his sparring partners who were preparing him for his whipping last week.

Time after time, Schmeling sent him reeling aeross the ring with those right-hand smashes. Time after time Der Schlager had his victim on the verge of a knockout, but seemed to be toying with him.

Louis' face began to lose human semblance as his left jaw continued to swell like a balloon. Then his eyes closed. His punch went with his features and long before the finish he could do no more than paw at the methodical German who was doing such a masterful job of razing.

In losing, Louis answered two questions that have often been asked and not before answered. He proved that he can take it. Perhaps never before has mortal man taken so many punishing punches without wilting.

Displays No Emotion.

Louis also proved that the "dead-pan" expression which he wears always while fighting is not a pose. Under fire, even while he was on the floor, he displayed no emotion. The only change in his features were made by the fists of his conqueror.

The exploded Brown Bomber still was in a daze an hour after Schmeling had ceased firing. He still was rubbery legged and able to do very little talking. Both his thumbs were sprained. One—his left—was injured in training a few days ago. The other he sprained in the bout.

"Ah didn't know nothin' aftuh that knock-down punch in the fourth round," he mumbled through pouty lips, which, for the first time, had been punched into an even poutier formation.

The Negro who zoomed across the fistic skies to the very heights in a bit more than one year has no intention of quitting. He will rest a while, then start the long, hard climb back to the top.

Schmeling was perhaps the least surprised person in the world over the outcome. The first man since Natie Brown to face Louis, he had a logical explanation for everything that happened in the startling upset.

"I studied the pictures huff all Louis' fights," he admitted. "Den I coom heah to zee him fight Paloino. I find mistakes he makes, und take hadvantage of dem."

Schmeling explained that, with true Teutonic thoroughness, he had mapped out his fight to find out if Joe still made those same mistakes in the first two or three rounds.

"After de third, I knew he still made dem, und dot I had a chance. After de fourth, I knew I would win. Und dot's dot."

It is as simple as that to the man who was supposed to serve as a sacrifice for the greatest fighting machine of all times, but instead punched his way into the right to fight for the heavyweight crown he once wore.

The punch that laid Louis low was more significent than would appear on the surface. Destroying as it did some measure of the drawing power of the man on whom Promoter Mike Jacobs was riding to fame and riches, it practically wrecked the Twentieth Century Club, which served as Jacobs' medium of self-advancement.

The punch that spelled "finis," for the time being, at least, to the aspirations of Louis, gave the present titleholder, Jim Braddock, a new lease on life. Now, instead of being forced to face the dreaded dark destroyer, he can defend his championship against a man less formidable than Louis appeared before tonight.

Thus it is that the two men who figured in two great upsets within a year will meet in September to joust for the crown, while the two "invincibles," Max Baer and Joe Louis, have been relegated to oblivion.

Arrangements had already been made before tonight's upheaval for a meeting to be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, at which Louis would have been signed to battle Braddock for the title. Schmeling is tied up with the Twentieth Century Club and Braddock was willing to fight Louis for them. Just what arrangements will now be made remains to be seen.

At ring time, Louis was one of the most prohibitive favorites ever to clamber through the ropes. He was 1 to 10 and better in most quarters to whip Schmeling. The odds were 5 to 1 against Schmeling going more than five rounds and even money that he would not be on his feet at the end of 10.

A rather pathetic note was added to the proceedings as Louis' mother and wife fled from the sight of their boy being battered into oblivion.

Joe's mother, Mrs. Lilly Brooks Barrow, could stand it no longer than the sixth round. Then she ran weeping from the stadium. Joe's wife, the former Marva Trotter, whom he married just a few minutes before the Baer bout, grew more and more worried as the slaughter continued. By the ninth round she, too, was weeping copiously and fleeing from the scene.

Blaeholder Hurls 3 Balls; Gets Win

Indians' Pitcher Credited With Game Over Nats.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 19.—Pitcher George Blaeholder, of the Indians, was credited with being the winning pitcher in today's game with the Nats, despite the fact that he delivered only three balls to the plate.

Blaeholder entered the box in the sixth inning with the Indians training, 5 to 3, and two Nats out. On his third pitch, Chapman hit into a force play, retiring the side.

In the Cleveland half of the inning, a pinch-hitter batted for Blaeholder and before Lloyd Brown, the Indians' third pitcher, entered on his duties the Indians had taken a 6-to-5 lead and the official scorer had no alternative but to credit Blaeholder with the victory.

Braddock Praises Max; Not Surprised

New York, June 19 (AP).—Heavyweight Champion James J. Braddock was not as surprised as most ringsiders tonight when Max Schmeling knocked out Joe Louis, thereby qualifying as the No. 1 challenger for the title.

"I always said Louis was no superfighter and this proves it," said the champion. "Of course I was surprised.

"I will be glad to defend my title against Schmeling. I think I can beat him and then, if Louis makes a comeback, I will be willing to take him on, too. Joe has lots to learn, however."

Braddock praised Schmeling but added "a smart guy with a good left jab can beat him."

Javelin Record Falls.

Helsingfors, June 19 (AP).—Matti Jarvinen, of Finland, Olympic javelin champion four years ago, today bettered his own world record when he tossed the spear 77.23 meters (253 feet 4½ inches). The list world mark is 249 feet 8 inches.

Lous in a Daze From Fourth Round On

Groans Disappointment; Was Handicapped by Sprained Thumbs.

By Eddie Brietz.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 19.—A badly battered and dejected fallen idol lay stretched out in his dressing room under the grandstand in the Yankee Stadium tonight and groaned his disappointment.

Joe Louis didn't know what happened in there in the ring with Max Schmeling. All he knows is he has a swollen, aching jaw, two badly sprained thumbs and that he not only was knocked down, but that he was knocked out.

Until his handlers told him about it, the Brown Bomber said he hadn't the faintest idea what transpired between the time the surprising Dutchman floored him in the fourth until he was dispatched to dreamland by that right in the twelfth.

"I was in a fog out there," he said. "I just went in and tried to punch and tried to keep from being hit."

"His jaw was hurting him, his thumbs were hurting and he couldn't get steam behind his punches," said John Roxborough, one of the Negro boy's managers.

"We were surprised he wasn't knocked out before he was."

Praise Schmeling.

Louis was too tired and disappointed to talk much, but his handlers praised Schmeling's courage and punching ability.

While Julian Black, another manager, hurried to the German's dressing room to offer congratulations, Roxborough talked for Joe.

He attributed the bomber's failure to the fact that Joe was not permitted to use as much gauze and tape for bandaging purposes as in previous fights.

"He has been used to 12 feet of gauze and 6 feet of tape," he said. "Tonight he went in with 6 feet of gauze and 2 of tape. That's not enough protection for a man with big hands."

Roxborough said some of Schmeling's punches hurt Louis plenty. The right in the fourth that sent Joe reeling to the canvas for the first knockdown of his pro career carried plenty of dynamite.

Black and Roxborough plan to take Louis to Michigan for a long rest in the country. Then they'll send him back to the boxing wars.

Browning, Former Mat Champ, Dead

Browning died in St. Mary's Hospital late today from pulmonary embolism, a condition of blood clots in the lung.

The wrestler underwent an exploratory operation about ten days ago in connection with an abdominal ailment. His condition improved until three days ago, when complications developed.

Blow That Felled Louis in Fourth Decides Struggle

Unbeaten Negro Super-Man Is Virtually Carried From the Ring; Never Recovers From Early Beating.

By Jack Cuddy.

United Press Staff Correspondent.

Round by Round

By Bill McCormick.

ROUND ONE.

They came out slowly and sparred in midring. Louis jabbed a left to the jaw while Max crouched and slowly retreated. Max clinched as Louis rushed into close corners. Joe worked methodically and failed to counter after taking a light left to the cheek. Schmeling came off the ropes and took both hands to the head.

Louis shot a right to the jaw and Max countered with a right to the body. Max hooked a left to the head and they exchanged light body blows before clinching along the ropes. Schmeling beat Louis to a body punch. Joe backed off as Max missed an attempt to connect to the jaw with his right. Max bobbed and crouched at one side of the ring while Louis feinted for an opening. They were in a clinch at the bell.

ROUND TWO.

The German's straight left stopped Louis as the bomber forced the pace at a faster clip. Joe pumped his left twice to the nose. The referee thought the gang had sounded and, by mistake, started the fighters for their corners. They were quickly

Yankee Stadium, New York, June 19 (U.P.).—Former heavyweight champion Max Schmeling, of Germany, tonight scored one of the most thundering upsets in sports history by knocking out the mighty "Brown Bomber," Joe Louis in the twelfth round after smashing the erstwhile unbeaten Negro superman to the floor twice.

Schmeling again became the world's No. 1 heavyweight challenger as Referee Arthur Donovan tolled the full ten count over the Detroit Negro at 2:29 of the twelfth round. They were scheduled to fight 15 rounds, but Louis—winner of 27 consecutive professional victories—had suffered such a beating from 30-year-old Max that his handlers had to virtually carry him from the ring.

Knockout Expected.

The knockout had been expected after the fourth round, when Maxie—who in the first three sessions appeared to be in for a pasting—suddenly lashed out with his right from a backward crouch and smashed Joe flush on the chin. Two more rights to the same spot put Joe down on the canvas in that fourth round for the first time in his professional career.

Louis never completely recovered from those triphammer smashes in the fourth. And he took only one round thereafter, as Maxie hammered the brown boy's cupid face until the left side was puffed and distorted like a brown balloon.

So the end came in the twelfth, when the grim-visaged Schmeling whirled out of a clinch, and smashed Joe with right and left hooks to the chin. He battered Louis—staggering on rubber legs—into a corner and smashed and bashed him to the head. They clinched and moved to midring.

Schmeling to Get Shot at Braddock

New York, June 19 (AP).—Mike Jacobs, who staged the Max Schmeling-Joe Louis heavyweight bout tonight, said he plans to match Schmeling with James J. Braddock for the world's heavyweight title this fall.

"I've got Schmeling signed and I can get Braddock,' he said. I'll probably put the show on here, although I do not think New York did right by tonight's show by any means."

Jacobs, who has Louis under contract until 1940, hasn't lost faith in the brown bomber.

Smith Has Three Winners, Including 'Double,' at Charles Town

Rides Cantide To Victory In First

Northeast Boy Returns to Saddle After a Long Layoff.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town, W. Va., June 19.—Eddie Smith, the Washington jockey and the pride of northeast H street, had a saddle holiday today with three consecutive winners that included an $118.80 mutuel in the daily double. Smith, who resumed riding here only yesterday, turned in three excellent rides. He had only two other mounts, Chambersburger, a long shot, that finished last, and Scotch Age.

Smith began his string with Cantide in the second race. He kept his charge close to the pace and then moved through on the rail to take command. However, Smith had to use all his saddle generalship to stave off the closing rush of Fools Folly. This winner paid $11.40. In the completing end of the daily double, Smith brought Lady Kiluna home to the tune of a $15.60 mutuel. The Tournament II mare could not find racing room during the early part of it and Smith was content to steady his mount along, saving ground. With the backstretch reached, Lady Kiluna went into the clear and forged to the front, never to be headed.

Smith's third winner and his longest mutuel, that of $27.80 came in the third race. With Polly Plum, a notorious quitter, under him, Smith came home to win by half a city block. It was one of the biggest upsets of the meeting. Sky Ride was second and Noajoyce third in the field of eight. Easter Herald ran a disappointing race in the role of a favorite. Polly Plum was running for a new owner, having been sold for $200 yesterday. She won $3000 today.

The day's race went to J. B. Belk's Scudder by six lengths over Fredalva, a long shot. Jakovia, a 90-cent favorite, was third. The crowd piled the money in on Jakovia and Postponement, the latter a paddock tip. Postponement was almost knocked to his keens at the start and failed to run his race. Scudder paid a $16.20 mutuel and ended a long string of hard luck that has dogged the Belk Stable horses.

U. S.-English Polo Teams Meet Today

By the Associated Press.

London, June 19 (AP).—With a slow field in prospect as the result of rains, England will resume her challenge for the International Polo Cup against the mercurial-paced defending American quartet tomorrow afternoon on the turf of the Hurlingham Club.

The resumption of the second match of the 50-year-old series, interrupted last Saturday by a heavy downpour after the Americans had won the first match, 10 to 9, of the best two out of three competition, will find both sides sticking to their original line-ups.

Chart of Charles Town Races

WEATHER, CLEAR. TRACK, FAST.

FIRST RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:30. Off at 2:33. Winner, Mrs. J. S. Corey's ch. m. (5), by Bagen Barrage—Speckled Beauty. Trained by L. Parfington. Value to winner, $220; second, $50; third, $20; fourth, $10. Time, 1:21.

| Horses | Jockeys | Wgt. | Post | St. | ¼ | ½ | ⅝ | Str. | Fin. | Straight |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| BLONDE BAGGAGE | (Pikor) | 110 | 1 | 7 | 3² | 1½ | 1¹ | 1¹ | | $2.60 |
| PARADE ON | (Myres) | 115 | 3 | 4 | 4½ | 4¹ | 3² | 2½ | ¾ | 4.60 |
| BIG DIPPER | (Shanks) | 110 | 4 | 1 | 1½ | 2² | 2½ | 3¹ | | 3.60 |
| SCOTCH AGE | (Smith) | 108½ | 5 | 2 | 2½ | 3½ | 4² | 4² | | 9.00 |
| RED RIOT | (Root) | 105 | 8 | 5 | 6² | 5² | 5² | 5² | | 3.00 |
| WARNED OFF | (Leonard) | 106 | 6 | 3 | 5½ | 6² | 6² | 6² | | 7.50 |
| WITCH BABY | (Hernandez) | 106 | 3 | 8 | 8 | 8 | 8 | 7½ | | 94.90 |
| LAST SIGNAL | (Garrett) | 106 | 7 | 6 | 7² | 7² | 7½ | 8 | | 101.10 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLONDE BAGGAGE, $7.20, $4.20, $3.00; PARADE ON, $7.00, $4.00; BIG DIPPER, $2.80.

BLONDE BAGGAGE, slow to get under way, went to the leaders with a rush on the backstretch, took command with a sharp move and was being taken in hand through the stretch. PARADE ON, in close quarters going to the first turn, worked his way into contention and closed willingly and was second best. BIG DIPPER, sent to the front at once, began tiring midway of the backstretch. SCOTCH AGE had early speed, but could not keep up. RED RIOT went evenly. WITCH BABY was practically left.

WEATHER, CLEAR. TRACK, SLOW.

SECOND RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:01. Off at 3:02½. Winner, Mrs. H. R. Jenkins' ch. f. (3), by Canter—Tidings. Trained by H. Jenkins. Value to winner, $220; second, $50; third, $20; fourth, $10. Time, 1:00.

| Horses | Jockeys | Wgt. | Post | Start | ¼ | Stretch | Finish | Straight |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| CANTIDE | (Smith) | 108½ | 4 | 2 | 3² | 2½ | 1nk | $4.70 |
| FOOLS FOLLY | (Terhune) | 109 | 8 | 7 | 6¹ | 4¹ | 2¹ | 3.00 |
| LAURA V. | (Garrett) | 100 | 1 | 1 | 1½ | 1¹ | 3hd | 7.00 |
| DOLLY TOUR | (Palumbo) | 109 | 3 | 6 | 5² | 5² | 4¹ | 3.50 |
| LOOK FORWARD | (Hernandez) | 110 | 7 | 4 | 7² | 6½ | 5½ | 34.80 |
| LUKE PHANTOM | (Wisner) | 115 | 5 | 3 | 2h | 3½ | 6² | 3.60 |
| ERION | (Hawkins) | 104½ | 2 | 5 | 4½ | 7² | 7² | 25.30 |
| LAPIS | (Root) | 102 | 6 | 8 | 8 | 8 | 8 | 18.40 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CANTIDE, $11.40, $5.60, $4.00; FOOLS FOLLY, $4.80, $3.40; LAURA V., $4.40.

CANTIDE, nicely handled, was steadied along close to the leaders to the backstretch, moved through on the inside of LAURA V. to take command, but had to be placed to punishment to hold FOOLS FOLLY safe. The latter, outrun to the far turn, came around horses to enter contention and closed with a rush on the inside. LAURA V. sprinted to the front at the break and closed willingly. DOLLY TOUR broke poorly and closed some ground. LUKE PHANTOM could not reach contention.

THIRD RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:30. Off at 3:32. Winner, E. Sanchez's b. m. (5), by Tournament II—Heskilina. Trained by F. Castro. Value to winner, $220; second, $50; third, $20; fourth, $10. Time, 1:31.

| Horses | Jockeys | Wgt. | Post | St. | ¼ | ½ | ⅝ | Str. | Fin. | Straight |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| LADY KILUNA | (Smith) | 111 | 4 | 6 | 4¹½ | 2½ | 1¹ | 1² | | $6.80 |
| CHANNING | (Shanks) | 110 | 2 | 2 | 1¹ | 1² | 2¹ | 2² | | 28.00 |
| SMALL CHANGE | (Palumbo) | 116 | 1 | 1 | 2¹ | 4¹½ | 3¹ | 3¹ | | 1.60 |
| BAV | (Hernandez) | 106 | 5 | 3 | 5½ | 5½ | 5¹ | 4¹¼ | | 6.00 |
| CEDAR BROOK | (Terhune) | 111 | 6 | 8 | 8 | 7h | 6½ | 5² | | 32.10 |
| ALL SORTS | (Pikor) | 110 | 3 | 4 | 2¹ | 3¹ | 4½ | 6² | | 5.40 |
| PRETTY LASS | (Hernandez) | 110 | 8 | 7 | 7¹ | 6¹ | 8 | 7¹ | | 3.30 |
| THE BARD | (Simpson) | 111 | 7 | 5 | 7¹ | 8 | 7½ | 8 | | 62.50 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LADY KILUNA, $15.60, $9.40, $4.60; CHANNING, $17.60, $7.20; SMALL CHANGE, $3.20.

LADY KILUNA, steadied along and saving ground when unable to find racing room going to the first turn, went to the leaders with good speed on the backstretch, drew clear, but faltered in the end and had to be vigorously ridden. CHANNING opened a long lead going to the backstretch and continued gamely after being displaced. SMALL CHANGE was blocked at the first turn and again on the backstretch entering the stretch and closed gamely. ALL SORTS tired badly after pressing the pace.

FOURTH RACE—Four and a half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:00. Off at 4:04. Winner, E. Sanchez's ch. f. (4), by Polymelian—Plummet. Trained by F. Castro. Value to winner, $220; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:51.

|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| POLLY PLUM | (Smith) | 108½ | 8 | 2 | 1½ | 1¹ | 1¹ | $12.90 |
| SKYRIDE | (Palumbo) | 108 | 7 | 4 | 4¹ | 2² | 2¹ | 3.10 |
| NOAJOYCE | (Pikor) | 109 | 2 | 3 | 3¹ | 4h | 3¹½ | 9.30 |
| ROYAL VEIL | (Hernandez) | 108 | 1 | 8 | 4¹½ | 3h | 4½ | 4.30 |
| LITTLE BROOK | (Simpson) | 105 | 5 | 1 | 6½ | 5² | 5¹ | 13.80 |
| GOOD GRACIOUS | (Garrett) | 109 | 6 | 7 | 7¹ | 6¹ | 6¹ | 8.90 |
| EASTER HERALD | (Feltner) | 112 | 4 | 5 | 5² | 7¹ | 7² | 2.30 |
| LADY WINDSOR | (Tryon) | 106 | 3 | 6 | 8 | 8 | 8 | 17.50 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—POLLY PLUM, $27.80, $9.00, $5.20; SKYRIDE, $4.80, $3.80; NOAJOYCE, $7.60.

POLLY PLUM broke alertly, was rushed by LITTLE BROOK to take command, drew far out swinging the stretch, and was being taken in hand in the last 20 yards. SKYRIDE was closest to the leader at the stretch, but was always a length of the others. NOAJOYCE saved ground all the way and came through to the outside. ROYAL VEIL was virtually left at the post and had too much taken out of him reaching contention. LITTLE BROOK had a flash of early speed. EASTER HERALD showed a dull effort.

FIFTH RACE—Six and a half furlongs. Purse, $400. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:30½. Off at 4:31. Winner, J. B. Belk's blk. c. (3), by Meridian—Noralator. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:24 2-5.

| Horses | Jockeys | Wgt. | Post | St. | ¼ | ½ | Str. | Fin. | Straight |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| SCUDDER | (Berg) | 108 | 3 | 1 | 1h | 1½ | 1¹ | | $7.10 |
| FRED ALVA | (Merola) | 105 | 2 | 4 | 2½ | 2¹ | 2¹ | 2¾ | 43.30 |
| JAKOVIA | (Palumbo) | 111 | 4 | 3 | 1½ | 3¹ | 3¹ | 3¹ | .90 |
| POSTPONEMENT | (Terhune) | 111 | 2 | 2 | 4² | 4h | 4h | 4¹ | 1.80 |
| CHAMBERSBURGER | (Smith) | 108½ | 5 | 5 | 5 | 5 | 5 | 5 | 9.90 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCUDDER, $16.20, $7.40, $4.20; FRED ALVA, $23.20, $7.80; JAKOVIA, $2.80.

SCUDDER, first away, gradually shook off FRED ALVA to draw far out swinging into the final straightaway and was kept going to the end. FRED ALVA pressed the leaders and closed willingly. JAKOVIA was always close to the pace and closed willingly. POSTPONEMENT almost went to his knees on the break when slightly bothered by SCUDDER and FRED ALVA and would not extend himself thereafter. CHAMBERSBURGER was closer than usual in the early running, but faltered badly.

SIXTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:02. Off at 5:04½. Winner, Mrs. S. Times' gr. g. (6), by Kiev—Mayrose. Trained by C. Eames. Value to winner, $220; second, $50; third, $20; fourth, $10. Time, 1:19.

| Horses | Jockeys | Wgt. | Post | St. | ¼ | ½ | Str. | Fin. | Straight |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| DR. JILLSON | (Terhune) | 115 | 4 | 4 | 3½ | 2½ | 1¹ | 1¹ | $3.20 |
| JUNE G. | (J. Hernandez) | 110 | 6 | 5 | 4½ | 4¹ | 2¹½ | 2² | 8.50 |
| MAZYNIATA | (Palumbo) | 110 | 1 | 1 | 1½ | 1½ | 1h | 3¹ | 2.70 |
| LADY BUCK | (Pikor) | 110 | 7 | 3 | 2½ | 3h | 4¹ | 4¹¼ | 3.00 |
| BARNEY SEXTON | (Cusimano) | 106 | 2 | 6 | 6¹ | 6¹ | 5¹ | 5¹ | 12.20 |
| TRANSTINE | (Hernandez) | 106 | 3 | 2 | 5¹ | 7¹ | 7½ | 6¹ | 49.20 |
| TRAPLOU | (Hernandez) | 110 | 5 | 8 | 8 | 8 | 8 | 7¹ | 11.80 |
| CLIFTON'S AGNES | (Shanks) | 111 | 8 | 6 | 2h | 5½ | 6¹ | 8 | 10.60 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DR. JILLSON, $8.40, $5.40, $3.20; JUNE G., $8.40, $4.00; MAZYNIATA, $3.60.

DR. JILLSON, within striking distance of the leaders from the start, rallied when put to a drive and wore down MAZYNIATA, but had to be ridden out to stave off JUNE G. The latter swung wide into the stretch and probably was best. MAZYNIATA was sprinted into command going to the first turn, but tired after setting the pace to the stretch. LADY BUCK dropped back gradually after running with MAZYNIATA. BARNEY SEXTON closed well along the rail.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-fourth miles. Purse, $300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, same. Went to post at 5:32. Off at 5:33. Winner, Mrs. W. G. Star Knight's (Winner) ch. g. (5), by Display—Hazy Dawn. Trained by E. C. Kirby. Value to winner, $220; second, $50; third, $20; fourth, $10. Time, 2:12.

| Horses | Jockeys | Wgt. | Post | St. | ¼ | ½ | ¾ | Str. | Fin. | Straight |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| THIS PLAY | (Palumbo) | 108 | 2 | 2 | 1¹ | 2¹ | 2¹ | 2¹ | 1³¼ | $2.60 |
| COAT TAILS | (Tryon) | 110 | 1 | 1 | 1½ | 1h | 1½ | 1½ | 2¹ | 7.00 |
| PAULINE H. | (J. Hernandez) | 106 | 5 | 7 | 5h | 4½ | 3½ | 3¹ | 3¹ | 5.10 |
| GNOMNIE | (Garrett) | 105 | 7 | 3 | 4³ | 3h | 4¹ | 4¹ | 4¹ | 6.80 |

| RAPIDUP | (Root) | 102 | 3 | 2 | 3² | 6³ | 7 | 7 | 7 | 67.10 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—THIS PLAY, $7.20, $6.00, $3.40; COAT TAILS, $7.00, $3.80; PAULINE H., $3.40.

THIS PLAY, closest in attendance of COAT TAILS from the beginning, moved up sharply when put to a drive in the stretch and drew out to win going away. COAT TAILS had high speed while setting the pace, opened what appeared to be a winning lead at the far turn, but faltered in the last sixteenth. PAULINE H. hung after improving her position during the first mile. GNOMNIE showed a good even effort. RAPIDUP had early speed.

Mary Cootes, Edith Clarke Meet in D. C. Singles, Doubles Finals

Each Seeking Two Crowns Today

Miss Cootes Is Defending Women's Champion in Both Events.

By John R. Vosburgh.

As if their singles match today for the women's District championship were not enough, Edith Clarke and Mary Cootes yesterday assured their meeting in the doubles final. Thus, Miss Cootes, slender Alexandria girl, will be defending two championships this afternoon at Columbia Country Club.

Paired with Mrs. Margaret Carstecken Robinson, Miss Clarke gained the doubles final with a 6—3 6—2 victory over the formidable combination of Sara Moore and Mrs. Dorette Miller. Miss Cootes and Mrs. Nathan Wyeth turned back Dorothy Kingsbury and Mrs. Cecyle Rover, 6—0, 6—4.

By a mild flight of the imagination, it will mark something in the nature of a duel between the Army and the Marines when the two, hard-stroking young ladies take the court at 2 p. m. for their singles match. Miss Cootes is the daughter of Army Col. Harry N. Cootes; Miss Clarke's father is Lieut. Col. Thomas Clarke, of the Marines.

In their only meeting this season, Edith trimmed her dark-haired opponent, 6—4, 7—5, in the finals of the Old Dominion championships in Richmond in which she lifted Miss Cootes' titles. She is favored to lift two of Miss Cootes' titles today, by the way, both on the face of her straight-set advance to the finals and her No. 1 seedings in both singles and doubles.

In the City of Washington tournament, Miss Cootes lost to Mrs. Robinson in three sets. Miss Clarke lost to Mrs. Robinson in straight sets in the finals. The Alexandria girl, however, has had three hard-fought matches in getting to the District finals, being taken to three sets by Mrs. Dorette Miller, deuce sets by Eleanor Craven and 9—7, 10—8 by Sara Moore.

Miss Clarke and Mrs. Robinson easily established themselves as overwhelming favorites to win the doubles yesterday as they did in the City of Washington event. They spotted Mrs. Miller and Miss Moore to a 3-0 lead and then ran off 11 straight games before yielding a stanza.

The top-seeded pair concentrated their attack on Mrs. Miller, who bore up fairly well under the circumstances, although never equal to the occasion. Mrs. Robinson's play at the net was a vital factor in the victory. Miss Moore displayed some first-rate tennis, but being comparatively neglected by the opposition tactics was unable to wield a great deal of influence.

The winners had match point four times before cashing in on the fifth one. The final point developed into an exchange between Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Robinson with the former tossing up a series of lobs to the latter. Four times Mrs. Robinson smashed back at Mrs. Miller's feet only to have the ball tossed back at her. On the fourth one, however, Mrs. Robinson smashed for a placement which Mrs. Miller was unable to touch for the match.

Mule Haas' Hit Wins in 13th

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 19.—A single by Mule Haas in the thirteenth inning with one on gave the White Sox a 5-to-4 victory today over the Philadelphia Athletics. The hit broke up a pitchers' duel between Bill Dietrich and Vernon Kennedy.

The Knockdown That Paved the Way for German's Victory

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Louis Stopped By Schmeling In Twelfth

German's Rights Produce Ring's Greatest Upset; Negro Weakened Early.

Then Maxie landed five hard right smashes to the reeling Bomber's chin, and Joe wilted to the floor. He came down on his knees, and keeled over on his stomach, holding his head sort of up on one elbow. He was trying futilely to rise as the count went on. He had given a game show—despite two fouls called against him — but he had met a better man.

Had anyone dreamed that this fight would have developed as it did, it certainly would have drawn a $2,000,000 gate, instead of the approximate half-million that was a disappointment to the promoters.

A 24-hour postponement because of rain and an anti-Nazi boycott had contributed to the smaller-than-expected crowd.

Were it not for Schmeling's puffed left eye, which he injured in a training session last Sunday, Maxie claimed he would have put the bomber to sleep in the fourth round. He told reporters that hard left jabs in the first three rounds had swelled this eye so badly that he could scarcely see in the fourth—not until after his seconds had iced it between rounds.

Louis, the man who was believed able to name the round in which he would kayo Maxie, was so groggy and sick in his dressing room that he was unable to talk to reporters.

Schmeling won, just as his manager, Joe Jacobs had predicted up at Napanoch, N. Y.—in the face of world-wide derision at his prediction. The veteran of nearly 13 years in the ring made Louis come to him from the very beginning of the fight.

Louis Does Leading.

Maxie did little damage with his left—which the boxing writers had scoffed at so much in training. But tonight he used that left for protection—although he took plenty of battering from Joe's lightning left stabs in the early sessions.

In winning another chance to try to accomplish a feat which no other former champion ever did—to regain the heavyweight title—Max wrote a flaming page into ring history for the name of Schmeling and for the glory of Germany. He will fight Champion James J. Braddock for the title at Yankee Stadium in September.

Promoter Mike Jacobs signed Maxie to a title fight two weeks ago on condition that he won tonight.

Maxie won the heavyweight title on a foul in 1930 in his bout with Jack Sharkey. He lost it on a questionable decision to Sharkey in 1932. Since the time the German won the title while "sitting on the floor" the boxing world doubted that he was a really great fighter—despite victories over Risko, Paulino and Stribling. But there was no doubt about the Rhineland Bulldog's greatness tonight, after his stunning performance.

According to the United Press score sheet, Schmeling won 7 of the 11 rounds preceding the knockout frame.

The Fight, Round by Round

back sparring, but there was little action before the bell actually rang. It was Schmeling's round by a shade.

ROUND THREE.

Both continued to be wary, but Schmeling seized an opening to smash a hard right to the jaw. The punch jarred Louis and the Negro rallied with his first real burst of fighting. Joe drove Max to the ropes, swinging both hands, but the German covered and soon was fencing again in the middle of the ring.

Max gave ground steadily, but blocked most of Joe's punches. Louis pumped his left a dozen times to the head without a return and crossed with a hard right to the cheek. The Negro was very much on the aggressive, but finding Schmeling's defense difficult to penetrate. It was Louis' round on points.

ROUND FOUR.

Joe landed several left jabs to the face. Schmeling's left eye was swelling badly. Joe moved in quickly and was met by a hard right to the chin. Schmeling dropped him with a hard right to the chin. He went down on his knees, but came up at the count of one. The Negro staggered as he got up. Schmeling landed both fists to the head and had the Negro in bad shape. Louis was fighting back with both fists, but apparently was in a daze. They did not hear the bell and were slugging away at the bell. Schmeling's round.

ROUND FIVE.

Schmeling came out with a rush and immediately fired his right hand to the Negro's jaw. Joe was staggered by a vicious smash as they fought along the ropes. The Bomber backed and tried desperately to cover. Schmeling landed twice with straight rights to the head as the Negro countered desperately with his left. The Bomber was blinking and dazed, but kept punching with both hands. Schmeling took a sharp right to the chin as Louis fought his way out of his own corner.

Louis barely ducked a hard right hook and they fell into a clinch. Max fired his right hand twice as the bell rang and swung again after the gong. The Negro's handlers claimed foul, but it was denied. It was Schmeling's round.

ROUND SIX.

Schemling rushed from his corner and crossed a hard right to the head. They slugged at close range before the German again found the target with his right. The Negro held on desperately, but appeared to have no defense for Schmeling's right hand. The Negro absorbed another smash to the cheek and backed to the ropes. Joe connected with a long right to the head as they maneuvered in midring. They exchanged body blows.

Louis appeared completely dazed as he punched aimlessly at close quarters along the ropes. Schmeling was playing a waiting game, looking for an opening, and generally connecting when he let his right hand go. Louis took a terrific overhand right to the side of the head as the bell rang. It was Schmeling's round by a wide margin.

ROUND SEVEN.

ROUND EIGHT.

Louis came out fast and appeared to have shook off the cruel beating he had taken in the previous rounds. Louis missed with his left and Max smiled. Schmeling landed a hard right to the chin that staggered the Negro. Louis drove both fists to the body making Max flinch. They were slugging each other with everything they had. Schmeling's left eye was almost closed. Louis backed Max to the ropes with right. The German countered with two hard rights to the chin.

Louis landed two hard rights to Max's jaw, but the German only laughed. Schmeling's left eye was closing rapidly. Louis landed a low left and the crowd booed him. Schmeling stepped back and held his gloves over his groin. The German was obviously hurt, but the referee motioned for them to continue as the bell rang. The round was awarded to Schmeling because of the low punch.

ROUND NINE.

Joe blinked his left eye and tried to wipe away the fog that seemed to come over him again. Schmeling crossed his right hand effectively after a short sparring session in midring. The Negro's left cheek was badly swollen from the punishment he had absorbed. Schmeling lashed his right again to the chin and then moved quickly out of range. Max was taking no chances of being unexpectedly bombed.

The German rocked Louis with a beautiful right hand to the face and failed even to draw a counter punch. Louis worked his left spasmodically, but there was no steam in his right hand as he tried hard to force Schmeling back. Joe was groggy at the bell. Schmeling's round.

ROUND TEN.

Louis backed away as Schemling came two-thirds of the way across the ring to force the fight. Joe's left landed inches below the waist line. Schmeling smashed a right to the head and forced Louis to the ropes with a two-fisted attack. At close range Louis took heavy punishment, but twice countered with hard rights to the German's head.

Max sparred for an opening and clinched after shooting his right to the chin. Schmeling grinned as he brushed aside Louis' uppercuts. After a sparring session in midring, Schmeling again shot his right to the head and rolled with Joe's counter punch. Joe walked slowly to his corner, his head down, after the bell. It was Schmeling's round.

ROUND ELEVEN.

Schmeling met the Negro in midring, but let Joe do the leading. They exchanged light lefts as Louis tried hard to find an opening in Max's crouchng defense. The German fired a right to the jaw and they clinched. The German laughed as he took a right to the head.

Max was bobbing and weaving in a manner that had Joe befuddled. They clinched as Joe dug a light left to the ribs. Louis kept both hands working, but took a brisk cuffing around the chin just before the bell. Schmeling's round.

ROUND TWELVE.

Schmeling half circled the Negro and crossed his right to the head without a return. Max lunged in again, but took a terrific left to the ribs, which he claimed was in foul territory. Max backed off, but the referee ordered them to continue.

The German backed to the ropes under Joe's two-fisted attack, but was unhurt and quickly had Louis on the ropes. The German battered Joe with smashing rights to the head and the Negro was staggering. Louis went down in one corner from a right to the jaw.

The final punch barely connected, but Louis went down in a heap, shook his head, rolled over on one side and was counted out after two minutes and 39 seconds of the round.

Harvard Crew Easily Beats Yale Eight

By the United Press.

New London, Conn., June 19.—A Harvard varsity crew that had not won another race all season, wrote a glorious "finis" to the work of its coach, Charles J. (Charley) Whiteside, tonight by defeating Yale by six lengths in their seventy-fourth annual regatta.

The four-mile classic on the River Thames was packed to the gunwhales with sentiment when it was disclosed that—win, lose or draw—Whiteside's contract at Harvard would not be renewed.

Jumping to an amazing one-length lead at the start, the Crimson boat, stroked by the 191-pound sophomore, James R. (Spike) Chace, of New York City, saw to it that Whiteside's discharge was an honorable one as they covered the course from the drawbridge to Barletts Cove in 20 minutes, 19 seconds, fastest time a Harvard crew had ever made upstream.

The route, which saw the exhausted Yale boat lumber past the finish flags in 20 minutes 40 3-5 seconds, losers by more than 21 seconds, gave Harvard its first win over the Elis since 1933 and gave Whiteside a record of four victories against three defeats in the tradition-tinged race in his 7 years at the helm.

Official news as to Whiteside's successor was unobtainable tonight, but the report persisted that it would be Rusty Callow, head coach at Pennsylvania and former University of Washington mentor.

Harvard's victory in the pay-off race, which followed victories for the Crimson Freshmen and Yale's Junior Varsity in the preliminary races, was according to form since the Cambridge oarsmen had rowed as a unit all season and had flashed the better times in practice. But no one expected Ed Leader's Yale crew to trail by any 6-length margin, even though its make-up was decided only a week ago.

Chace, who stroked the Harvard Freshmen a year ago, caught Yale asleep at the start and on the wings of a 40-beat pace was away to a one-length lead before most spectators knew the race was under way.

Tigers Lose 7th Game in A Row

Yankees Score 5-2 Victory as Gomez Gives Up Eight Hits.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, June 19. — The cannonading New York Yankees boosted their American League lead to five games today and sank the Tigers to a fifth-place tie by clubbing out a 5-to-2 victory in the current series opener.

Given fine support afield and at bat by his mates, Lefty Gomez returned to winning form with an eight-hit performance, chalking up his seventh victory of the season, but only his first in his last three starts.

The defeat was the seventh straight for the Tigers, their longest losing streak in three seasons.

Gomez was opposed at the start by Elden Auker, but he was unable to get farther than the Yanks' four-run spree in the opening frame, which was featured by George Selkirk's homer with a mate on base. Vic Sorrell, who relieved Auker, held the Yanks to seven hits in the last eight innings.

Marks Toppled In Collegiate Track Meet

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 19.—America's premier collegiate athletes, striving for berths on Uncle Sam's Olympic team, smashed two world records and tied another in the preliminaries of the national collegiate track and field championships today.

The slim crowd of less than 2,000 sitting in sun-drenched Stagg Field, saw Ohio State's black streak of lightning, Jesse Owens, holder of four world's records, easily qualify in the four events in which he competed.

Starts Firing.

Archie Williams, of California, America's newest quarter-mile sensation, started the record breaking by running the 400 meters faster than any human has done before. Running with long, beautiful strides, the Pacific Coast champion reeled off the distance in 46.1, knocking a tenth of a second off the mark hung up by Bill Carr, of Pennsylvania, in the 1932 Olympic games. Williams, a Negro, coasted to the tape, indicating he had enough in reserve to have improved his performance if pressed at the finish.

The second world mark to fall was in the 110-meter high hurdles, with Forrest Towns, Georgia's timber-topping ace, clearing the sticks in 14.1 seconds. This eclipsed the recognized world's mark of 14.2 seconds, made by Percy Beard, of Auburn, in 1934.

Owens, in his dazzling performances today, bettered the Olympic record in the broad jump, sailing through space 25 feet, 10⅞ inches on his second qualifying leap. While the listed Olympic record is 25 feet, 4¾ inches, by Edward B. Hamm, of Georgia Tech, Owens a year ago leaped 26 feet, 8¼ inches in the Western conference championship meet, an applied-for world's mark.

His performance was easily the best.

Owens also qualified in the 100-meter run, the 200-meter run and the 220 yard low hurdles. Through a mistake at the start, Owens was forced to travel 110-meters in the 100-meter event because officials started the runners from the high hurdles mark instead of the proper starting line.

Trio of Central High School's Stars Head for Georgetown U.

As the net result of Central High School's graduation exercises Wednesday, Georgetown University profited to the extent of three very good athletes.

Don Fones, brilliant All-High basketball star and able baseball player, is virtually a Freshman on the Hilltop at this writing. He is headed for the Foreign Service School. Joe Moran, big fullback and All-High outfielder, is also in line for a higher education at the Hoya institution.

Less certain of his destination, but at least tentatively headed for Georgetown is Lefty Heft, Central's promising young southpaw pitcher whom Eddie Rommel called the "most likely" high school product of the season.

The commencement exercises brought the number of Central athletes' graduation to 21, which makes Central easily the luckiest school in town so far as loss to its teams by the diploma route is concerned.

Nine football players finished in February and three more this week. Billy Richardson, all-high halfback, is already at George Washington, where also is Paul Whedon, all-high end.

Coach Jack Ray lost five first-rate ball players from the team which missed the interhigh championship by an eyelash. In addition to Heft, Fones and Moran, Ed McDonough and Ange Valenza, third and second basemen, respectively, received their diplomas.

Fones and Bob Saffron, who was graduated in February, are the only losses to the basketball team. Track, tennis and golf all escaped without vital losses.

The number of returning athletes would probably outnumber the number of graduates and include nearly as many celebrities, such as Bill Thompson, Charlie Jones, Bill Wooten, Lefty Rowles, Bernie Askin, et cetera.

Buddy Myer, Sick, Is Ordered Home

Cleveland, Ohio, June 19.—Capt. Buddy Myer, troubled by a stomach disorder and out of uniform since the Nats left the East, was ordered to Washington tonight by Manager Bucky Harris.

Myer, not seriously ill, but failing to regain his strength, expressed the wish to be treated in Washington by his personal physician.

Syd Cohen, former Chattanooga left-hander, joined the Nats today. He was accompanied here by Pitcher Henry Coppola, who is en route to join Albany after being released by Chattanooga.

Manager Bucky Harris will start Earl Whitehill on the mound against the Indians in the second game of the series tomorrow. Johnny Allen is expected to be the Cleveland pitcher.

Dean Wins 13th As Cards Beat Giants, 7-5

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 19.—Dizzy Dean got by one bad inning today, and for the rest of the way had the Giants completely in hand as the St. Louis Cardinals turned in a 7-to-5 victory, marking Dean's thirteenth win of the season against two setbacks.

The triumph boosted the Cardinals' National League lead to two full games over the idle Chicago Cubs, who were rained out in Brooklyn.

Although the "Great One" allowed the Giants ten hits, and weakened in the sixth to let five New York runs across, he didn't have to apply pressure after the first two innings, when Ducky Medwick and young Stu Martin each hit homers, each with two mates on base, to give the Cards a six-run lead.

12-Cent Cotton Appears After Seven Months

July Option Sells Up to 12.15 After Pool Liquidation.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 19.—The feature in cotton futures today was the strength of the July position on which, after the liquidation of pool holdings had been completed, sold up to 12.15 in late trading and closed at 12.13. The general market closed steady at net advances of 4 to 23 points. Cotton has not sold at 12 cents since last November.

July was relatively firm from the start on the covering of trade shorts. This demand was supplied by liberal sales through brokers supposed to be operating for the cotton producers' pool at prices ranging up to the 12-cent level. The liquidation of the pool's July interest was then completed, while covering by trade shorts continued and the strenth of July brought in scattered buying of new crop deliveries.

Futures Price Range.

| | High | Low | Last |
|---|---|---|---|
| July | 12.15 | 11.93 | 12.13 |
| October | 11.47 | 11.35 | 11.45 |

| May | 11.43 | 11.32 | 11.42 |

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was firmer on increased covering and Southern and Eastern buying, promoted by the firmness of lard, cotton and hogs and the sensational upturn in grains. Final prices were 6 to 12 points net higher. Sales, 154 contracts. Bleachable spot nominal; July closed 9.31; September, 9.25; October, 9.13; December, 8.95; January, 8.93.

Cudahy Suit Asks Process Tax Back

Chicago, June 19 (AP).—The Cudahy Packing Company filed suit today in Federal court to recover $11,908,983.83 paid to the Government in processing taxes under the invalidated AAA. The suit was the first of its kind to be filed by any packer here, although packers were successful in court actions to regain impounded processing tax money.

Col. George Buckingham filed the suit for the packing company. Carl Perkins, assistant United States attorney, said the Government would fight the case vigorously.

Business Index Moves Upward To Year's High

Corporations Now Seeking New Capital for Expansion.

New York, June 19.—Business Week's index has moved up to 74.6, a new high for the year. Steel mills are still busy grinding out orders coming from a wide variety of sources and see little chance of finishing up business by the end of June. Hence a good carry-over of orders to July is looked for. Heavy construction contracts this week hit the second highest level of the year, chiefly under the impetus of public building jobs.

Corporations are gradually entering capital markets for new money for the purchase of plant and equipment. While in the first quarter only 2.8 per cent of the total dollar volume of issues registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission, or $24,812,054, was definitely allocated for this purpose, the April returns recently released show that 6.1 per cent of the month's capital requirements, or $36,094,233, was destined for plant development. First four months' total of $60,906,287 compares with $46,236,476 for the whole of 1935. The total, however, is still small.

Not only are there somewhat stronger indications of business borrowings for plant expansion and improvement, but there now appears greater willingness to draw upon the banking system's ample credit reservoir for current requirements. Commercial loans now stand at the high point of 2½ years, having expanded $314,000,000 in 101 cities since the end of February.

Electric power production is giving an extraordinary summer performance, jumping last week to a new high for the year, and coming close to the all-time record established for the week ended December 21, 1935. It will be several weeks before the real explanation of this bulge can be ascertained, but judging from the record of the first four months it is industrial activity rather than domestic consumption that accounts ffor the boom in power.

Bulk of Advertising Goes to Newspapers

New York, June 19 (AP).—Newspapers received the major share of national advertising expenditures of advertising, the American Newspaper Publishers Association said today in its annual survey.

The survey, based on a study of the advertising budgets of 387 companies, shows their combined expenditures of $231,107,948 in the three principal media—newspapers, magazines and chain broadcasts—were apportioned as follows: Newspapers—$134,440,000 or 58.2 per cent, magazines—$61,943,228 or 26.8 per cent, chain broadcast—$34,724,720 or 15 per cent.

"As in the past," the survey says, "Food, automotive and tobacco products continued to be the leading trade groups in advertising expenditure in 1935. In all three groups, newspapers received by far the major portion of the budget."

Stocks Drfit Lower in Less Active Trading; Wheat Climbs on Crop Damage.

New York, June 19.—Treasury bonds again were easier, but other grades were steady. Stocks ran into profit taking here and there and met with studied indifference to the buying side on the part of traders. Sales were smaller at around 850,000 shares. Wheat rushed up on crop damage reports. September futures at hicago closed 4½ cents higher at 92¾ cents a bushel.

Stocks were rather anemic from the start. They were not offered heavily, but few buyers could be found who appeared to appreciate their possibilities for a rise. Virtual certainty that, in a grand rush to escape any further responsibilities, Congressmen would pass a bad tax bill and adjourn, probably held back the markets.

Adjournment of Congress in itself is a bull point of the first order, but the new tax bill is a bearish development on corporations and their securities, looked at from almost any angle, and it does not carry with it the compensation of aid toward balancing the budget. That program is kept sadly out of balance by design, and if the new taxation is not merely a gesture toward sound finance it then is merely another bit of business strafing.

Steels Decline.

In the afternoon trading stocks moved irregularly lower, reaching their poorest prices late in the final hour. The steel group was the most neglected. Steel common lost 1⅛ points and others were weak in proportion. Railroads stocks also were lower, in spite of the good showing for May earnings made by the first eight roads to report. Net operating income for them was 47 per cent greater than in the same month of last year, but pension accounting had something to do with it. Great Northern was a firm issue.

Chrysler was firm in the motor group, but others were barely steady. In chemicals, Allied dropped out of the 200 class in losing 2 points. Kelsey Hayes B shares fell more than a point in early selling, but snapped back. Associated Dry Goods second preferred sold at yesterday's bid price of 122, scoring a gain of 9 points over the previous sale and getting the best price since 1928. Guantanamo Sugar preferred fell 8 points, following the advertisement of a bid-and-offer quotation on the tape. Crosley and Zenith rose to new high levels, but Radio was easier. Utilities and most other groups were a trifle lower. Case was no better than firm on the jump in wheat.

Country Improving.

Midyear, with its heavy financial operations, expansion of currency, distribution of dividends and interest and debt payments, finds the country's financial position stronger than a year ago. Banks have not been able to find much increased source of employment for their funds in regular lending channels, but they have had no lack of Government bonds for investment. Customers' rates charged by the banks average slightly lower than a year ago, but call and time money charges on stock market collateral have been lifted a little.

The investor continues to find his income reduced, on a yield basis, although payment of preferred dividend arrears goes on and the common dividend level continues to rise. Defaults on bond issues are steadily becoming scarcer. Business activity is well above that of a year ago, as witness the steel industry's operating rate, which is about double that of last year, freight car loadings and electrical output. However, the activity is coming largely from utilization of existing manufacturing and distributing facilities, without upbuilding of inventories or plant expansion that ordinarily bring a drain on credit.

Excess Reserves.

This week, because of the incidence of the bonus, the excess reserves of the member banks fell nearly a billion dollars, but they remain above two billions. So long as anywhere near so huge an amount exists the possibility of a rising money market is remote. Circulation rose $111,000,000, compared with a gain in the corresponding week a year ago of $5,000,000, also largely because of the bonus, but that expansion quickly will subside, with little chance of promoting an inflationary movement.

Francs Improve.

On the foreign front the French franc rebounded a little on the strong stand taken by Finance Minister Auriol against devaluation of the currency. An examination of the position is nevertheless not especially profitable to those who think francs can be kept on gold indefinitely. The new government is frankly launching a great inflation program for expenditures and prices, the budget already is badly out of balance, labor troubles are numerous, capital distrusts the Socialist government, and altogether few are likely to take M. Auriol at his word, or credit him with the power to carry out his intentions.

Meanwhile the movement against emigrating capital is not calculated to restore confidence. People won't recover from fright on the threat of punishment for trembling. The only real restorative would be to bring about a state of affairs in government finance which would insure currency stability. Perhaps it is much too late for anything of the sort, and it might have been impossible anyhow, involving as it would have done the reduction of government spending and the improvement in trade. The franc might still be kept on gold, but only if the French nation is prepared to go through with a good deal more of deflation. It appears to be starting on the opposite course. With the moderate hardening of francs the sterling-dollar rate weakened.

Bonus Spending.

Some disappointment seems to have been caused by stories that spending of the soldiers' bonus money is proceeding rather slowly. From a stock market standpoint that ought to be a cause for good feeling rather than for apprehension. For one thing, it probably means that the citizen is now in a better financial position than he is supposed to be among New Deal theorists. For another, it may mean that settlement of debts comes first. Retail trade will get along pretty well without the bonus spending, business doesn't need any more pump priming and the only show of wealth that will help in long run is that arising from increased production by individuals. For all that, enough bonus money is bound to be spent to give trade at least a mild fillip this summer.

Delayed Delivery.

Although the customers think of "delayed delivery" as a contract on which the seller is to deliver the securities on a specified number of days in the future, the term is used by the stock exchange in a technical sense only in the bond market. There the seller customarily has the right to specify delayed delivery at the time a sale is closed, unless the bid has been explicitly for cash or for second day delivery. Today's ruling that transactions in Chicago Railways first 5s of 1927 shall not be made "delayed delivery" will not prevent "seller's seven" trades, but will relieve buyers from unwillingly risking a delay. Prompt delivery is important in this case because of the possibility of sudden closing of acceptance of deposits by the committee whose certificates of deposit, on the Curb Exchange, might fare better in reorganization than undeposited bonds.

Freight Traffic Dips for Week, Gains in Year

Total of 686,812 Cars Is 5.3 Per Cent Above a Year Ago.

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended June 13 totaled 686,812 cars, the Association of American Railroads announced yesterday. This was an increase of 34,701 cars, or 5.3 per cent above the corresponding week in 1935 and 67,931 cars, or 11 per cent above the corresponding week in 1934. Loading of revenue freight for the week of June 13 was a decrease of 9,033 cars, or 1.3 per cent below the preceding week.

Loading of merchandise less-than-carload-lot freight totaled 161,424 cars, a decrease of 3,641 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 4,859 cars above the corresponding week in 1935. It was, however, a decrease of 29 cars below the same week in 1934.

Coal loading amounted to 105,332 cars, an increase of 2,783 cars above the preceding week, but a decrease of 51,818 cars below the corresponding week in 1935. It was, however, an increase of 7,985 cars above the same week in 1934.

Grain and grain products loading totaled 32,108 cars, an increase of 418 cars above the preceding week, and 6,260 cars above the corresponding week of 1935, but a decrease of 1,698 cars below the same week in 1934. In the Western districts alone grain and grain products loading for the week ended June 13 totaled 20,203 cars, an increase of 148 cars above the preceding week this year and 4,310 cars above the same week in 1935.

Livestock Declines.

Livestock loading amounted to 10,727 cars, a decrease of 1,075 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 383 cars above the same week in 1935. It was, however, a decrease of 2,085 cars below the same week in 1934. In the Western districts alone loading of livestock for the week ended June 13 totaled 7,705 cars, a decrease of 1,083 cars below the preceding week this year, but an increase of 203 cars above the same week in 1935.

Forest products loading totaled 33,642 cars, a decrease of 1,120 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 7,160 cars above the same week in 1935 and 8,524 cars above the same week in 1934.

Ore loading amounted to 49,954 cars, a decrease of 2,183 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 16,953 cars above the corresponding week in 1935 and 16,030 cars above the corresponding week in 1934.

Coke loading amounted to 8,477 cars, an increase of 168 cars above the preceding week, 2,125 cars above the same week in 1935 and 1,650 cars above the same week in 1934.

All districts reported increases in the number of cars loaded with revenue freight, compared with the corresponding week in 1935, except the Eastern and Pocahontas. All districts reported increases, compared with the corresponding week in 1934.

Basic Factors Better In Life Insurance

Hot Springs, Va., June 19.—Significant improvements in basic factors of the business of the Lincoln National Life Insurance Co. were announced here today by A. L. Dern, vice president and director of agencies, in opening the company's three-day Eastern regional convention.

"The average size of policy sold last year increased 4 per cent," he said. "The number of policies rejected dropped last year from the previous year's figure. There has been a notable reduction in first year lapses and a betterment in this classification has been shown every year since 1932. Lapses last year were 76 per cent less than they were in 1934."

W. W. Wachtel Joins Calvert-Maryland

New York, June 19.—W. W. Wachtel has been appointed vice president in charge of sales for the Calvert-Maryland Distilling Co., Inc., effective July 1, according to E. M. Fleischmann, president.

Mr. Wachtel has been associated with the Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co. for 26 years and has been vice president and general manager of sales and advertising.

American Security Votes 2% Quarterly

The directors of the American Security and Trust Co. have declared a quarterly dividend of 2 per cent on the capital stock of the company.

The dividend is payable July 10 to stockholders of record at the close of business June 30.

Dried Fruits Steady.

Federal Report Finds Conditions Critical.

A special statement by the Federal crop reporting board, containing no actual estimates, said yesterday that prospects for spring gains and hay crops declined during the first half of June. The statement did not mention specifically the spring wheat crop and it included no figures dealing with estimated production.

"Crops are in critical condition," the board said, "in western North and South Dakota and in eastern Montana. Prospects for the oat and hay crops have been declining rather rapidly in the Ohio Valley area and dry conditions prevail in most of the whole area stretching from central New York and southeastern Nebraska southward to central Georgia and the Rio Grande River."

Crop Damage Drives Wheat To Season's Top

Chicago Prices Soar 4¾ Cents; Other Grains Rise Sharply.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 19.—Skyrocketed by official and unofficial spring wheat damage reports the worst yet this season, all grains today excitedly outdid 1934 previous top quotations.

Chicago wheat prices soared 4¾ cents a bushel, and Minneapolis and Kansas City markets both jumped to the extreme limit allowed in any one day, 5 cents.

Adding impetus to a general buying stampede was anxiety over assertions that not only domestic spring wheat Northwest but hard winter wheat in Kansas, the banner State for that variety, was also being injured by dry hot winds.

Wheat in Chicago closed flurried at almost the day's peak, 3¾@4½ cents above yesterday's finish, July, 91⅝@¾; September, 92¾@⅞; December, 94½@⅝; corn, 2¼@3 cents up, July, 65@65¼; September, 64⅜@½; December, 59⅝@⅝; oats 1⅛@1½ advanced, September, 28¾@⅞, and rye showing 3½@3¾ bulge, September, 61⅛. Provisions gained 12 to 20 cents.

Insect League Teams Begin Play Today

300 Boys to Perform in Three Columbian Loop Groups.

Washington's largest juvenile baseball league will call some 300 young ball players into action today as President Joe Cohen, youngest league president in the city, gets his Columbian circuits under way. Peewee, Insect and Midget divisions will open play today. All competition is under The Washington Post Sandlot Association, which is offering trophies to the championship teams in each division.

The 1935 Peewee champions are slated for one of the outstanding struggles, meeting the strong Buck Newsom A. C. on the West Ellipse at 1 p. m. Cohen already has the teams talking about the all-star games which the league will play with other juvenile loops in Griffith Stadium.

The Columbian Insect All-Stars will play their big game Friday, July 24, and the Peewees, Friday, July 31. In addition to The Post trophies, the teams are playing for 15 gold baseballs to be awarded by the league to the championship club and 15 loop emblems to be awarded the runners-up. The home run leader will receive the J. C. Cohen gold baseball award while the manager whose team scores the most runs wins a silver ball.

Insects and Peewees will play on Tuesdays and Thursdays after today and Midgets on Tuesdays and Saturdays. Young umpires will handle most of the arbiting this year, Cohen has announced. Umpires will receive a dollar a game. Applicants between the ages of 19 and 35 communicate with Cohen, Columbia 2817, between 9 and 12 a. m.

Budge, Jones Move Into Net Finals

By the Associated Press.

London, June 19.—Donald Budge, of Oakland, Calif., and David Jones, former Columbia University team captain, today qualified for the final round of the Queens Club tennis tournament.

Budge defeated Josef Caska, of Czechoslovakia, 6—4, 6—2, while Jones had a comparatively easier time of winning from Yvon Petra, of France, 6—3, 6—1.

The final brackets in the women's singles competition also were filled. Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, of Poland, defeated Jean Saunders, 6—3, 3—6, 6—3. Susan Noel whitewashed Miss A. G. Curtis, 6—0, 6—0.

Dutch Weimer Nears Peak For Bout

Weimer's spar-mates will be Buck Everett, local product recently returned from a Southern tour, and Kirkwood Burke, another District youth. The big boy went four rounds with Ritchie Mack yesterday and not only had an abundance of steam behind his punches, but also showed nice timing.

Meanwhile Burman, who is prepping for the scrap in New York, is reported fit and ready for his initial appearance here in the heavyweight ranks. Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn telephoned the information from Gotham last night that Burman will be matched with Tom Beaupre at the Stadium early in July and may possibly meet Marty Gallagher.

G.P.O. Federals in Tie For First, Down War

The G. P. O. Federals went into a tie for first place in the Federal A. A. League of The Post Sandlot Association yesterday with an 8-to-2 victory over A. G. O. War Department. The Federals are tied with Procurement Division, each club having won eight games in ten starts.

7810 13TH ST. N.W.
Shepherd Park.
$12,950
This home was built with painstaking care—and the result is the kind of artistry, distinction, perfection and individuality that you find only in much higher-priced homes. From the sweep of the charming Colonial architecture on down to the finest details, such as the moulding and finishing touches—its beauty is obvious. And its price gives it a contrast that rightfully puts it in the bargain class, for it has features that you'll find only in the higher-priced bracket. Has porch, beautiful tiled bathroom, fireplace in living room; welcome air in its surrounding shrubbery and trees; detached garage; finished attic, 1 bedroom and bath on 1st floor. We'll arrange easy terms to cover long-period payments. Two blocks east of Sixteenth street and Locust road nw.

Howlett-Wright Funeral Today; Woman Doctor

Retired Physician Was 75; Lecturer for W. C. T. U. in War Years.

Funeral services for Dr. Frances Howlett-Wright, retired New York physician, who died Thursday after a long illness, will be held today at 3 p. m. from the Hines funeral home, Fourteenth and Harvard streets northwest. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Dr. Howlett-Wright was 75 and lived here at 1802 Lamont street northwest. She was born May 17, 1861, in Waupaca, Wis., and traced her ancestry to Ethan Allen, Revolutionary War hero. A graduate of Columbia University, she styled herself a "chemical diagnostician." She was the only woman honorary member of the Constructive Surgeons Association of America.

During the World War she was a lecturer for the Women's Christian Temperance Union. Other organizations of which she was a member were the World Purity Federation, the National Florence Crittenden Mission of New York and the American Institute of Phrenology. She also had been president of the District of Columbia Chapter of the Community Bible Readers League.

Her husband, Silas Wright, died in 1910. Thereafter she hyphenated her maiden name of Howlett with his. She came to Washington to live about 15 years ago.

Maryland Slashes Its Relief Forces

Baltimore, June 19 (AP).—Fifteen employes, most of them in relatively minor positions, were dismissed today by State relief headquarters.

The dismissals were necessitated by budget cuts imposed by the State board of public works, charged by the Legislature with the duty of fixing State relief costs. The budget was cut from a requested $137,000 to $95,000.

Officials of the Board of State Aid and Charities—supervising group for the relief headquarters—conferred with Gov. Harry W. Nice and other public works board members today, seeking an increased allotment. They met with no success.

The entire appropriation for the relief headquarters personnel department was eliminated. The office of State employment commission must now take over duties of that department, in so far as employes of the State relief headquarters are concerned.

Willson Funeral To Be Held Today

Funeral services for Harry B. Willson, 68, retired patent attorney and formerly a leading builder here, who died Thursday night at his home, 3245 Ellicott street, after a lingering illness, will be held at his residence today at 2 p. m., followed by burial in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Willson was at one time associated with Harry Wardman in building construction here. He was a native Washingtonian and a graduate of George Washington University when it still was Columbian College.

He retired from active law practice many years ago and engaged in building apartment houses and private residences. He was a member of the Congressional and Racquet clubs and active in the Masonic Fraternity.

Mrs. Edna Birkett Rites Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Edna Vauix Birkett, 73, wife of James Birkett, who died yesterday at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, the Rev. and Mrs. Robert Lee Lewis, 3506 Lowell street, will be held tomorrow at 3 p. m. in Manassas, Va., her family home, followed by burial in the family plot.

For many years Mrs. Birkett was active in the Daughters of the Confederacy at Manassas. She came to Washington last September. Her son-in-law is on the staff of Washington Cathedral.

Besides her husband and daughter, Mrs. Birkett is survived by a son, James W. Birkett, of Fairfax, Va.; two sisters, Mrs. Claude Cockerille and Mrs. Adam Wilhelm, both of Los Angeles, and two brothers, James Weir, Washington broker, and Robert Weir, of Manassas. She also leaves seven grandchildren.

on the shore. The panic-stricken grasped at each other.

Heart-rending scenes were enacted on the lake front as physicians, firemen and police worked over the little bodies until hope of resuscitation vanished.

Lubec, a sardine packing community, 25 miles from the lake, was thrown into mourning. Parents and relatives rushed to the lake by automobile. Joyously, mothers and fathers grasped their children when they found they were not among those lost. Other parents stood by with tear-filled eyes as the rescuers worked over the bodies of their sons and daughters.

Firemen from East Machias and Machias joined with Coast Guard men from the West Quoddy Head Station, who rushed inland with rescue equipment.

The bodies were taken to Lubec. There preparations were made for funeral services that would conclude the worst tragedy to befall an eastern Maine community in many years.

Fathers to Be Feted.

Reedville, Va., June 19.—Fathers' day will be observed at Bethany M. E. Church, Reedville, Sunday. A program has been arranged by the Mizpah Bible Class, and the Rev. C. E. Blankenship, pastor, will preach. A class of young people will be received into the church in connection with the service and several infants will be baptized.

Shows the Town to His Pals

Boy Cured of Infant Paralysis Brings Two Pals to See District

Maryland Lad, 13, Returns to Washington Without Braces as Result of Operation Inspired by President Roosevelt.

Accompanied by a couple of 13-year-old pals from Goldsboro, on Maryland's Eastern Shore, 14-year-old Tilghman Williams is back in Washington.

Just a year ago Tilghman came here for a brief visit, his first glimpse of any city much larger than his native village of 150 persons across the Chesapeake Bay. Then he was badly crippled from an attack of infantile paralysis he suffered when he was 20 months old.

But yesterday, as he led his schoolmates, Travers Shively and Glenn Smith, through the wonders of the Capital—the first big town the two 13-year-olds have ever seen—he walked with scarcely a limp.

"I guess I'd be wearing a brace and using crutches yet if I hadn't come to Washington last year," young Williams explained. "That visit sure changed my life."

Spent Week Here.

He came here last summer to spend a week with Etta Russell, who conducted a story hour for children in Goldsboro when Tilghman was only 4 years old. At that time she was supervising children's work in Southern Methodist churches of Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia. Now Miss Russell works at the Juvenile Court for the Federation of Churches.

Soon after the crippled lad came to her home, 1618 Eighteenth street northwest, she arranged for him to meet President Roosevelt.

The President's personal physician, Dr. Ross McIntire, examined the boy and said his condition could be greatly improved by an operation.

"We'd been to doctors near my home, but they said there wasn't any hope for me to get better," Tilghman said yesterday. "I'd worn six braces—they cost my mother $100 apiece—and been in 13 casts. I had to use crutches most of the time, too. But after the President's own doctor told me an operation would help we decided to try that."

Entered Athletics.

So young Williams spent two months at Children's Hospital in Baltimore. Then he went back to school and, for the first time, began taking part in athletics. A few weeks ago he won medals for winning the county championship at speedball and baseball throw for accuracy.

"Next year I'm going out for basketball," he grinned.

Beside him sat the two youngsters he brought to Washington with him this year, Travers, his cousin, and Glenn, who used to look after his crutches for him and sometimes pull him around in a little wagon.

Until their arrival here a few days ago, Travers and Glenn had never seen street cars, tall buildings, crowded pavements, and all the other things which go to make up a throbbing, rushing city. But by the time they return to Goldsboro tomorrow they will have done the town, from Glen Echo Amusement Park to the White House, from movie palaces to the Capitol.

"I'd sure like to live here if I had more money," confided Travers. By saving all winter toward the trip, each of the boys had $4 when he reached here.

See City Alone.

"Miss Russell has helped us out a little with taxis and things," Tilghman explained.

Their hostess turned them loose and let them see the city by themselves. Asked if it was like they had expected it to be, Glenn said: "Yes, only a lot more so."

The White House impressed him most.

"It's like a palace," he decided after halting over the proper word with which to describe it.

Travers was torn between the big movie theaters and Glen Echo. Tilghman, now a veteran sightseer in the Capital, said the swimming pools were his biggest thrill this year.

On their way to Goldsboro tomorrow they will see Annapolis.

"We came through there on our way here, but the boys were so crazy to see Washington they wouldn't take even a minute to look at Annapolis," said Tilghman.

Air Crash Victims Buried in Arlington

Joint funeral services were held yesterday afternoon in Arlington National Cemetery for Lieut. Charles W. Perrott, Chief Radioman W. C. Morris and Aviation Machinist's Mate William D. Eubank, three Coast Guard fliers who were killed in an airplane crash Monday at Tampa Bay, Fla.

Serving as honorary pallbearers for Lieut. Perrott were Lieuts. D. R. Simonson, F. E. Polio, C. B. Olson, G. H. Bowerman, C. E. Brush and E. E. Comstock.

Miss Coleman Is Bride.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Lynchburg, Va., June 19.—Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Coleman, of Boonsboro, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Edith, to Herman W. Worsham, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Worsham, of Richmond.

Leib Malach, Yiddish Poet, Dies in Paris

Paris, June 19 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Leib Malach, 42, Yiddish poet, playwright and novelist, died suddenly today following an operation.

Born in Poland, Malach traveled widely in South America and the rest of the world. He spent five years in the United States, where some of his plays were performed on the Yiddish stage. His best known work is "The Dregs," a drama of underworld life in Warsaw.

George Dodge Dies; Retired Naval Officer

Commodore Was 80; Had Charge of World's Fair Electric System.

Commodore Omengo George Dodge, U. S. N., retired, who was in charge of all the electrical equipment at the Chicago World's Fair in 1893, died at the Naval Hospital yesterday after a long illness. He was 80 years old.

As a youth, Commodore Dodge went with his parents from Michigan to Kansas in a covered wagon. Often he stood guard against the hostile Indians who preyed upon the pioneers.

It was from Kansas that he was appointed to the Naval Academy at Annapolis. He graduated in the class of 1877, and was in active service 47 years.

From 1899 to 1909 he was professor of mathematics and officer in charge of buildings at the Naval Academy. He served as an inspection officer at various eastern ports during the World War, and was retired in 1920.

Funeral services for Commodore Dodge, who lived with his daughter-in-law, Mrs. A. C. Dodge, at 3528 Edmunds street northwest, will be held with full military honors in Arlington National Cemetery Monday at 2 p. m.

Mrs. Dodge is his only survivor.

Services Are Held For James Duncan

Funeral services for James Morton Duncan, former Mayor of Alexandria, were conducted in Grace Episcopal Church, Alexandria, yesterday by the Rev. Robert C. Masterton, rector, assisted by the Rev. Harry Lee Doll, rector of Christ Episcopal Church.

The services were attended by many relatives and friends, including many city officials and members of the Masonic fraternity, of which Mr. Duncan was a prominent member.

Honorary pallbearers were Charles H. Callahan, Edmund F. Ticer, Dr. Hugh McGuire, Kenneth Truckenmiller, John H. Fisher, Dr. Arthur Snowden, Clyde C. Lamond, Judge William S. Snow, H. B. Richards, Judge Louis C. Barley, William T. Wilkins, Dr. Samuel B. Moore, Judge William P. Woolls, Emmett C. Dunn, Marshall L. King, John Morris, Harry Hammond, Percy E. Clift, Judge Robinson Moncure, Richard H. Cox, William A. Smoot and Charles W. King.

Active pallbearers were William M. Duncan, Joseph O. Duncan, John A. Duncan, Edmund Duncan, Edward C. Duncan and Morton Duncan, all nephews of Mr. Duncan.

Civil War Soldier Fought When 15; Never Was Ill Until Recently.

William Ryan, who ran away from home at 15 to join the Union Army, died late Thursday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Stalney Wolfe, 6401 Maple avenue, Chevy Chase, Md. He was 90 years old and had never been sick a day in his life until a few weeks ago.

Although one of the two surviving Union veterans in Montgomery County, Mr. Ryan was not a familiar figure in local veteran celebrations. He dropped his membership in the G. A. R. when comparatively young.

However, he was invited two or three years ago to take part in a Washington parade. He refused when he learned that he would have to ride in an automobile. If he was going to be in a parade, he would march or not go at all.

Mr. Ryan was proud of his health. Up until shortly before his death he used to make his own way downtown on the bus to visit the bank and see a few friends. He never would let his daughter come with him; said it would be babying him too much.

Ten Cigars Daily.

He also would not let old age cut into his ten cigars a day. He took to smoking, he used to explain, when he joined the army "to keep the cooties away." His son, Edgar Ryan, last night estimated his father had consumed in a lifetime enough cigars to fill a warehouse.

When he ran away to join the Twilfth Pennsylvania Cavalry as a boy of 15, his mother threatened to expose his age and bring him back home.

"No use," he told her. "I'll just run away again."

He was a tall, rangy lad, measuring almost 6 feet at the time and the recruiting officer did not question his age. He served throughout the four years of the war without a scratch, though he had a narrow escape when a horse was shot under him during the Battle of Antietam.

He was captured by the Confederates near Staunton while on his way to the Battle of Gettysburg. Out on a foraging expedition at the time with a small band, he fell into the hands of a large detachment of cavalry.

He was shipped off to Island No. 10 in the James River, but did not stay there long. He rejoined his regiment after an exchange of prisoners.

Routine Life.

The war over, Mr. Ryan's life settled into a routine existence, seldom broken by major excitement. After a few years in business in his home State, he joined the Railway Mail Service as a clerk in 1880. In 1899 he was transferred to headquarters here and for several years commuted from Baltimore, moving to Washington in 1902.

He was retired in 1920. Six years ago he and his wife celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Together they relived the happiest moment of their lives as they renewed the vows of long ago, surrounded by their children and grandchildren.

Mrs. Ryan's death the next year cast a shadow over her husband's happiness. Since then he would sit long days in quiet contemplation.

He was a member of King David Lodge of Masons.

Surviving him, besides his daughter, are two sons, Edgar R. and Gerald Ryan, both of this city; a brother, Frank X. Ryan, of Philadelphia; eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. today at his daughter's residence. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Two Moderate Quakes Rock West Texas Towns

Borger, Tex., June 19 (U.P.).—Two earthquakes of moderate intensity rocked this section of west Texas tonight. The first shock was felt at 9:20, and the second came three minutes later.

The second temblor lasted for about four seconds, rattling windows and doors and shaking furniture.

Theaters were emptied quickly as audiences fled into the open, fearing there had been an explosion. Th quakes were felt within a 5-mile radius of Borger.
